

Shedden, McLawhorn up for offices

By MANDY SPENCE

Anna Shedden, a junior business major from Ridgefield, Conn., and Jamie McLawhorn, a junior business major from Hookerton, have announced their candidacies for senior class president and vice president.

"We're going to try to focus on two different things," Shedden said. "The first is preparing for the future, whether it is getting a job or going to graduate school."

"The second is making senior year a fun year. Those are the two major concerns for most seniors."

McLawhorn said the two candidates also want to make the transition to post-college life easier for seniors.

Shedden and McLawhorn said they would like to implement programs to help seniors with interview and resume-writing skills. They also proposed two class trips, senior buses to away games, and a pre-graduation band party.

"We want to make the seniors' last year memorable," Shedden said. "After you graduate you won't be in the college atmosphere. We want people to take advantage of it."

Shedden said she and McLawhorn liked many of this year's senior class activities, such as homecoming and senior nights out, and they would like to continue them.

"However, we feel there are problems with the way it's structured," she said. "It's not very effective as far as participation went."

Shedden and McLawhorn said they want to create a "mini representative branch" to improve communication between the senior class and its officers. A representative in each residence hall would be in charge of alerting seniors of upcoming events and meetings. Shedden said she thought a more personal approach would convince more seniors to participate.

"The programs are not good without participation," McLawhorn said.

Shedden has served as executive assistant to Brian Bailey and was special projects director of Cobb residence hall during her sophomore year. McLawhorn was the president of Carmichael Residence Hall last year. He has also been a summer orientation commissioner.

Sparger, Gillis run for senior posts

Todd Sparger, a junior education major from Tequesta, Fla., and Anita Gillis, a junior education major from High Point, have announced their candidacies for senior class president and vice president.

Ensuring that senior class activities represent the wishes of all class members is the focus of the campaign, Sparger said.

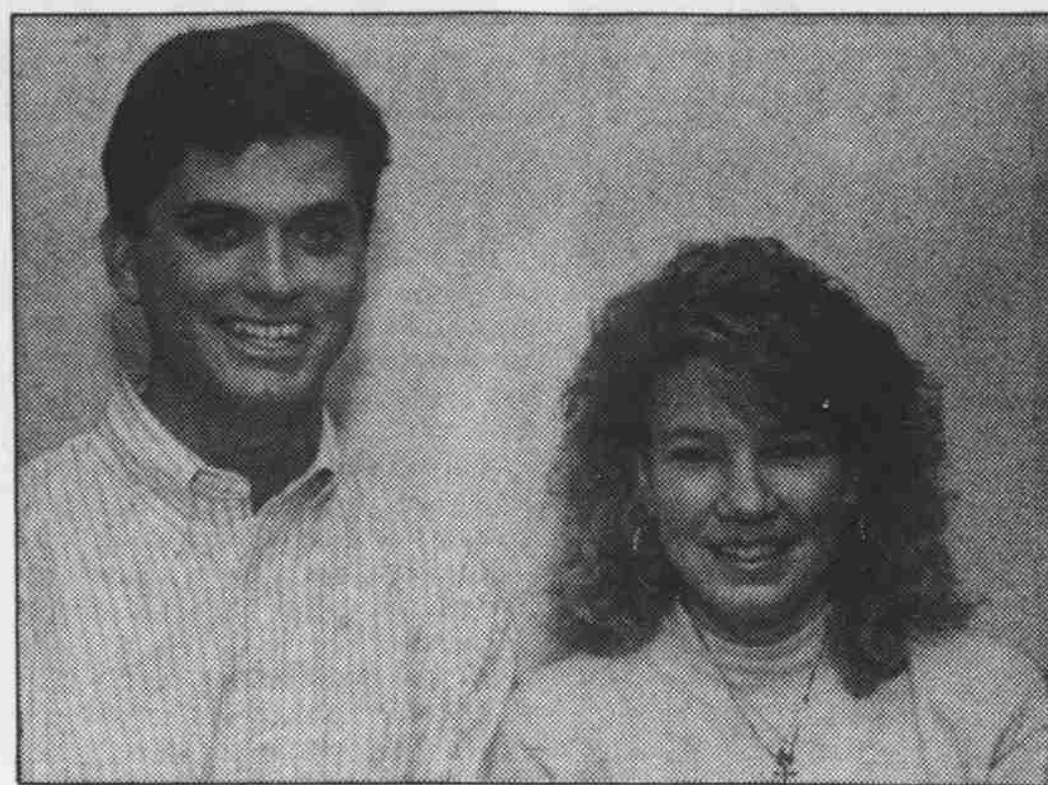

"A big goal is trying to solicit as much input as possible from the senior class," Sparger said. "We don't want two people to be acting for 5,000."

Sparger and Gillis said they want to create a representative program to improve communication between the senior class and its officers. One senior in each residence hall or apartment complex would be in charge of relaying information between the class and the officers.

"Soliciting the advice and the ideas of the senior class as a whole isn't just a bunch of words," Sparger said.

Gillis agreed. "We represent them, and therefore they have the most say."

Some of the projects Sparger and Gillis said they want seniors to consider are a newsletter for seniors, a tailgate party before a football game, a large scale community service project and a semi-formal dance for seniors and their guests. "We want to leave our mark on this university," Gillis said. "We want to bring the senior class together as one big unit. We want to have more fun and more activities."

Sparger has served as a peer leadership consultant, a resident assistant and Lambda Chi Alpha scholarship chairman. He has been a member of Carolina Contact, the Morehead Confederation Council and the Carolina Union Activities Board public relations committee. He was an orientation counselor and has given campus tours since his freshman year.

Gillis has served both as vice president and president of Cobb Residence Hall, as well as governor of the Morehead Confederation. She is now a member of the Residence Hall Association Board of Governors, the Housing Advisory Board and the Department of University Housing noise task force. She has also been an orientation counselor.

Counseling service seeks volunteers

By BRENDA CAMPBELL
Staff Writer

Using the concept of women helping women, the Chapel Hill Women's Health Counseling Service is recruiting volunteers to help women understand their own health problems.

The service, which has operated for 18 years, provides counseling and education on a variety of women's health issues, Virginia Chambers, director of the service, said Tuesday.

Until 1978, the service was run only by staff, without any volunteers, Chambers said. Now the service is run almost completely by women volunteers, with the help of professionals.

The volunteers put together educational health programs and present them to many of the schools in the area, Chambers said.

Volunteer counselors also help to perform medical tests on patients, including pregnancy tests.

"The service provides information on other area health services, and we also can refer patients to doctors for further treatment," Chambers said.

"We also have a library with books on women's health that can be checked out at any time," she said.

In addition, the service provides counseling groups covering issues that uniquely affect women, including reproduction, nutrition, eating disorders and stress management.

On Feb. 8, the service is opening its doors to give interested women the opportunity to become new volunteers.

"We need volunteers with an interest in women's issues and women's health," Chambers said.

Volunteers are trained either to test patients or develop programs on women's health, Chambers said.

After the six-week training period is over, most volunteers spend two to four hours each week working at the service.

Anyone interested in volunteering can contact Chambers at the Women's Health Counseling Service, 968-4646.

BERMUDA COLLEGE WEEKS

When you break away this year, do it with style.

Your College Week in Bermuda is more than just sun, sand and surf.

Right from the first outrageous "College Bash" at Elbow Beach, it's a week of unrelenting pleasure.

Spectacular seaside buffet luncheons. A calypso and limbo festival like none other. Smashing dancetill-you-drop beach parties, featuring Bermuda's top rock, steel and calypso bands. Even a "Party Cruise." All compliments of the Bermuda Department of Tourism.

Bermuda is all of this—and much, much more. It's touring the island on our breezy mopeds.

It's jogging on quiet country roads—including an early morning 2-k "Fun Run" from Horseshoe Bay. It's exploring the treasures in our international shops, playing golf on eight great courses, and tennis on over 100 island-wide courts.

But most of all, it's the feeling you get on a tiny, flower-bedecked island, separated from everywhere and everything by 600 miles of sea.

This year, break away with style. See your Campus Travel Representative or Travel Agent for details.

*College Weeks packages not available week of April 10-16.
