surgery in the garage, and then tries to get her to stop killin' all the neighbors and grabbin' biker gangs between the legs. No breasts. Six bodies. Exploding head. Father charbroilin'. Excellent spook robotics by Kristy Swanson. Two and a half stars.

Joe Bob says check 'em out.

Enberg's broadcast partner for tennis, Bud Collins, is one of several great analysts he's worked with. Others include Merlin Olsen for football, and Billy Packer and Al McGuire for college basketball.

Still, Enberg feels something is missing. "I'm just hoping that I will live long enough to work one day with a black analyst and also a woman analyst," says Enberg, who mentioned former Cincinnati Reds star Joe Morgan and ESPN's Gayle Gardner as two of his favorites.

With that, the carriage rolled to a halt back at our original departure point, thus concluding my 15-minute conversation with one of the best sports broadcasting has ever known. It was nearly 1:30 now and Enberg was being paged to return to the courts for another match. "Anything else you'd like to ask?" he politely said.

No, I'd just like to say thanks.
