

Men's soccer plagued by inconsistencies

By MIKE MACKAY
Staff Writer

The host UNC men's soccer team opened its season Labor Day weekend by finishing runner-up in the North Carolina Invitational, losing 2-1 in the final to the University of Central Florida despite having twice as many shots on goal as the Knights.

On Saturday, the Tar Heels demolished a strong team from the University of Massachusetts, 3-0. The next day, North Carolina made a crucial defensive mistake in overtime that allowed the Knights to take the tournament plaque back to Orlando.

"We've got to build from here," said assistant coach Geoff Griffin. "It was a tough loss, but it concerns me only if we don't learn from it."

From the start of action on Saturday, the Minutemen from Massachusetts were on the defensive against a sharp UNC offense.

Starting from an offensive that began out of the Tar Heels' zone defense, Dino Megaloudis made a run down the left side and sent a perfect cross from 30 yards out to Donald Cogsville, who headed the ball to put UNC ahead, 1-0.

"Dino put the ball right there and there was really nothing I could do besides put it in the goal," Cogsville said.

The first half ended with the Minutemen managing only a few misfires on goal that might as well have been aimed at nearby Navy Field.

In the second half, the Tar Heels once again got off to a quick start when Tommy Nicholson passed to David Smyth, who dribbled past two defenders and blasted the ball past the outstretched arms of the Massachusetts goalkeeper.

After another offensive set up off a steal by the UNC defense, Tommy Nicholson made a short assist to Mark Devey, a senior forward returning this year after missing last season for academic reasons, who tallied the final goal from 15 feet in UNC's victory.

A key to the Tar Heel's success at controlling the midfield during the game was Reid Storch.

"Reid Storch really won the midfield and regained possession for us a phenomenal number of times," Dorrance said. "If he continues to play a simple game by not holding onto the ball too long, he can be one of the finest players in the conference."

Sunday was a different story for the Tar Heels, as their offense lacked that extra ingredient to capitalize on outshooting Central Florida.

"They really didn't create any real scoring chances out of their offense," Dorrance said. "Their two goals were basically the result of the failure to clear a ball and a mistake by our goalkeeper's part on coming out."

UNC looked as if it would make short work of the Knights when the team jumped ahead 1-0 on a short shot by Jon Troutman off another assist by Tommy Nicholson, his third of the tournament.

Although the Knights were rarely able to penetrate UNC's zone defense, they took advantage of their opportunities.

A few minutes after the UNC goal, Central Florida made a fast break down the right side after a Tar Heel defender stumbled. A centerback was forced to make up for the empty space by tackling the attacker, setting up an indirect kick from a normally safe area about 40 yards out.

But normalities were not to be on this play, as goalkeeper Darren Royer put himself out of position by following the shot, which was then knocked towards the center of the goal. There it found the eager toe of the Knight's David Hunt, who promptly tied the game at 1-1.

The score remained tied until the second 10-minute overtime, when Central Florida launched an offensive after stealing the ball from a UNC midfielder who dribbled into double coverage.

The table was then set for the Knights' Tony Walsh, the tournament's MVP, who was in the right spot at the right time and blasted a shot into the corner of the goal that gave UCF the tournament title.

"I don't even remember what happened," Walsh said. "The ball came out from a defender. I controlled it and the ball went in... unbelievable."

Women's soccer takes own tourney title

The UNC women's soccer team played Central Florida University to a 1-1 tie in overtime Sunday night at Fetzer Field to close out the first North Carolina Invitational Tournament.

The Tar Heels were, however, declared the winners of the tournament because of the margin of victory in their 4-0 defeat of the University of Massachusetts on Saturday.

After playing to a scoreless tie in the first half, senior forward and team captain April Heinrichs scored the game's first goal on a penalty kick 6:54 into the second half.

Four minutes later, UCF sophomore forward Michelle Akers followed with a penalty kick to tie the score.

UNC head coach Anson Dorrance said the game on Saturday was very emotional and may have affected the team's play on Sunday.

"I was very surprised with the margin of victory (Saturday) because last year they (Massachusetts) beat us 2-0 and they returned their entire team," Dorrance said. "We played with a tremendous amount of intensity and that was the difference in that game. I think we came out today with a little less excitement. It's hard to get that up for every game."

Nevertheless, he said UCF played an exceptional game.

"I think UCF played inspired today," Dorrance said.

Despite the tie, Dorrance said he was pleased with his team after their first two games.

"I'm pretty pleased with where we are at this point," Dorrance said. "If this is an indication of how we can look after 16 days of practice, then we're going to continue to improve as the season goes on."

In Saturday's game against Massachusetts, Carla Werden put in the first goal minutes into the game. Werden was helped with an assist by Marcia McDermott.

The second goal was kicked in by Heinrichs, as was the third with 22:03 remaining in the first half. McDermott also got the assists with both of Heinrichs' goals.

UMass had a spectacular shot with 13:35 left in the half as Catherine Cassidy broke away and went one-on-one with UNC goalie Kathleen O'Dell. Pressure from O'Dell forced the shot upward where it hit the top of the goal and bounced straight down.

The half ended with UNC ahead 3-0.

Gretchen Gegg stepped in for O'Dell in the second half and continued to hold the Minutewomen scoreless. The final UNC goal was scored by Julie Guarotta 25 minutes into the period. The goal was assisted by Bettina Bernardi and Heinrichs.

Dorrance was excited with the way his team played in the victory. "I'm overjoyed with their performance," he said. "We played with so much intensity and strength. I couldn't have asked for a better first game."

"The only problem I feel we have to deal with is a better all-around defense," Dorrance said. "But that's about it. I'm really very happy."

Heinrichs was named tournament MVP, leading UNC in scoring with two goals on Saturday and one on Sunday.

UNC placed four players on the All-Tournament team: Heinrichs, McDermott, Werden and junior forward Carrie Serwetnyk.

In the other game Sunday, defending national champion George Mason tied Massachusetts 1-1 in overtime, after beating Central Florida 2-1 in overtime on Saturday. The Lady Patriots finished second in the tournament.

George Mason head coach Hank Leung said this weekend was valuable for evaluating his team, especially since he is starting five freshmen this year.

"I really didn't know where our team was at this point," Leung said. "I was extremely pleased by the freshmen we had."
