

UNC organizations opportunity to meet others

UNC cultivates a bevy of University-recognized organizations, activities, honor societies and campus publications to suit virtually every interest. Here's a brief description of some of them:

- The Association of International Students, located in the Frank Porter Graham Student Union, meets every Wednesday. Its purpose is to orient foreign students to American culture and life at an American university through campus activities.

- The Black Student Movement, located in the Student Union, operates through several committees that concentrate on increasing awareness of the black experience and culture. The Cultural Committee sponsors programs such as workshops, lectures and the Black Arts Festival. The Freshman Class Committee, made up of 15 to 20 freshman chosen through interviews, sponsors the BSM's Freshman Class Talent show, among other activities. The Black Ink, the BSM's official newspaper, is also located in the Student Union. The BSM Gospel Choir plays historically-influenced gospel and non-gospel music throughout the year at various locations, including cities around the nation. The Opeyo Dancers perform a variety of dances at campus locations to convey the significance of dance in the black experience.

- Campus Y, located in the Y Building on campus, sponsors many programs designed to help local charities, educate the Chapel Hill area about world issues and promote change. The group's ideals are embodied in their slogan this year, "Think Globally, Act Locally." Y projects include the Big Buddy Program, in which UNC students volunteer to become a companion to a young child; Campus-Community Link, which pairs a UNC student with a homebound elderly member of the community; and Y-Outreach, which works toward solving local problems such as hunger and heating for the poor. Y committees include the Committee for Hunger Responsibility, which aims to educate the public about local and world hunger, and Students Taking Action For Nuclear Disarmament.

- Carolina Gay and Lesbian Association, located in the Student Union, serves to educate the public about being gay and provides social activities on campus. The group sponsors an annual "Gay Awareness Week" every spring and publishes the newsletter LAMBA twice each semester.

- Carolina Students for Broyhill exists as part of a statewide organization to support N.C. Rep. Jim Broyhill in his race for the Senate seat against Democrat Terry Sanford. The group will campaign for Broyhill and hopes to sponsor visits by the congressman to campus.

- Carolina Symposium provides a two to three week series of lectures, exhibits and films concentrated on a cultural theme. The symposium occurs every two years; the topic of the 1986 program was "Technology, Society, and the Individual."

- Carolina Union Activities Board, located in the Student Union, operates through several committees to provide entertainment and education to students through movies, speakers, concerts, seminars and workshops. The president and board members are selected in the spring through open interviews and committee members are chosen in the fall. Committees include Film, Human Relations, Performing Arts, Publicity and Public Relations.

- Chimera: The UNC Fantasy and Science Fiction Club is a social organization that meets every two weeks to provide discussion, guest speakers and video showings for those who share an interest in science fiction. The group sponsors an annual convention held at the end of January called Chimera Con.

- The Clef Hangers is an a capella men's singing group that annually tours the East Coast twice and gives two or three concerts on campus. The group has 12 to 14 members and holds auditions periodically.

- Nihongo o Hanasu Kai provides students studying Japanese with a means of practicing the language with other students and native Japanese. The group meets every Thursday from noon to 2 p.m.

- North Carolina Student Legislature involves students in the legislative process of government through a mock general assembly. The individual school branches of the NCSL write and vote on bills, which are then presented to state political leaders. The NCSL holds an Annual Session in March, when all the delegates from the state present bills to the branches of different universities around the state. In March, UNC's delegation was the largest. It meets weekly and its office is located in the Student Union.

- The Radio, Television, and Motion Pictures Student Association allows RTVMP majors to meet others in the field, including students and faculty. The organization sponsors guest speakers and other activities.

- Rape and Assault Prevention Escort is a service that was established six years ago to guard the safety of women walking across campus at night. Women can call the service's operator, who then dispatches an escort to meet her. Escorts are selected by their dorm RAs.

- The Residence Hall Association, located in the Student Union, serves as a go-between for students and University Housing, voicing the concerns of dorm residents to University officials. RHA also helps to fund and plan all-campus events, such as Springfest, and makes policy decisions concerning students. The RHA president is elected in the spring, at the same time as the student body president, and other appointed positions are available.

- Sociedad Hispania Carolinesa sponsors events designed to increase awareness of Hispanic life and culture. The organization's office is Dey Hall 014-A.

- Student Congress, the legislative branch of Student Government, decides how to divide student funds among University-recognized organizations and votes on other issues concerning the campus. Members are elected by their districts in the spring.

- Student Consumer Action Union, located in the Carolina Union, looks out for the student consumer. It publishes, among other things, the "Southern Part of Heaven," an area apartment guide, and the "Franklin Street Gourmet" restaurant guide. SCAU also operates a Roommate Referral Service in the spring, a Comparison Shopper service and complaint mediation. Positions are available for students in writing, editing, complaints, the computer staff and other areas.

- Student Government, Executive Branch includes the offices of president, vice-president and executive committee members. This body researches various issues such as drinking on campus and parking problems, among many other things.

Students can become involved by filling out an application in Suite C of the Student Union.

- Student Government, Judicial Branch, part of the University Honor System, comprises the Office of the Student Attorney General and the Undergraduate Honor Court, which hears the cases of student honor code violators. Applications for the staff and court are also available in Suite C.

- The UNC Anti-Apartheid Support Group is designed to educate students about the injustices being committed in South Africa. The group regularly holds protests; last year they constructed shanties on campus to simulate the conditions facing blacks under the apartheid system of government. The group meets weekly in the Student Union.

- The UNC Loreleis is an a capella singing group of 12 women that performs two concerts at UNC annually, as well as for alumni and community organizations.
