

Town Council uses new zoning class

By MICHELLE EFIRD
Staff Writer

The fate of two previously unzoned areas in Chapel Hill was finally decided after intense discussion by members of the Chapel Hill Town Council Monday night.

Two areas covering between 100 and 200 acres now fall under the category "mixed use," a zoning class added to the town's development ordinance in July and the source of debate ever since.

The land lies along the intersections of Weaver Dairy Road and N.C. 86, and along U.S. 15-501 and Old Durham-Chapel Hill Road.

Under mixed use, land must contain a combination of at least two of these zonings: office/industrial, residential and commercial.

But by a 6-1 vote, the Weaver Dairy Road area was temporarily designated for office/industrial use only. The area at 15-501 was designated a residential area.

Council members had until this Friday to assign zoning specifications for the two areas, or the land would have remained unzoned.

Monday night's decision was only an interim measure to keep the area from remaining unzoned, until the board can decide what combination of the three zonings it wants.

More importantly, when land is left unzoned, haphazard development can occur, members said.

"If we create a holding area and development occurs, we could have nonconformity (in building types)," David Godschalk, council member, said. "My vote would not be in favor of further delay, but to act on recommendations already heard."

Arthur Werner, council member, said that while there is a need for mixed-use zoning, "We are not sure on exactly which mixed-use options we need."

The council will hold work sessions to discuss details in the mixed-use proposal for those two areas.

Both mixed-use zoning and the interim zonings of residential and office call for lot sizes of 20 contiguous acres and a building height maximum of 90 feet. Other requirements include a two-to-one "envelope," which allows the building to go up two feet for every one foot it is set back from property lines.

The newly-zoned land is part of the several hundred acres annexed from Durham and Orange counties Aug. 31 and is expected to be affected by the extension of Interstate 40.

In other business, council voted to continue studying the plat for 40-lot Mill Race subdivision, east of Hillsborough Street.

Several citizens voiced concern over possible problems with water, erosion and garbage collection.

Transplant patient in hardy condition

By SHEILA SIMMONS

N.C. Memorial Hospital's second heart transplant patient remained in good condition Tuesday after receiving a new heart in a four-hour operation Friday night, a hospital spokesman said.

Levern Weatherly, 23, of Broadway, N.C., was moved out of the intensive care unit Wednesday and is expected to stay in the hospital from three to six weeks, he said in a telephone interview Tuesday.

According to Dr. John M. Armitage, one of the two physicians who performed the operation, Weatherly was diagnosed as having familial cardiomyopathy, a hereditary malfunction of the heart muscle that keeps it from pumping blood efficiently. Weatherly's brother and father died from the condition.

Weatherly, who has been unable to work for the past year because of his condition, has been in the hospital since August awaiting a donor, a hospital spokesman said.

Weatherly is married and has two young daughters. Armitage and Dr. Dale N. Payne headed the surgical team that performed the operation, the 16th in the state.

Both surgeons were recruited from the University of Pittsburgh's Presbyterian University Hospital and have performed numerous heart transplant operations.

NCMH's first heart transplant patient, Arthur L. Stanback, 56, of Raleigh, was in good condition Tuesday and is expected to return home this week.

Student Congress to discuss holiday

By BETH WILLIAMS
Staff Writer

A bill to recognize Martin Luther King's birthday and a resolution about mandatory drug testing for athletes will be discussed at today's meeting of Student Congress.

The meeting, at 7 p.m. in Room 226 of the Student Union, is open to all students.

A bill, to be introduced by Dave Edquist (Dist. 1), suggests canceling class for all or part of Jan. 15 in memory of King, a civil rights leader instrumental to the beginning of the movement. The bill is supported by Rob Friedman (Dist. 16), Student Body President Bryan Hassel and the Black Student Movement.

Also, the congress will vote on a resolution about mandatory drug testing for athletes. The resolution, written by Neil Reidman (Dist. 12) and Rob Friedman, opposes the NCAA mandatory drug testing policies and UNC's support of the policy.

Students at the meeting are allowed to speak if they are recognized by the congress, said Jaye Sitton (Dist. 11), speaker of Student Congress. Usually, the students that speak are involved with the bill being voted on, she said.

Although students can't bring up new issues during the meetings, they are encouraged to talk to their representatives about their concerns, Sitton said.

The Congress meets every other Wednesday in the Union.

Campus phone books expected to arrive soon

The long-awaited 1986-87 Campus Directory should arrive within the next two weeks, according to Annette Harmon, coordinator of the campus telephone directory.

Distribution of the directories was originally scheduled for Nov. 10, but might come sooner, she said. The directory lists telephone numbers of faculty members, academic and administrative departments, staff members and undergraduate and graduate students.

The distribution of the directory is coordinated by University Directories of Chapel Hill and is printed by Kingsport Press of Kingsport, Tenn., Harmon said.
