Clemson

"Our whole object was to not let them get the ball inside," said McCants, who scored 10 points and added eight rebounds. "We were fronting them very well."

This is the first time since 1964 that UNC has lost three consecutive ACC games, which puts the Tar Heels in a bind.

"We're a big question mark and we've got to stick together," Peterson said. "We've been having these bad breaks lately."

The victory was especially sweet for the Tigers, who have always had trouble against UNC. "Defense, defense, is all we talked about this week," guard Vincent Hamilton said. "To hold them to 50 points is unbelievable. This is definitely the biggest win of my career." Hamilton, who hit most of his buckets from the perimeter, was instrumental in keeping the Tigers in striking distance throughout the game.
