Water

The Cane Creek Reservoir was established last July as an interim water supply. OWASA has been pumping 2 million gallons a day from the reservoir, and its level has dropped by 5 feet. The Stone Quarry Reservoir in Hillsborough was four feet below full when vandals emptied 10 million of the reservoir's 24 million gallons of water over the weekend. The reservoir was within two feet of full on Monday, because more water than anticipated was able to be released from Lake Orange, Davis said.

The Cane Creek Reservoir was expected to alleviate any further shortages, but a drought as severe as the one now being experienced could not be anticipated, Billingsly said.

"Water systems are designed with a 95 percent confidence rate, so we anticipate not being able to adequately meet the water needs of the community about one year in 20," he said. "This drought event, though, is the worst since 1890, and there is no way we could have prepared for it."

OWASA plans to ask for second stage modified mandatory water conservation measures next week.

The second stage guidelines increase the number of conservation measures, and some violations of the guidelines can carry civil penalties. Violators of the second stage may be fined up to $50 or receive 30 days in jail. In some extreme cases OWASA can cut off water service to those who refuse to comply. It will be unlawful to water lawns except between 6 a.m. and 9 a.m. Saturday on the south side of Highway 54 and Franklin Street and during the same hours on the north side on Sunday. It will also be illegal to fill newly constructed swimming pools and wading pools, wash cars, serve water in restaurants or waste water unnecessarily by any means, Billingsly said.

The stage two guidelines are expected to be passed by OWASA's board of directors at their regular meeting on Wednesday July 9, and they will be fully implemented in the following days, Billingsly said.

Harry's

"I've warmed many a bench at Harry's," he added with a smile. Vaughn was involved with the Tar Heel in 1961 when King was editor. "We were the only daily newspaper in the county and the only paper that was pro-integration. It was scary."

At the party held Saturday afternoon, ne'er-do-wells of 20 years ago mingled with each other, drinking beer and eating barbecued pig. Some described it as mind-boggling. "I would never have recognized some of these people if they hadn't have told me who they were," reported one reunionite who asked that his name not be mentioned. He was a member of the International Student Center, whose members made up the international crew at Harry's. "Sometimes we had as many as four different languages going at once," he reminisced. Some agreed that they had made mistakes, such as the abuse of drugs. They had played hard. For some, the psychedelics were fun but not necessary.

Many had messages to the University students today. "Find something larger than yourself," advised

Guerrilla killed by own bomb at embassy

From Associated Press reports

LIMA, Peru — A guerrilla of the Maoist group Shining Path carried a bomb into the Soviet Embassy at midday Thursday and it exploded prematurely, killing him but causing no other casualties, police reported.

Police said the guerrilla was one of five who also tossed other explosives over a 10-foot-high wall.

They exploded in a garden, shattering widows in the embassy and nearby buildings.

Officers on the scene said the bomber got inside the embassy when the door was opened for men delivering bottled cooking gas. Papers found in the area referred to "Soviet reactionaries," they said.

An embassy spokesman refused comment on the incident, one of several attacks on foreign embassies for which Shining Path guerrillas have been blamed. Bombs exploded last Friday at the Chinese and Italian embassies, and a Peruvian—Soviet cultural institute, but no casualties were reported.

Police blocked off the area, but reporters could see from outside that the entrance of the embassy building was seriously damaged.
