Tar Heel gymnasts open '87 season on Saturday

By PARIS GOODNIGHT

The 1987 version of the North Carolina gymnastics team takes to the floor for the first and last time Saturday night at 7 p.m. in Fetzer

After James Madison, the rest of the team's competitions will be held in Carmichael Auditorium with a newly-improved floor, stronger team and more seats. What a bargain for the student spectator of Tar Heel

Only one member of the team that went 14-2 last year is gone and Coach Derek Galvin said that the freshmen joining the team make up for part of that loss. Twelve Tar Heel gymnasts will be striving to reach that perfect 10 this year and get a spot in the NCAA tournament in April.

"We're in about the same position as last year in depth," said Galvin, "but this year we're a little stronger."

A lot of that strength is resting on the shoulders of the only team member under five feet tall — Stacy Kaplan, last year's Tar Heel version of the gold medal-winning star with the 32-teeth-showing-smile. Kaplan, a junior, became the first ACC gymnast to compete in the NCAA championships last season. She also holds three of the five individual event records at UNC and has participated in the four highest team scores ever recorded at UNC.

But this will not be just a Kaplan plus everybody else show. Galvin said he is looking for strong performances by the seniors, especially cocaptains Elizabeth Boulton and Barbi Callahan, but has a good distribution of age and talent overall.

"Elizabeth has improved quite a bit but it wouldn't be fair to single out one person," Galvin said. "I've been pleased with everyone's improvement. We've had to rely on freshmen a lot in the past. I think they will do well, but we won't have to depend on them."

For the freshmen, James Madison will be their first competition of any kind as a Tar Heel because the team did not have a blue/white scrimmage this year as it has in the past. "We shouldn't have too much of a problem," said Callahan. "We've beaten them three years in a row. We just want to start out the year with a good meet."

But the expectations will grow as the season progresses. "Our level of competition is higher than in the past and I think this will help prepare us for the NCAA competition," Galvin said. "I expect us to be in the top 20 but we're shooting for the top 10. I think this year's team will be the

CREATIVE DECISION MAKING

It's the Rule, Not the Exception CHUSE At Chubb.

The property/casualty insurance business demands an ability to make carefully calculated, creative decisions.

Because it's the element of risk that makes insurance necessary . . . and exciting. Property and casualty insurance involves the highest sort of risk, and is the least predictable form of insurance.

Why? It has been said that people die more or less "on schedule." But who can predict when . . . or if . . . a bridge will collapse, an ocean liner will sink, a trusted employee will embezzle, or a home will be burglarized?

Creative thinkers make successful property/casualty insurance professionals. And we should know. It's been our business for over 100 years.

Representatives from the Atlanta Office will be on campus on January 19. The majority of our trainee positions will be in underwriting, with a few positions in operations, claims and loss control. There will be a limited number of positions open for Winter 1987.
