Women win two, men one, in road soccer action

From staff reports

North Carolina men's and women's soccer coach Anson Dorrance took his nationally ranked charges to the Midwest over the weekend, and, as season openers go, both teams came out of the action in pretty good shape.

The top-ranked women's squad started this year's slate with a 5-0 romp over Dayton Thursday night. Senior Wendy Gebauer scored three goals for the Tar Heels, and Shannon Higgins and Pam Kalinoski added second-half goals.

Gebauer scored the Tar Heels' first goal of the season 26:50 into the match, when Kalinoski broke through the Flyers' defense and crossed the ball to Gebauer, who ripped the nets from four yards out.

The Reston, Va., native added her second goal less than five minutes later when she volleyed a Julie Guarnotta cross into the Dayton net from 12 yards away.

Gebauer waited until Higgins and Kalinoski scored to finish her hat trick, doing so at the 87:15 mark from seven yards out.

The Tar Heels outshot the Flyers 34-4 on the night.

While Thursday was a laugher, Saturday proved to be a scare, as the Tar Heels had to go to overtime before defeating 15th-ranked Cincinnati, 4-1.

Gebauer opened the scoring at the 21:08 mark with a header from eight yards. But the Bearcats' Barb Volker tied the score from five yards out 12 minutes later. The score remained that way through the rest of regulation.

But the Tar Heels broke through for three goals in the extra period, with Higgins, a junior from Seattle, Wash., notching two goals, the first 8:50 into the first overtime and the second on a penalty kick at the 114-minute mark.

Guarnotta, a junior, then tallied the final goal at 117:34 to put the game out of reach. The Tar Heels, who are 2-0 on the year following this weekend's action, travel to Fayetteville Wednesday for a 4 p.m. match against Methodist.

The men's squad opened their season with a much more difficult pair of matches, with both coming in the Adidas/Metropolitan Life Classic at Bloomington, Ind., home of the University of Indiana. All four teams participating in the classic were nationally ranked.

Friday night, the Tar Heels faced off against the second-ranked Hoosiers, losing a 2-0 heartbreaker that saw the two teams even in shots at 12. However, the real difference in the match was Ken Snow.

Snow, a sophomore All-American forward, netted two second-half goals to lead the Hoosiers. He opened the scoring 5:40 into the half after Chris Sciortino's shot from the left side was deflected by Tar Heel goalkeeper Darren Royer. Wes Priest then headed the ball back in front of the goal, and Snow drove it in from four yards out.

Snow added an insurance goal with just under 12 minutes to play as he took a through pass from Mark Behringer and scored on a one-on-one breakaway with a shot to the upper left corner.

The Tar Heels weren't without their chances, though. Indiana goalie Juergen Sommer had five saves on the day, stopping two point-blank blasts in the second half, one from Derek Missimo from 12 yards out less than a minute into the half and another from senior forward Tommy Nicholson on a breakaway.

The Tar Heels evened their record at 1-1 in Saturday's second-round game, as senior back Donald Cogsville scored with 1:57 to play in the second overtime to lead UNC to a wild, 4-3 win over 12th-ranked Evansville.

The senior out of Trenton, N.J., took a pass from junior midfielder Chad Ashton, beat a defender and drove a low shot past Aces keeper Jon Halliwill for the game-winner.

The match, played before a crowd of 4,500, was a record-setter at the six-year classic. The officials really earned their pay, as there were a whopping 77 fouls, 19 offsides and 11 cautions on the night.

"We didn't play that well, but I was pleased that we scored four goals," Dorrance said afterwards. "We missed some other chances and gave up some layups, though."

The Tar Heels led 2-0 in the first 6:46 of the match, with the goals coming 1:40 apart. Junior midfielder John Cocking opened up the scoring at 5:06 and was followed by an Ashton goal off a foul 100 seconds later.

But the Aces came back in the second half to tie the game with a pair of goals 19 minutes apart, with Tom Nevin scoring at 52:37 and Rob Paterson notting things up with 19 minutes to play.

Royer and Halliwill then kept the offenses at bay through the rest of regulation, with Royer making a sliding save on a breakaway and Halliwill answering with a one-on-one save of a Nicholson shot late in regulation.

Halliwill then made another spectacular save of a Nicholson shot by kicking the ball out of the goal with his left foot 48 seconds into the first overtime. Nicholson, a fifth-year senior who sat out last season because of a shoulder injury, finally got on the scoreboard 3:08 into the first overtime period.

Ashton, who finished the night with one goal and two assists, sent Missimo a pass just past the midfield line, and the Bedford, Tex., native advanced the ball to Nicholson, who put it past Halliwill for a brief Tar Heel lead.

The Aces then tied things up for the last time 32 seconds into the second overtime. Nevin fed an all-alone Paterson, and he chipped the ball over Royer and into the net.

Cogsville got the game-winner with Evansville playing a man down after Graham Merryweather was ejected for leaving the playing field to celebrate the Aces' third goal.

Dorrance seemed exasperated with the match. "This team needs to find an identity, some confidence," he said. "Tonight's game was a nightmare, and I thought the referee did a great job."

After last weekend's excitement, the Tar Heels hope to relax with a 3:30 match with Campbell Wednesday.
