

Love, UNC put it all together to take ACC golf title

By SCOTT CANTERBERRY

People who have been waiting for the UNC golf team to put it all together this spring need not wait any longer.

The Tar Heels finally lived up to their preseason eight-place national ranking as they breezed to a 24-stroke victory in this weekend's ACC tournament at Pinehurst.

Led by individual champion Davis Love, the Tar Heels used a solid team effort to turn an opening day two-shot deficit into a 14-stroke advantage Saturday.

Sunday's final-round play was a mere formality as the Tar Heels won their third ACC championship in the past four years.

Love, who fired a 70 and 68 on the first two days, closed with a 75 on a dreary

Sunday to earn a four-stroke victory over Wake Forest's Jerry Haas.

But the key to the win was the solid effort of the entire team. UNC had five of the top 11 finishers, including four of the top seven.

"We've talked about having five solid scores all year," coach Devon Brouse said. "That's what we've been looking for."

Former ACC champion John Inman shot a final-round 76 to finish in fourth place with a three-day total of 222. Sophomores Kurt Beck and Bryan Sullivan were right behind at 223 and 224, respectively. Todd Thiele another sophomore, finished at 227 for the tournament, tied for 11th.

Surprisingly, the victory came only a week after UNC and Clemson (with Wake only a few shots behind), battled to a 54-hole deadlock before the Tar Heels won in sudden death at Finley Golf Course.

But Wake finished a distant second and Clemson ended up third at Pinehurst.

Entering Saturday's second round trailing both Georgia Tech and Duke, the Tar Heels shot a three-under par 285 to take a 14-stroke advantage by the end of the day.

However, Brouse said he was not worried after Friday's finish.

He said the team played very solid during the first round except for some bad breaks on the last holes.

He said the difference between Friday's and Saturday's rounds were those same holes. "Instead of losing four strokes, we picked up four strokes on Saturday."

Sunday's round of 303, tied with Clemson for team honors for the day's best round.

Brouse said Love put together his best spring tournament this weekend. Love, the NCAA long-driving champ, entered the final round with a five stroke lead. His 75 was the day's third best individual round.

"Anytime you put someone with Davis' ball striking ability on Pinehurst's No. 2, good things are going to happen," Brouse said.

Love's victory gives him All-America status for the second straight year. The team victory earned UNC the ACC's automatic berth in the NCAA tournament.

Despite the 24-stroke victory, Brouse said the team is still capable of playing better golf.

"There's always room for improvement," he said. "We will make improvements before the NCAAs."

The NCAA tournament will be held in Houston, Texas in three weeks.

UNC women 2nd in ACC golf

By KIMBALL CROSSLEY
Staff Writer

Things don't always go as planned.

Just ask someone who spent Easter weekend trying to get a tan, or a member of the North Carolina women's golf team that stayed near home this weekend to compete in the first ACC women's golf tournament at Duke University.

A day before the three-day competition began Friday, coach Dot Gunnells proclaimed rather boldly, "We're gonna win." But Sunday Gunnells had to settle for a second-place finish in the four-team tournament. Not bad considering that only host fifth-ranked Duke, playing at home, finished with a lower stroke total than the Tar Heels.

In fact, with only nine holes to go in the 54 hole tournament, North Carolina trailed Duke by just one stroke. But then as the rain came down and temperatures dropped, so did the Blue Devil scores.

Four Duke golfers had scores under 40 in what Duke coach Ron Schmid called his team's best back nine of the season. The outstanding run gave Duke a tournament total of 924, ahead of North Carolina's 936. Wake Forest, only five strokes back before the final nine, finished 18 back at 942. N.C. State brought up the rear with a 952.

Duke's run came as its top golfers, All-American Mary Anne Widman, although struggling through her worst round of the tournament, won the individual competition. Widman's 81 gave her a 224 for the tournament, two strokes better than Wake's Brenda Corrie and three better than UNC's Page Marsh.

Gunnells said the weather was not a factor in her team's showing, although one golfer, Linda Mescan, who has a bad back, probably was affected by the cold.

Gunnells said the team has not yet ruled out the possibilities of qualifying for the NCAA tournament and being ranked in the Top 20, but for now will just be concentrating on this weekend's Southern Intercollegiate in Athens, Ga., a tournament featuring 16 of the better teams in the country.

Hearn wins ACC championship at No. 2 singles

By DAVID WELLS
Staff Writer

The Tar Heels' Wayne Hearn won the second flight singles championship at the ACC men's tennis tournament this weekend at College Park, Md., leading North Carolina to a third place finish behind Clemson and Maryland.

The Tar Heels advanced to the semifinals in all six singles flights, but only Ron Erskine and Mark DeMattheis reached the semi-finals in doubles, where they lost to Maryland's Alfonso Mora and Scott Woldychak at the No. 2 seed.

Hearn was North Carolina's only final winner, as he defeated Rick Rudeen of Clemson, 7-6, 4-6, 7-5 to capture the second-seed ACC championship. UNC's Eddie Stewart reached the finals in the fifth flight, but lost to Richard Matuszewski of Clemson, 3-6, 3-6.

Matuszewski was one of four Clemson players who won singles championships. The Tigers, who took their fourth conference title in the last five years, won all three of the doubles titles and clinched the ACC team championship in the semi-final round.

Coach Allen Morris was not pleased with North Carolina's performance. "We didn't play up to our potential," Morris said. "The doubles competition really hurt us. We only won one doubles match the first day."

"I was surprised Clemson completely dominated the tournament," he said. "They had a chance to sweep the finals round."

Morris said he had hoped for North Carolina to challenge Clemson for the team title, since Erskine had returned from a wrist injury. But the Tar Heels barely hung on to third place.

"Since (we) had only lost to Clemson 5-4 in the regular season," Morris said, "It would indicate that we would give Clemson a hard time."

He said that UNC had lost its momentum at the end of the regular season, following losses to both Virginia and Maryland, 5-4, in its last ACC matches.

The team that finished strong turned out to be Maryland rather than North Carolina. "Maryland is spending a lot of money on their tennis program, trying to get it back into shape," Morris said.
