Fencers hope to sink Middies

North Carolina's final home fencing meet of the season is Saturday and the Midshipmen from Navy are coming into hostile waters for the opener at 9 a.m.
 "There is a little revenge factor going into the competition," said UNC coach Ron Miller, "because they beat us 14-13 last year at William & Mary on some questionable calls by the officials." Miller said that Navy is definitely going to be the toughest competition this weekend, with N.C. State second. North Carolina was supposed to have played Navy in the USFA tournament in Chapel Hill two weeks ago but the Midshipmen had a previous engagement and could not come.

After the Navy match, UNC will face Duke at 11 a.m., NCSU at 1 p.m., James Madison at 3 p.m. and Wofford at 5 p.m.

Miller said that the teams will not be as tough as Notre Dame was in the USFA tournament but N.C. State and Navy always are strong and provide tough competition for the Tar Heels.

Wrestlers go to war with State tonight in Raleigh

By BOB YOUNG
 Staff Writer

Yessiree wrestling fans, this is the one you've been waiting for... an ACC non-title match-up scheduled for Friday night, 7:30, Carmichael Gym, Raleigh. The Magnum T.A.R. Heels of North Carolina against the Boogie-Woogie Wolfpack of North Carolina State. Fourteenth versus eighteenth in the U.S. of A.

It'll be the Chapel Hill Wrecking Crew of Al Palacio, Lenny Bernstein, Rob Koll, Tad Wilson and Joe Silvestro against the Raleigh Road Warriors. It will be a WAR...

While there probably won't be any Airplane Spins or Atomic Drops in the match, it will be one of the most intense matches either team will have this season, if last year's battle in Chapel Hill was any indication.

The match went down to the final weight class, where N.C. State's Garrett Keith pulled out a win over Stacey Davis and gave the Wolfpack a 20-19 victory. Oops, the actual final score was 19-18, because both teams were penalized a point for "unsportsmanlike conduct."

This year's first tussle (the teams will face off once more in Chapel Hill in February) should be just as close, according to Tar Heel coach Bill Lam.

"N.C. State has an excellent team this year," he said. "We're going to have to wrestle very well to beat them."

Lam says the matches at 118, 158 and 167 are must wins for the Tar Heels, and the battles at 134, 142 and 177 will probably decide the team winner. Wrestling for UNC at those divisions will be Palacio, Koll, Wilson, Enzo Catullo, Bernstein and Silvestro, respectively.

Palacio, the defending ACC champion at 118, goes into the match ranked seventh in the country. His record of 22-3-1 gives him the second-most wins by a Tar Heel this season. Koll, the sophomore All-America at 158, is the team leader with 23 wins. He is rated fifth nationally. Wilson, another All-America, has compiled a record of 17-7-1 so far this season.

But the men with the mission are Catullo, Bernstein and Silvestro.

"We really have to win at least one of the matches at 134 and 142," Lam said. "Those matches could be the turning point in the match. And the battle at 177 will be a key battle also."

But while the entire match will be intense, it is not particularly meaningful in the long run. After all, it's still the regular season in a sport where the conference tournament is all-important. And the ACC tournament has belonged to UNC for the past two years. It is a streak that Lam fully intends to keep intact.

"I feel good about our team and the way we're wrestling right now," he said. "I think if we can stay healthy we should be able to defend our title at the ACC tournament."

Oops (again). The match with N.C. State may not be all that crucial for the team, but it does have some importance. If the Tar Heels win, it will be Lam's 150th career victory in his 13 years at North Carolina. Isn't that right, coach?

"I guess so," Lam said. "I saw that written in a press release somewhere so I suppose it's true. And if I'm going to get it, I'd just as soon get it down there as anywhere else."
