Gorbachev named No. 2 man in Kremlin

The Associated Press

MOSCOW - Mikhail S. Gorbachev gave crucial endorsement to Konstantin U. Chernenko and is now the No. 2 man in the Kremlin, a highly placed Soviet source

The 52-year-old agriculture specialist, the youngest man on the ruling Politburo, was reputed to be Yuri V. Andropov's choice as successor.

With Chernenko selected to lead the country as general secretary of the Communist Party, Gorbachev's powerful new role was first suggested by his position next to Chernenko at ceremonies in honor of Andropov.

Then it was announced on television Wednesday night that Gorbachev had made a previously undisclosed statement at the Central Committee Plenum Monday that named Chernenko leader.

The Gorbachev statement appears in a brochure of speeches obtained by The Associated Press on Thursday in advance of publication. The brochure indicated Gorbachev, speaking "on behalf of the Politburo," closed the meeting with an endorsement of Chernenko.

Some Western observers considered Gorbachev a strong contender for the leadership after Andropov's

A Western diplomat speculated that Gorbachev's endorsement of Chernenko meant there was an implicit recognition within the Kremlin leadership that his backing was necessary to win Chernenko the post.

A highly placed Soviet source told a Western delegaredistricting took place in 1980. In 1976, Lee also ran unsuccessfully for lieutenant governor against Jimmy Green. From 1977 to 1981, Lee served in Gov. Jim Hunt's administration. Since then he has been an instructor in the UNC School of Social Work before resigning Jan. 31 to run for Congress.

Lee, 49 and a native of Lithonia, Ga., has lived in Chapel Hill since 1964. Lee said he expected a strong challenge from both Andrews and Cobey. "My toughest race will be against Andrews, as incumbents are much harder to campaign against," Lee said. Andrews is running for his sixth term. "But this is not a time" to look back and criticize, but to look ahead and commit to specific proposals." Lee also will face John Winters Jr., a businessman from Raleigh, in the Democratic primary.

"As a candidate in this race, I feel I'm much more experienced as a politician with fairly high name recognition," Lee said. "I'm running in a district where there is a strong desire for change."

Financial support is Lee's biggest problem of his campaign, but he said he would stress grass-roots organizational campaigning and would attend small group meetings to meet as many people as he could. "I'll depend on a lot of volunteers for a successful campaign," he said. "Students just might be the key to winning this election."

Radio advertising, as well as printed materials, would be Lee's means of advertising, but he stressed the need for per-

Walker Blakey, a professor at the UNC School of Law, said disqualifying a candidate for submitting a late financial report was an especially harsh penalty. He noted that almost all U.S. presidential candidates commit violations and are required only to pay a fine.

"In a lot of what we teach at the Law School, forfeiture (disqualification) is too extreme a penalty,' Blakev said.

Alex K. Brock, director of the state Board of Elections, said he would probably be "thrown out of office" by the General Assembly if he disqualified a candidate for turning in a campaign spending report

Brock added he was often called about universities' elections laws but has no jurisdisction in those cases.

"I don't mean to be abrupt, but we really don't care what UNC has as an election process," Brock said. "We have no jurisdiction there, and we're not concerned with how the elections laws work."

While not specifically mentioning requirements concerning financial statements, Sutherland said he would ask the Campus Governing Council to approve "sweeping changes" to the Elections Laws once the elections process is concluded.

Sutherland noted that the current Elections Board took office 19 days before the election, while the CGC must approve changes to the laws at least 21 days

From staff and wire reports

WASHINGTON - R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co.'s new advertising campaign calling for an "open debate" about smoking is a "smokescreen" to confuse the public about the hazards of cigarettes, three major health groups charged Thursday.

The American Cancer Society, the American Heart Association and the American Lung Association joined to condemn Reynolds' planned new series of advertisements concerning smoking and health.

The company announced last month that it would place ads in national newspapers and magazines that would call for a debate on the causal link between smoking and diseases.

Cancer Society President Dr. Gerald P. Murphy called the campaign "callous" and said Reynolds was making a subtle attempt to "make something that is not reasonable seem as if it were."

WASHINGTON — Construction of new homes jumped 15 percent in January to the highest level in five years, the government said Thursday as it released a series of upbeat reports which one analyst described as a "red letter day" for the economy.

The government also reported that Americans' personal incomes rose a sharp 1.1 percent during January, and U.S. industry operated at its highest rate in more than two years. In addition, jobless claims fell again in the first week of February to the secondlowest level in more than four years.

The Reagan administration, which is counting on brisk economic growth this election year, welcomed the new reports as further proof that the recovery from the 1981-82 recession is showing no signs of abating.

SARAJEVO, Yugoslavia -Americans Bill Johnson and Scott Hamilton each won gold medals at the XIV Winter Olympics on Thursday. Johnson, as he promised, beat all comers in men's downhill skiing, while Hamilton apologized for not doing better in the finals of men's figure skating.

"This is both America's medal and mine," said Johnson, the 23-year-old Californian who became the first American man to win a gold medal in Olympic Alpine skiing. "Now America has it."

Hamilton, dressed in red, white and blue, waved a huge American flag on his victory skate around the Zetra rink. He was the first American to win the men's figures since David Jenkins in Squaw Valley in 1960, and he won despite finishing second to Brian Orser of Canada in the freestyle program.

U.S. Supreme Court Chief Justice Warren Burger said Thursday that opponents of North Carolina's redistricting plan have until Tuesday to file a response to the state's appeal of a ruling striking down parts of the plan.

On Tuesday, the state filed an appeal of last month's ruling by a threejudge federal panel. The ruling said parts of the state's 1982 redistricting plan violate the Voting Rights Act. although some districts were declared non-discriminatory by federal of-

Las Vegas oddsmakers listed The Daily Tar Heel as 7-5 odds to capture the Student Newspaper Invitational Tournament that tips off in Chapel Hill this weekend. Betting was said to be heavy.

The Tar Heels, the defending SNIT champions, will join six other Atlantic Coast Conference college newspapers in competing for the coveted SNIT crown.

Stretch Ledford, Daily Tar Heels captain, said the odds should be 10-1 in favor of his team.

"We're goin' Park Avenue," Ledford said. "We've got more 7-footers than journalists."
