

Tar Heel lacrosse turns lights out on Duke in 11-9 win Baseball

Three minutes before the UNC-Duke lacrosse game was supposed to start Wednesday night, the lights over the field suddenly flicked off. They flicked on again 15 minutes later and the game began. After three quarters, as far as Duke was concerned, the lights might as well have stayed off. UNC led 10-4. But Duke mounted a comeback in the final quarter, scoring four straight goals to cut the UNC lead to two before the Tar Heels regained their composure and hung on to win 11-9.

North Carolina (5-2) built its 10-4 lead in the first three quarters behind strong defense on both ends of the field. At the Duke end, the UNC attackmen and midfielders forechecked effectively, forcing the Duke defensemen to work hard just to get the ball across midfield. "We tried to play really aggressively (because) we thought they might try to slow the tempo down," said Mac Ford, UNC's leading scorer, who had four goals in the game. Several times the fierce forechecking resulted in a steal and a quick Tar Heel goal.

The UNC defense was effective in its own end by packing in and forcing the Duke offense out away from the goal. UNC goalie Tim Mealey spent most of the game watching a deliberate Duke offense pass the ball around the perimeter at a safe distance from his goal. When the Duke attackmen did penetrate, Mealey made some difficult saves. North Carolina defenseman Boyd Harden said that the Tar Heel defense just adjusted to Duke's style of attack. "We were just spreading out with them, playing man-to-man," Harden said. "We just had problems with the outside shots." Several of Duke's goals were scored on long shots that took unreliable bounces off the patchy turf.

The UNC offense through the first three quarters was very aggressive but a little sloppy. "They denied us the pass and challenged our speed," Ford said, "so we went straight at them." The attack was mechanical if not flashy, but the frigid temperatures hardly encouraged any flair. With temperatures in the 30's at halftime, the shivering fans joked about a mythical zamboni that would drive out to smooth the frozen field.

The turning point in the game came with 13:34 left to play, when a Duke goal was disallowed because of a quick whistle on a UNC penalty. The Tar Heels had lifted many of their starters after their tenth goal late in the third period, and Duke took advantage of the substitutions and a general lapse of concentration by UNC to mount a comeback. "We seemed to lose some intensity," said UNC Coach Willie Scroggs. "They did a lot better job of handling the pressure late in the game." In the final minutes, Duke had several chances to pull within one goal, but the UNC defense held, and with 1:09 remaining Mac Ford scored his fourth goal to put the Tar Heels up 11-8 and out of reach. Duke scored a last-gasp goal with :11 seconds left in the game, but it was too little too late.

said. "He's really picked us up."

Grossman kept his team in the game, pitching out of trouble when Matt Peluso and Howard Freiling got singles in the seventh. He also stranded Lauria in the eighth before his teammates picked up the slack and the fireworks began.

A problem that concerned Roberts was the Tar Heels' inability to hold the late lead. "We've got to learn to play nine innings," he said. "One area that's not been as strong as some others has been our bullpen."

"But when things like this happen, with maturity, they'll make you a better team," he said.

When asked whether he thought N.C. State had a jinx on his team, Roberts kind of laughed. "I don't think anyone has a jinx on North Carolina."

• Tar Heel notes: Second baseman Mike Jedziniak broke his left thumb attempting a bunt in Monday's game at UNC-Wilmington. The thumb is swollen up like a balloon, but he hopes to back in the lineup by this weekend, or at least by the ACC tournament next week in Atlanta. "I can hit all right, but I can't fit the finger in my mitt," Jedziniak said. . . . Catcher-designated hitter Matt Merullo, recently sidelined because of a split finger from a foul ball, should be ready to play today, Roberts said. . . . One of last year's relief aces, Gordon Douglas, pitched four strong innings Tuesday at Campbell and may be able to help the Tar Heels in the tournament. "He pitched as well as he has since his surgery," Roberts said.

OVER 100 YEARS AGO FREDERIC MILLER MADE A CLEAR COMMITMENT.

To Quality. To Purity.
To America.
And That Tradition Continues...

When Frederic Miller came to America from Germany, he wasn't much different from any other newcomer.

Like millions of others, he saw in America a golden opportunity—to bring his brewing skills to their peak, using the finest resources in the world.

Frederic Miller made the most of what America had to offer. He made the best beer he knew how to make, using the finest grains and hops, the purest water.

And to show America the quality and purity of his beer, he insisted on putting it in clear bottles.

A lot has changed since Frederic Miller's day. But a lot hasn't.

Miller still uses the finest ingredients and brewing skills. It contains no additives or preservatives.

And Miller still comes in the same clear bottles.

For the same clear reasons.
