Reading the voluminous DTH mail

Fame

I don't know what you do with your junk mail and I don't particularly care. But at the sports desk of The Daily Tar Heel, we get more than our share.

Nearly every school in the nation with any sort of athletic program sends us weekly updates on their teams (i.e. Stetson tennis and Temple golf). The information we get from the ACC schools we sometimes use. The rest of the letters often remain unopened.

Usually, the stuff we know is junk just sits on Surowiecki's desk until it reaches a certain depth, then we throw everything, even the useful stuff, in the trash.

I recently (read: Monday) got a wild hair to read some of the voluminous correspondence. I present here some of the more tantalizing

Hoosiers take top prize

By PATTON McDOWELL Assistant Sports Editor

For Indiana senior guard Steve Alford, it was a dream come true. While his back-court companion Keith Smart had a lot to do with the final outcome, Alford's consistently superb play earned the Hoosiers the top prize of the 1987 NCAA season, as they narrowly defeated Syracuse, 74-73.

Alford's mostly brilliant, although sometimes frustrating, career began at Indiana with a sensational freshman year -- a year climaxed by a gold medal with the 1984 Olympic team. Bob Knight, the same coach who led him at Los Angeles, and who pushed him hard thereafter, was the first to congratulate him after his final collegiate goal was accomplished.

The Orangemen gave the New Orleans Superdome crowd of over 64,000 a fantastic effort, especially in the yeoman effort of freshman Derrick Coleman on the boards. The Detroit native finished with 19 rebounds, two short of the championship game

Alford finished with 23 points, but it was points number 20 and 21 for the junior college transfer Smart with five seconds left that iced it for coach Bob Knight. The NCAA championship was the third for the fiery bench general, and it put him in the same lofty eschelon as Adolph Rupp and John Wooden, the other coaches with more than two championships. Knight's other top prizes came in 1976 and 1981.

It was almost fitting that Smart was the interceptor of Syracuse's last ditch half-court pass, for in the final seconds, the game was his. The game-winner was within ten feet of the magical spot in Tar Heel fan's memories, where Michael Jordan's 17-footer was heard around the basketball

Smart, who also wears number 23, hit a shot with 20 seconds left to bring the Hoosiers within one.

Alford was 7-10 from the 3point line; his only other points came on a break-away lay-up. Daryl Thomas added 20 points, and junior Dean Garrett added

Syracuse got 20 points from their point-guard Sherman Douglas, while Rony Seikaly and Greg Monroe chipped in 18 and 12 points, respectively.
