

Don't mar your nails doing spring cleaning!
High 77. Low 58.

DTH female editors hold bakeoff — Page 9

Male sports editor claims job harassment — Page 7

Summer fashions show
Today at noon in the Pit

The Daily Tar Heel

Serving all mankind breakfast in bed since this morning

Volume 2,456, Issue 1

April Fools' Day, March 32, 1987

Chapel Hill, North Carolina

Eyes/Lips/Nails Fashion Crisis Hotline 666-CHIC 666-HAGS

Kay finds 'place' in Dean's shoes

By LIL O. MEE
Sports Editor

In a development that has shocked the entire sports world, it was announced Tuesday that North Carolina basketball coach Dean Smith is stepping down from his post. It was also made public that North Carolina State women's coach Kay Yow would fill the Tar Heel vacancy.

Athletic Director John Swofford, reading from a prepared statement, said, "This is a prepared statement."

Swofford continued by enumerating the reasons which Smith gave him for leaving UNC. Top on the list was the fact that Smith couldn't afford to keep paying the heating bills at the 22,000-seat Dean E. Smith Center.

"That's an awful big building, you know," Swofford said. "And you know how warm and toasty Dean likes to keep it. That costs a lot of money."

But the reason most responsible for Smith's resignation, Swofford said, was continued pressure on Smith from C. Everette Mills.

"That Mills character really got to Dean," Swofford said. "Mills can be a real tough cookie and his sarcasm could bite through the U.S.S. North Carolina. I don't blame Dean for being upset. I would have wilted months ago."

At the end of the press conference, Swofford said that Smith's job had been offered to Yow, who coached the U.S. women's team to the World Championship title last summer, and that Yow accepted on the condition that she gets to change the name of the Smith Center to Kay's Place.

Asked if she would make any fundamental changes in the Tar Heel system, Yow said, "Oh dear, I really haven't had a chance to think about that. Well, maybe I'll make those uniform pants a little tighter. I do like buns, you know."

N.C. State athletic director Jim Valvano said he had mixed feelings about Yow leaving the Wolfpack family. "Of course I hate to see her go," Valvano said. "She made one darn good pot of java, no question about it."

"Oh, but what an opportunity she has! I'm sure she'll be a fine addition to the ACC. We haven't had a real woman coach in this league since Bill Foster left Clemson, no question about it."

Cents encounter

Every girl wants to look and feel her best on her wedding day. This precious occasion, to which her life has been directed, should be extra-special. For hints, please see Page 25.

DTH/Dan, Dan the photo man

Top dogs sweat as chicks climb success ladder

By ROSIE CHEEKS
Staff Writer

The Supreme Court's latest ruling to place women in more jobs has caused pandemonium among University administrators, who are scrambling to prove that they do their jobs as well as women could.

"Quite frankly, this latest development in the battle to preserve male supremacy scares me," said one University official who refused to be identified. "I mean, those broads are taking over everywhere. My wife won't even section my grapefruit for me anymore. She thinks she's too good for it. Do you know how much that stuff burns when you squirt it in your eyes? It hurts..."

The UNC-system Board of Governors has voted to oust all male administrators, in a desperate attempt to prove that they aren't members of a recently exposed national conspiracy designed to keep women subservient and brainless.

UNC-system President C.D. Spangler and Chancellor Christopher Fordham are just two of the UNC officials who will lose their jobs because of the board's decision.

Spangler's replacement, Iranscam sex queen Fawn Hall, said Tuesday that she's excited about taking over her new position. "I can't wait to get new curtains in my office," she said. "But my first action as president will be to establish a new dress code for those Board of Governors meetings. Those pinstriped gray suits and yellow ties have got to go. And black dress socks, too — yuck!"

Hall also said she wanted to emphasize the importance of paper shredding skills at all of the system's 16 universities. "I think the ability to keep certain documents covert is very, very vital to succeed in life," Hall said. "See what it did for me?" She said her vast experience in sorting through the intricate bureaucracies of federal government would make her a valuable asset to the University system.

Talk show host Oprah Winfrey, who has replaced Fordham as chancellor, said she wants to liven up board meetings by broadcasting them on network television and having callers phone in questions and gripes.

She said her first official act as chancellor would be to set up a remote on South Lawn and hold a panel discussion on the advisability of using control-top panty hose as a birth control device.

Jessica Hahn, the West Babylon, N.Y., secretary who had a sexual tryst with TV Bible-thumper Jim Bakker under the intoxicating influence of drugged blueberry Mad Dog 20/20, has replaced Wayne Kuncl as director of University housing. Hahn said her first project in her new position will be to donate historic Old East and Old West residence halls to PTL ministries for use as broadcasting centers.

"The only way I can repent for my weakness of the flesh is to do everything in my power to preserve the television lifeblood of this evangelical empire," Hahn said, adjusting her black leather hip boots. "Jim Bakker must be allowed to inspire the students of this campus by letting his word permeate every corner."

Student reaction to the female takeover was mixed. Sid Soloflex, a senior industrial strength major from Benchpress, said he disliked the idea of women ruling his life.

"Man, no chick tells me what to do," Soloflex said, rolling up the sleeve of his T-shirt to expose rippling muscles. "I don't want to go to a school run by stupid dames. I'd rather have a man's job anyway, like digging coal or mining salt."

But Millie Tante, a junior guerrilla survival major from Managua, Nicaragua, said she supports the new regime. "Female dominance in the administration is a move in the right direction. This is just what the movement needs to sweep not only the campus, but the state, the nation and the world!"

"But now we need to figure out a way to make men have the babies."

Congressional wives storm Senate session; crumpet battle threatens political stability

By POLLY SIGH
Staff Writer

Following the lead of North Carolina's newest Sen. Margaret Rose Sanford, D-N.C., Dottie Helms stormed the office of Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., late Tuesday night, demanding that he allow her to put new curtains in her kitchen and that he sponsor legislation to outlaw wearing white after Labor Day.

Margaret Rose recently deposed her husband, former Sen. Terry Sanford, D-N.C., after he told her he did not like her tuna casserole.

After Jesse refused to grant her requests, Dottie locked him in a closet with has-been Sen. Gary Hart of Colorado, and seized the office.

Several hours after the coup, these two brilliant political strategists were released from the closet and separated. Both men have been sent to Dorothea Dix hospital, where they are learning to do rug-hook.

Dottie and Margaret Rose met behind closed doors today in Dottie's Washington office. Sources say they discussed what to wear to the afternoon session of Congress.

After spending an hour shopping in Georgetown, the ladies took their packages to the Senate where they were seated on opposite sides of the room.

"I can't understand why they did that," Margaret Rose said. "Why, we always sit together for tea... oh, what party am I in again? I can never remember a party unless they have good champagne and a five-piece band."

Tea, however, became the first divisive issue of the day.

A bill to institute a 4 p.m. tea break in the Senate, introduced by wizened and prehistoric Sen. Lawton Chiles, D-Fla., who insists it makes him more "regular," sparked debate split along party lines.

Margaret Rose insisted that alternating crumpets and finger sandwiches with the tea would be the most civilized option for the senators.

However, Dottie opposed crumpets adamantly, saying, "We must all pledge to buy American. Crumpets are not American. First it's crumpets then the next thing you know we're importing jam. Think of all the American jam farmers out of work. I think it's a crime against the nation to have crumpets."

The resolution for tea was soon tabled by presidential wanna-be and dynamic speaker Sen. Joe Biden, D-Del., after it became obvious no bi-partisan compromise would be immediately reached.

"Since it has become obvious no bi-partisan compromise will be immediately reached, I move we table this resolution," Biden said.

Campus Hunks Trading Cards: Clip 'em, save 'em, and tell your friends

Crazy Chris

full name: Christopher Columbus Fordham III claim to fame: University chancellor hair: satiny silver eyes: cornflower blue favorite song: "War Pigs" by Black Sabbath favorite thing to do on a date: make wild doughnuts with his Caprice Classic in the Bell Tower parking lot

Suave Don

full name: Donald A. Boulton claim to fame: vice chancellor and dean of student affairs hair: sparse but striking boyish brown eyes: eyes
favorite song: "Your Love is Large" by Billy Warden and the Floating Children favorite thing to do on a date: water ski on University Lake

Gentle J.R.

full name: Herman Reid Jr.
claim to fame: UNC basketball standout hair: sensually square eyes: deep pools of warmth favorite song: "Top of the World" by the Carpenters favorite thing to do on a date: picnic on egg salad sandwiches and V-8 juice in the SAC, followed by a dunk drill

Bashful Bri

full name: Brian David Bailey claim to fame: student body president hair: warm chestnut dyed to match
eyes: eyes
favorite song: "You Give Love a Bad Name" by Bon Jovi favorite thing to do on a date: play charades with the brothers at the Delta Upsilon house

Dashing Dale

full name: Dale Thomas McKinley claim to fame: anti-apartheid activist hair: tousled to tease eyes: piercing yet playful favorite song: "These Boots Were Made For Walkin'" by Nancy Sinatra favorite thing to do on a date: get cozy with champagne and Cheez Whiz in a shanty on South Lawn

Give a woman a job and she grows balls. — Jack Gelber