NFL players reject agreement

NEW YORK - The NFL Management Council on Monday gave its players union a new proposal it said can provide "the essential elements" for settlement of the contract impasse that could result in a players strike within two weeks.

But Gene Upshaw, the executive director of the NFL Players Association termed the document "garbage."

The 14-page summary, prepared over the weekend by council officials, was presented to Upshaw shortly after noon EDT. It was mailed about two hours later to the 28 NFL teams.

The presentation comes one day before the league's player representatives meet in Washington to set a strike date. It is expected to come after the second week of the season, which opens Sunday, with the option to wait another two weeks.

The only talks since Aug. 14 took place for 41/2 hours in Washington last week and they broke off over the issue of protection for player representatives.

The league's owners will meet Thursday outside Chicago to hear from Jack Donlan, the executive director of the Management Council, on the status of the talks.

Despite Upshaw's denunciation of Donlan's proposal, both sides said they were willing to meet again. Upshaw said they had talked on Sunday and expected to be back in contact Thursday, after both sides have had their meetings.

Donlan said in his cover letter to Upshaw that because of the lack of talks the proposal "has been developed in a virtual vacuum without the benefit of assistance from the NFLPA."

But he added, "It is our firm belief that this proposal will constitute the essential elements of the CBA (collective bargaining agreement) we eventually sign."

Upshaw, however, said he agreed with only one thing — that the length of the contract be three years. "It was just what I expected. Now we have just seven points to go," he said in a reference to the union's 8-point proposal.

The management proposal is similar in some elements to the Management Council presentation at the onset of talks on April 20. It continues intact, for example, the current system of free agency under which only one player has changed teams in 10 years, although it upgrades the compensation to what the council to what the council calls more realistic levels. Free agency without compensation is one of the union's principal demands.

But even the liberalized compensation would be rather restrictive.

For example, Gary Reasons, a starting linebacker on the New York Giants' Super Bowl champion team is currently hholding out for a salary reported to be more than $400,000 a year. The Giants are offering around $300,000.

If Reasons, considered the fourth best linebacker on the Giants, were to be paid what he wants by another team, it would have to surrender to New York under the new proposal two No. 1 draft choices. Even if the team paid him what the Giants are offering, it would have to give up a

The new proposal does, however, increase player pensions by about 20 percent over current levels and ups severence pay considerably.

In other NFL news, Nat Moore and Tony Nathan, two of the mainstays of the Miami Dolphins' offense for the past decade, and Tony Hill, one-time star with the Dallas Cowboys, were cut Monday, while the Chicago Bears put Jim McMahon on injured reserve with the expectation that he can help their young quarterbacks develop.

Hill was among a group of veterans released by the San Francisco 49ers, including linebackers Tom Cousineau and Jim Fahnhorst and running back Carl Monroe.

The UNC volleyball team opened the 1987 season with a bang Monday night, thumping Virginia Tech on the Hokies' home court in straight sets, 15-10, 15-11, 15-6.

The squad's coaching staff was pleased with the team's effort in getting the Tar Heels off on the right foot. Assistant coach Jolene Nagel said, "It was a very solid win."

Head coach Peggy Bradley-Doppes added, "It was a team kind of effort. We tried quite a few rotations and lineups, and everyone was able to play."

America, fear the East's coming

As I watched the World Track and Field Championships in Rome last week, I remembered why I like track and field so much. The appeal of track lies in its great individual performances and duels.

Who can forget Ben Johnson's scintillating dismemberment of Carl Lewis in the 100 meters? One on one, mano a mano, the muscular Canadian literally creamed America's finest for a world record 9.83. It is Lewis, in fact, who indirectly led me to some very disturbing conclusions. Are you still feeling rosy about our cakewalk at the L.A. Olympics? Did Lewis' four gold medals make you be proud to be an American, the country that owns the track? Let me put it real simple: Don't feel rosy. And get ready to swallow

Did you see the movie "The Fly"? The best line in the movie very much applies to the U.S. in track and field. "Be afraid. Be very afraid." Not of insects, mind you, but of the Eastern Bloc countries, and especially the

I know its early, but let's get serious for a minute. Those fun guys from the Warsaw Pact countries had their own little competition in 1984 in Mother Russia, appropriately called the "Friendship Games". And the results were pretty convincing.

While we basked in our 174 medals in L.A., our friends from the East were quietly outdoing us in 28 of the 41 track and field events. In every distance event, the Friendship winnner was faster than the Olympic champion.

Remember Ted Turner's glorious Goodwill Games in 1986? The Soviets nearly tripled our gold-medal output, Granted, we did not have full participation at the Goodwill games, but even perfect attendance would not have precluded the Russian domination. In Rome last week, even with the best possible group of American representatives, the U.S. team stumbled to a third-place finish behind the East Germans and the Soviets.

Unless major changes occur, the Americans might well hope for another communist boycott at Seoul, because we will not catch our comrades. If you took away the United States' major stars - say Carl Lewis, Edwin Moses, Evelyn Ashford — we would be dead.

Injuries and retirement make that an all too possible possibility. While the Soviets and the East Germans do not have an individual of Lewis' caliber, they do have four or five runners who are right on the verge of a world championship.

Don't just blame the communist success on steroids and drugs, or their "professional" status. As Dr. Michael Yessis points out in his book Secrets of Soviet Sports Fitness and Training, "The credit for the USSR's unparalleled success lies with the most sophisticated, scientifically based system of training athletes in the world, one that is many years — and in some respects, decades - ahead of the U.S. approach."

America will always have great athletes like Lewis to give us someone to cheer for. But the communists are on their way to dominating the world of track and field.

And the Soviet system is catching up in other areas, too. We used to own basketball. Not anymore. The Eastern bloc can claim overall superiority in swimming, gymnastics, and many other events as well.

At the risk of flag-waving, I don't think this country should settle for second in anything. Unfortunately, I see a future of silver and bronze on the American horizon.

I am very afraid.
