Duke hands women's tennis long afternoon

By GINGER JONAS
Staff Writer

It was a long Wednesday afternoon for the UNC women's tennis team, as the Tar Heels lost to Duke by a score of 7-2. In fact, the afternoon was so long one of the doubles matches between the Tar Heels and the Blue Devils had to be moved from the UNC Tennis Center to the lighted Cobb/Joyner courts.

In spite of the loss, Tar Heel coach Kitty Harrison was pleased with her team's efforts.

"This was definitely not a disappointment," she said after the match. "We have a top player out (second seed Gina Goblirsch), and I think the team compensated well for her absence. Overall we played strongly."

Junior Spencer Barnes provided UNC with its only singles win, defeating Duke's Christine O'Reilly, 6-2, 3-6, 7-5.

"She's one of the best opponents I've faced," Barnes said of O'Reilly. "She started volleying well in the second set. I had to adjust my game in the third set to pull out the win."

In first-seed play, UNC's Ann Stephenson was defeated by Duke's Susan Sabo, 4-6, 6-4, 2-6. At the third seed, Duke's Terry O'Reilly knocked off UNC's Valerie Farmer in two sets, 6-3, 7-6.

Landis Cox rallied for the Tar Heels in the second set, but the UNC senior was unable to pull out a win over Duke's fourth-seed, Lee Shelburne. Cox lost 0-6, 7-6, 0-6. At the fifth seed, North Carolina's Dana Kanell fell to Katrina Greenman, 4-6, 6-7. Dianna McCarthy lost the sixth-seed match to Duke's Donna Preston, 7-6, 0-6, 3-6.

The Tar Heel pair of Cox and Kanell provided UNC with its only doubles win. Under the lights of the Cobb/Joyner courts, Cox and Kanell knocked off a strong Duke challenge from Preston and Christine O'Reilly, 6-4, 5-7, 7-6.

In other doubles action, UNC's Farmer and McCarthy lost to Duke's Terry O'Reilly and Greenman, 4-6, 4-6. At the third seed, Barnes and Vanessa Ames lost to Duke's Shelburne and Cathy Frend, 1-6, 1-6.

Nevertheless, Harrison was able to find the silver lining in the Tar Heels' tough afternoon.

"The matchups showed that there's not much difference between Duke and us," Harrison said. "That's encouraging since Duke will probably be the top seed in the ACC Tournament."

With the loss Wednesday, the Tar Heels saw their record drop to 12-9 overall and 3-3 in the ACC. The Duke Blue Devils improved to 18-4 overall and a perfect 6-0 in the conference.

UNC will be in action again Friday afternoon against Virginia Tech, and Harrison said she expected her team to be ready for the Hokies.

"The competition won't be anything like this," she said. "But there are no weak teams left on our schedule. We may be short two players (Goblirsch and Stephenson) on Friday, but as long as they're back by the time we play Virginia April 8, we'll be in good shape."

Senior Landis Cox cranks a backhand in Wednesday's loss to Duke

Maurer's four hits lead baseball rout

From staff reports

DURHAM — Sophomore shortstop Ron Maurer went 4-for-4 and tied a UNC school record for runs scored in a single game to lead the Tar Heels to a 21-9 drubbing of struggling Duke Wednesday afternoon at Jack Coombs Field.

The win, which came one day after UNC's streak of 11 straight victories was snapped by Wake Forest, upped North Carolina's record to 17-9 overall, 4-1 in the ACC. Duke, which has now lost 13 games in a row, fell to 7-19 and 0-4.

Maurer, who hit his sixth home run of the season, a two-run shot in the second inning, joined B.J. Surhoff and Scott Johnson in the UNC record book by crossing the plate five times Wednesday.

Maurer, the third-place hitter for the Tar Heels, was the leader of a 21-hit North Carolina assault.

Other big boppers for the Tar Heels Wednesday were junior third baseman Darin Campbell (3-for-6), senior center fielder Chris DeFranco (3-for-5, four runs batted in), senior first baseman Chris Lauria (3-for-5, 3 RBIs) and freshman right fielder Brad Woodall, who went 3-for-4 with a triple and two RBIs after entering the game in the fifth inning.

Campbell's safeties enabled him to maintain an 11-game hitting streak.

The winning pitcher for the Tar Heels was sophomore right-hander Scott Lodgek. Lodgek, a 6-foot-4, 187-pounder from Moorestown, N.J., upped his record to 3-2 on the season with six innings of work. Sophomore righty Ryan Jackson, a 6-7, 215-pounder, allowed just one run over the final three innings to earn his second save this year.

The loser for Duke was Mike McNamara, who didn't make it through the first inning and fell to 0-4.

UNC rocked McNamara for three runs in the top half of the first, then added a pair of runs in the second and third innings. After Duke scored five times in the home half of the third to cut the score to 7-5, the Tar Heels scored single runs in the fourth and fifth frames before exploding for eight more in the top of the sixth to make it 17-5.

Three Duke runs in the bottom of the sixth brought the differential under double digits, but UNC responded with another run in the seventh and three more in the eighth to more than decide the issue.

Duke's leading hitter was Doug Eastman, who went 2-for-3 and knocked in a run.

One man's opinion: Duke will do it in K.C.

Opinion

Funny how warm weather makes the pretty ladies come out and makes the young men so friendly.

What is not so funny to basketball junkies everywhere is that the college basketball season is coming to a swift conclusion. This weekend coaches Mike Krzyzewski, Larry Brown, Billy Tubbs and Lute Olson will take their respective teams to Kansas City and play the last three games of the 1987-88 season. These are the mentors of the four survivors — Duke, Kansas, Oklahoma and Arizona — from the 64-team emotional rollercoaster known as the NCAA Tournament.

I'm tempted to go ahead and make my prediction for the champion. But this year I'll tell you who it won't be.

I don't think Kansas can take home the gold. They rely too much on the national player of the year, Danny Manning. True, Manning is, in the opinion of many, the country's best. (Me? I still think it's "Baby Jay.")

But one man does not a team make. Duke's defense will wear the sole out of the Jayhawks' glass slipper.

In the other semifinal, it's a much closer call. Oklahoma's pressing defense and run-and-gun offense against the cool cockiness of Sean Elliott and Arizona. Oklahoma will press the Wildcat guards, but Elliott can bring the ball up against any of the Sooner big men. And the Wildcats are the best passing team in the country.

For that reason and others, Oklahoma will not be national champions.

In the final game, which would be the second meeting of Arizona and Duke this year (the Wildcats won the first matchup, 95-88, in Tucson last December), defense will be the key. Duke has a slight edge in that department.

Other keys for Coach K's team will be Robert Brickey's ability to outquick Arizona's post men and the outside shooting of ACC Player of the Year Danny Ferry.

Duke's helping defense will slow Elliott down, too. He may still get his 20 points, but they will be a quiet 20. Duke will force Steve Kerr and Tom Tolbert to beat them.

They won't, meaning Arizona won't win the national championship. Duke will.

Why, oh why, do they all want to fight him? Why, oh why, do they do it?

The latest victim of the Mike Tyson hooking barrage was a 238-pound former World Boxing Association champion named Tubbs. Tony Tubbs, to be exact.

It took exactly five minutes and 54 seconds for Tyson to demolish Mister Tubbs, who said before the March 20 slaughter that he'd have to knock Tyson out to win.

Tubbs did come out in the first round, swinging a myriad of left jabs and right counters at the head of the shorter Tyson. But as we all know by now, to beat a champion you have to fight him. And when you fight Tyson, well, it's only a matter of time.

Tyson landed some fierce body blows and Tubbs' hands dropped to cover his aching belly. It was a vicious left hook which erupted from Tyson's torso into the right side of Tubbs' head, splitting him with scapel-like precision just above his right eye and sending him crashing to the canvas like a bag of sugar.

Why, oh why, do they want to fight him?

The next fool, er, fighter is one Michael Spinks, who believes his unorthodox style will give him a good shot against the 34-0 and newly married Tyson.

Why, oh why, do they do it?

Track loss had several fast times

Despite several outstanding performances at last Saturday's Atlantic Coast Relays, UNC track and field athletes were only able to capture one first-place finish, leaving coach Dennis Craddock disappointed with the team's overall performance.

"There's not much good to say," Craddock said towards the end of the two-day competition. "We're working pretty hard, but were not accomplishing much. They're just not doing their jobs today."

Some athletes who were doing their jobs included the four women who captured first place in the 3200-meter relay. The team of Kari Krehnbrink, Vicki Verinder, Monica Witterholt and Michelle Faherty took first place with a time of 8:57.44.

Another freshman, Sharon Couch, set a UNC school record of 13.79 with her second-place finish in the 100-meter hurdles.

UNC senior Jill Irizarry finished second in the 400-meter hurdles in a time of 59.02, but was unable to defend her title. Connie Ellerbe of West Virginia won the event in 58.64, breaking the meet record of 59.59 set by Irizarry in 1987. Freshman Sonya Thomas of Greensboro ran a personal best of 60.84 in finishing fourth.
