Finance Committee OKs funds for student TV, SCAU

By STEVE FERGUSON
 Staff Writer

The Finance Committee Wednesday recommended approval of a $700 grant to help student television move a step closer to reality. The committee also agreed to a $4,522 addition to the Student Consumer Action Union's budget.

Tim Sullivan, a spokesman for the Student Television Committee, said his organization was shooting for $35,000 in donations to buy two cameras and two video recorders. Three hundred dollars is needed for printing costs, $250 for postage and $150 for phone use, Sullivan said.

Donations will be solicited from corporations, alumni and other sources, he said.

In the near future, student television hopes to produce a

PM Magazine type show, similar to a pilot show that ran recently on Village Cable, Sullivan said.

The money SCAU requested was needed for production of "The Southern Part of Heaven," a booklet helping students find places to live, said Richard Owens, a SCAU representative.

Last year's publication came out about two weeks before exams, which was later than expected, Owens said. By that time, that year's budget hadn't been used and was put back into the general fund, he said.

The money for last year's "The Southern Part of Heaven" had to come out of this year's budget, Owens said.

Owens said SCAU was, in effect, asking for their own money back. To prevent the same thing from happening this year, "The Southern Part of Heaven" is expected to come out in March, Owens said.

The Student Services Committee received approval from the Finance Committee for $83 to purchase an answering machine.

Vic Doggette, chairman of the Student Services Committee, said the Student Government Hotline had expanded to a 24-hour service, and an answering machine was needed. In the past they had rented a machine, but with recent rate increases they found it could be more efficient to buy their own machine.

The hotline is manned from 1 p.m. until 5 p.m., and receives eight to 10 calls per day, Doggette said.

The Finance Committee also made three adjustments to the current treasury laws and agreed to pay a $202 premium for workmen's compensation insurance that would cover anyone getting a salary and working for the Campus Governing Council.

All of the proposals will be taken up by the full CGC Wednesday, Nov. 9.

Candidates discuss development, finances of Chapel Hill

By SALLY SMITH
 Staff Writer

Chapel Hill's development and financial status were the main topics discussed by candidates for Town Council and mayor at a forum Wednesday night.

The forum held at Grey Culbreth Junior High School was sponsored by the Chapel Hill Homeowners Association.

The six candidates running for four Town Council seats in the Nov. 8 election are Jonathan Howes, Nancy Preston, R.D. Smith, Joe Straley, Bill Thorpe and Katherine Wright.

Mayor Joe Nassif is unopposed in his bid for re-election.

The candidates expressed their views on the present Development Ordinance including changes they would like to see.

Thorpe, a former Town Council member, told the audience that they could change the ordinance and that he would listen to their views if elected. "We can keep Chapel Hill a traditional community."

Howes, a two-term member of the Council, said that he supported the Development Ordinance and several amendments under study.

He also proposed a program of neighborhood preservation. "Focused on existing neighborhoods, this will allow residents to set forth their values and interests before unacceptable proposals are put before them," Howes said.

Preston said she favored low-to-medium-range density growth in Chapel Hill. A cap of no more than 15 dwelling units per acre is needed, she said.

Smith, an incumbent, said he felt the town was looking at growth from the wrong direction. "We don't have what should go before the new growth," Smith said. These prerequisites for growth are new roads, parking facilities and water, he said.

Incumbent Straley showed the audience a zoning map and said, "I don't think Chapel Hill is going to become an urban mess as long as we keep this map."

Opposed to the ordinance, Wright said it had stimulated a rush to in-fill Chapel Hill with high density developments.

Mayor Nassif said the one change he recommended for the ordinance was a cap on the number of units per acre. "I am prepared to vote for that," Nassif said.

All the candidates said they approved a ceiling in some form on the number of dwelling units per acre.

Except for Wright, all the candidates agreed that growth could not be stopped and that it should be planned and managed.

Howes said that the growth in Chapel Hill was inevitable and that it called for much more sophisticated forms of planning.

On the financial future of the town, only Wright said the town was living beyond its means and would in time have to decide what services to cut back.

The candidates agreed that the town was in good financial condition now. "We've been in reasonably good condition for a long time," Smith said.

All the candidates also agreed on the need for a study to determine if Chapel Hill needs a new public library. "This is the most used service in Chapel Hill," Nassif said, "and we're going to have to look into it."

Municipal elections will be Tuesday. Polls will open at 6:30 a.m. and close at 7:30 p.m.

U.S. troops in Lebanon a mistake, says Georgetown diplomacy prof.

By DIANA BOSNIACK
 Staff Writer

Lebanon is a dangerous and undesirable diversion of U.S. foreign policy in the Middle East, Seth Tillman, a professor of diplomacy at Georgetown University, told about 30 people in a public lecture at the Campus Y Thursday.

"The Marine contingent in Lebanon is too small to change society, yet big enough to keep the United States involved," Tillman said.

President Reagan has ignored his 1982 plan to promote talks in the Middle East and resolve the Israeli-Palestinian conflict by involving the United States in Lebanon, Tillman said. "Nothing is happening in that arena while the United States is increasingly drawn into the war in Lebanon."

Tillman said it was a mistake to have sent a U.S. force into Lebanon because the United States is seen as a partisan force and the principal backer of Israel.

He said he was skeptical that the civil war in Lebanon would ever be resolved because the United States views Syria as tough and radically uncompromising.

The probability of Soviet domination in the Middle East is not very strong, he said. "They are, if anything, cautious. I don't think they would test us on Israel, the Persian Gulf or Western Europe."

The Persian Gulf is another area of importance in U.S. Middle East policy, Tillman said. Citizens of two warring nations — Iran and Iraq — are convinced that an end to the conflict rested in the hands of the superpowers, he said.

"Superpowers have vital interests in the region," said Tillman, who recently visited Iran and Iraq. If the Persian Gulf were closed, or even threatened to be closed, a worldwide oil crisis could result.

Tillman advocated the possibility of a superpower collaboration between the United States and the Soviet Union to bring an end to the conflict, but he said, "I doubt it would sell to the current administration." Such a partnership would test Soviet cooperation and invite them to participate in a joint mediating role, he said.

Tillman's lecture, titled "U.S. Foreign Policy in Lebanon/the Middle East," was sponsored by the UNC International Center.

Grenada

heroes of freedom," Reagan said. "They not only rescued our own citizens, but they saved the people of Grenada from repression and laid aside a potential threat to all the people of the Caribbean."

In Grenada, the governor general said Thursday he will name a non-political transitional government by early next week, and added that elections might not be held for a year.

Sixteen Libyans who had been in Grenada, including four diplomats, left for London on a U.S. military plane. Preparations continued to evacuate 49 Soviet citizens and members of the Cuban diplomatic mission, although the Cubans said they would not leave until the estimated 600 Cuban prisoners being held on Grenada are repatriated.

Diplomatic sources in Mexico City said the Soviets and about 40 Libyans, Bulgarians, East Germans and North Koreans would be flown from Grenada to Mexico by the U.S. Air Force.

After Governor General Sir Paul Scoon's order earlier this week that the Cubans leave the country, U.S. paratroopers surrounded the Cuban Embassy, not allowing anyone in or out except top officials taken under guard to meetings with State Department representatives.

Scoon said the Cuban prisoners would leave in a day or two.

The governor general is a Grenadian appointed to his largely ceremonial post by Britain's Queen Elizabeth II in her capacity as titular head of state of Grenada and head of the Commonwealth. He spoke at his residence about Grenada's future and said "We are not having politicians on this government."

"We will have a government of technocrats," he said. "I am looking for Grenadians of ability, integrity, knowledge and skill."

Scoon said the elections may not be held until this time next year because it will take that long to set up a bureaucracy that can oversee voter registration and balloting.

Charles Gillespie of the U.S. State Department said Bernard Coard and Gen. Hudson Austin, leaders of the bloody coup that precipitated the U.S.-led invasion, would be turned over to Grenadian authorities in a day or so.

Coard and Austin, who went into hiding but were captured last weekend, were being held on an American helicopter aircraft carrier.

Officials on the island also were preparing for the schedule arrival Friday of a group of U.S. congressmen on a fact-finding mission.

As more American troops prepared to leave the island, Gillespie said he believes there will be "no need" for U.S. military presence here six months from now.

Air Force Gen. Robert Patterson said 1,800 members of the Army's 82nd Airborne Division would be flown out Friday morning. They are expected to return to the divisional base at Fort Bragg.
