Wake

backfield for the upcoming N.C. State game. Derrick Fenner (left shoulder), Brad Lopp (right shoulder) and Hall (knee) were all banged up by Wake defenders. None of the injuries are believed extremely serious, however, and all three may play this week.

Fenner, the ACC's leading rusher, had gained 82 yards on 12 carries, including one 33-yard jaunt, before going down late in the first quarter. With North Carolina up 14-0, Wake linebacker Jimmie Simmons hit Fenner hard at the UNC eight-yard line, forcing a fumble which the Deacons' Ronnie Grinton recovered. On the very next play, Elkins hit Chip Rives on a seven-yard touchdown pass to cut UNC's lead to 14-7 with 53 seconds left in the quarter. The points were the first scored on North Carolina in the opening period this season.

In the absence of Fenner and Lopp, James Thompson (86 yards), Torin Dorn (45 yards) and Eric Starr (45 yards) performed effectively. But who wouldn't, running behind an offensive line that outweighed the Wake front four by an average of 56 pounds per man?

Hall had staked the Tar Heels to an early lead with scoring passes of seven yards to John Keller and 20 yards to Randy Marriott. The tosses capped drives of 79 and 80 yards and came on UNC's first two possessions.

After Wake Forest pulled within 14-10, the Tar Heel defense struck. On a third-and-nine play from his own three, Elkins rolled back into the end zone and to his left and fired a pass over the middle to wideout Greg Scales. From out of nowhere, Danny Burmeister came flying in front of Scales and made a diving interception at the Wake 17.

"That was their bootleg play. I knew it was coming," said Burmeister, a 6-2, 213-pound senior free safety. "The coaches just did a real good job of preparing me for that play. I knew what the pattern was going to be from the scouting reports."

Two plays later, Hall hit Quint Smith in the end zone. Lee Gliarmis missed the extra point, keeping the score at 20-10 with 5:36 to go before the intermission.

On the next series, Elkins was picked off again, this time by Donald after a terrible overthrow of intended receiver Ricky Proehl. Donald returned Elkins' misfire 53 yards to the Wake eight to set up another UNC gimme. Hall quickly hit Eric Lewis for his fourth scoring pass and a 27-10 UNC halftime lead.

"We made him think out there today," UNC defensive tackle Reuben Davis said of Elkins. "And I don't think the guy had to think that much a lot of times this year."

After Hall swept four yards around right end on the first play of the fourth quarter, it was 37-17 in favor of the Tar Heels and the issue seemed settled.

Somebody forgot to tell Elkins and Co. that, however. The Deacons put together rapid-fire touchdown drives of 73 and 52 yards, sandwiched around UNC's only three-and-out series of the day. Suddenly, with 9:24 to play, the Tar Heel lead was only 37-30 and things got a bit antsy on the visiting sideline.

"I think we got ahead by 20 and said 'Boy, this is more than two touchdowns! We can hold this,'" Burmeister said. "Then they came roaring back. If I said they didn't scare us, I'd be lying."

Senior ticket pickup Tuesday

The Carolina Athletic Association will once again reserve sections 17 and 18 at the N.C. State homecoming games for current students who will graduate by May 1987, including graduate students.

The only restrictive stipulation is that students must have a Student ID which designates them as seniors.

The scare was relieved after Gliarmis hit a 40-yard field goal to cap a 58-yard 10-play UNC drive and push the margin back up to 10. Two key plays in the march kept the drive alive and Elkins off the field: Hall's 21-yard completion to Eric Streater on third-and-12 from the North Carolina 17, and freshman Torin Dorn's 35-yard scamper on third-and-seven from the UNC 41-yard line.

Wake made one last penetration into Tar Heel territory, reaching the 20 with five minutes to go. But Ron Burton dropped Elkins for a loss of seven yards and Tim Goad knocked his next pass down as the Deacons stalled and were forced to turn the ball over on downs.

Now North Carolina goes into Saturday's matchup with N.C. State as the only remaining undefeated team in the conference. Are the Tar Heels surprised by their success thus far? "As a ballclub, we're not surprised," receiver Eric Lewis said. "Maybe some of the fans are surprised, saying 'What's going on here?' But we're not."

Distribution will be Tuesday from 1-5 p.m. at the Will Call window at the Smith Center. Each qualified student may pick up two tickets, one for himself and one for another qualified student. No senior block tickets will be distributed to students with non-senior IDs or for guest passes.

Hall's rollout passes perfect vs. Wake

By SCOTT FOWLER
 Sports Editor

WINSTON-SALEM — Wake Forest has the kind of defense that quarterbacks dream about — punctured, porous and just plain poor. The Demon Deacons are a college version of the San Diego Chargers, seemingly using the method of making the opponent score as quickly as possible so they can get the ball back in the hands of quarterback Mike Elkins.

In Wake's three losses this season, the offense has averaged 32 points a game. But an undermanned defense has given up 42 points to N.C. State, 30 to Virginia and, on Saturday, 40 to North Carolina.

All of this spelled relief for UNC quarterback Jonathan Hall, who took time out from answering questions about when and if Mark Maye will replace him to shred the Demon Deacons for four first-half touchdown passes, and run for a four-yard TD in the fourth quarter. Four of Hall's eight first-half completions were for TDs, and his throws from the sprintout had all the snap, crackle and pop of a seasoned college quarterback.

The 19-year-old Hall spread the TD wealth liberally, hitting four different receivers for six points. On the Tar Heels' first two drives, Hall threw TD strikes of seven yards to John Keller and 20 yards to Randy Marriott. In the second quarter, he hit Quint Smith from 17 and Eric Lewis for seven to give UNC a 27-10 halftime margin.

It was undeniably Hall's day after a week filled with speculation about the damage Air Elkins would inflict on the UNC secondary. The four touchdown passes were as many as Hall had thrown in the entire season, and the touchdown run a particularly sweet icing on the cake for the sophomore from Vienna, Va.

"The only other time I scored was last year against Duke," said Hall, who finished 12-for-22 with no interceptions and 163 yards. "You have to remember those, they don't come too often."

Neither do quadruple TD games for quarterbacks of running teams. But Hall's best throw was one in the fourth quarter that didn't end up in the end zone. Wake Forest had cut the UNC lead to 37-30, and the Deacon defense forced UNC into a third-and-12 from the Tar Heel 17. Elkins had been hot in the second half, and if the Tar Heels were forced to punt it appeared nearly a certainty that Wake would tie the game.

Hall, ignoring a crowd rallied into a frenzy by a cane-brandishing mikanem at least 50 years old, rolled out as Eric Streater streaked to the Tar Heel 35 and broke to the right sideline. Before Streater turned, Hall released the ball and hit No. 25 with a perfect throw in tight coverage for a 21-yard gain and a first down. The Tar Heels got a clinching field goal from Lee Gliarmis later in the drive to account for the game's final points and defuse any realistic chance at a Wake comeback.

"I'm just glad the coaches had enough confidence to have me throw," Hall said. "We had a pretty good rhythm. The receivers were running good routes, so it was easier."

Hall's receivers were quick to lateral the praise back to their quarterback. "He had a lot more confidence today," Streater said. "He was putting a lot more zip on the ball, because his arm has gotten stronger."

"John is good throwing on the run," Lewis said. "He's not that tall, so it's better for him to get out on the corner."

Hall, who is 6-2, 200 pounds, said he actually prefers the conventional drop-back style, but he won't argue with the results. Neither will coach Dick Crum, who must have been relieved Sunday to hear that his quarterback's knee injury wasn't serious. "I think he got done what we needed to get done," Crum said.

Of course, Kevin Anthony also did the job last season against basically the same Wake Forest defense. Anthony threw five first-half touchdown passes in a 34-14 rout of the Deacons. It was Anthony's finest moment in a career that basically ended only three weeks later, when Hall came in at QB during the Maryland game and hasn't been ousted from the job since.

Hall's future appears more certain than his predecessor's. But it is not completely clearcut. Crum has given Maye repeated chances to shine, replacing Hall for at least a series in each of the Tar Heel games. Thus far, Maye has not been overly impressive, and did not even throw a pass in his short fourth-quarter stint against Wake. However, Crum will use Maye again as a relief pitcher, for Hall can't continually throw perfect spirals against the defenses of Clemson, Maryland or LSU.

As for N.C. State, Hall will start again in the biggest game of his career so far, but he's not very worried. "They're coming off a big loss, and will probably be upset," he said. "We'll just have to block and tackle."
