

Jordan, Worthy in charity game

Gone, but not forgotten . . .
 Actually, they're not even gone. A whole truckload of former Atlantic Coast Conference basketball stars will be back in the Piedmont area when they play in the "AAC (Athletes Against Crime) Children's Basketball Shootout," Sept. 14 in Greensboro Coliseum.

The list of North Carolina alumni competing is as long as it is impressive. Tar Heels committed to participate in the game are Michael Jordan, James Worthy, Sam Perkins, Bob McAdoo, Mitch Kupchak, Walter Davis, Dudley Bradley, Mike O'Koren, Phil Ford and Al Wood. Perkins, presently of the NBA's Dallas Mavericks, will be co-chairman of the benefit basketball game along with North Carolina First Lady Dottie Martin, wife of Gov. Jim Martin.

George Karl, another former UNC player, will coach one of the teams. He is the coach of the NBA's Cleveland Cavaliers, and will bring two of his players, Roy Hinson and Phil Hubbard, to play.

The game is being sponsored by Athletes Against Crime, an ongoing program within the Crime Prevention Division. Through the program, which is under the direction of another former UNC star, Bill Chamberlain, college and professional athletes get involved in promoting crime prevention projects.

Alumni of N.C. State expected at the game include Thurl Bailey, Lorenzo Charles, Spud Webb and Dereck Whittenburg. Mike Gminski, a former Duke Blue Devil, will be there, as will Norm Nixon, formerly of Duquesne and now with the Los Angeles Clippers. Other players are expected to be added.

Scrimmage Scraps

Georgia Tech head football coach Bill Curry praised the performance of his defensive secondary after the team's practice Sunday.

The secondary returns seniors Mike Travis and Cleve Pounds and juniors Reginald Rutland and Anthony Harrison.

"We had some really good coverage by some of our defensive backs," Curry said.

• Quarterback Eric Kramer completed nine of his first 10 passes to lead

N.C. State's No. 1 offense to two quick scores in a rain-delayed scrimmage Sunday.

While heartened by the fine play of his offense, Wolfpack coach Tom Reed was worried about his new wide tackle six defense.

"The jury is still out on our defense," Reed said. "With or without the wet field, we still need some work."

Mangled Bits and Pieces

Dwight Gooden, the New York Met righthander, equaled his age with his 20th victory of the season Sunday against San Diego. Gooden has won 14 consecutive games and is the youngest pitcher ever to win 20 in a year, surpassing Bob Feller's record . . . Roger Maltbie won the NEC World Series of Golf by four shots . . . Carl Lewis lost his third race in a row in Cologne, West Germany . . . Boris Becker defeated Mats Wilander 6-4, 6-2 in the Association of Tennis Professionals tennis championship Sunday . . . Former Chicago Bears running back Gale Sayers was named interim athletic director at Tennessee State University.

Michael Jordan, shown here in search of the perfect gorilla slam, will be the prime attraction in a star-studded basketball lineup that will perform in the 'Athletes Against Crime Basketball Shootout' Sept. 14 in Greensboro.

Maintain contacts for job hunt

By STEVE AUSTIN
 Syndicated Columnist

Dear Steven: I'll be graduating this year and really want to get the jump on the competition in the job market. I'll be sending out a few pre-resumes during the year but feel I need to take some additional steps to make sure I have every advantage next spring. Any hints?

— Ready To Work In

Dear Ready: This might sound like a lot of work but it's not: Begin keeping a special address book from day one of classes. This would contain the names, addresses and phone numbers of those you think will be able to offer some job-finding assistance in the future. During the school year you're bound to meet individuals who'll say, "Contact me when you're finished with school. Maybe I can help you out." Well, most persons forget those names (usually written on cocktail napkins) a week later. I began compiling a mailing list about five years ago, and I really think its upkeep is highly responsible for my success in the advice column

straight up

world. It has helped me with everything from getting on the Donahue show to being invited out to dinner with various soap opera stars. A dollar investment now can pay off big before you know it. Good luck.

Dear Steven: Is it necessary to tip someone if all I'm getting is a selection from a salad bar? I eat lunch at the same place every day, and all the waiter ever does is keep my iced tea glass filled.

— No Work, No Tip

Dear Tip: Well, one day you may be very thirsty or want to order something from the full menu, and, believe me, service people have a knack for remembering the lousy tippers. A small tip would be appropriate.
