

Pep rally to kick off Fever season

By JAMES BENTON
Staff Writer

The Fever may reach epidemic proportions well after the last snap of the football this season, according to Carolina Fever committee members.

The first pep rally of the year is scheduled to begin Friday at 8 p.m. outside the Sigma Phi Epsilon house on Cameron Avenue.

"It just might be at an all-time high," said Scott Beckley, Carolina Fever vice president.

The rally will include UNC head football coach Mack Brown, team captains of the football, field hockey and men's and women's soccer teams, the cheerleading squad and the High Kickin' Heels. Also appearing at the pep rally will be the new mikeman, Carl Bryan.

A local band — Johnny White and the Elite Band — is scheduled to perform at the pep rally and will provide music until midnight.

Beckley said the rally might have problems because of the INXS concert, which is also scheduled for 8 p.m. Friday in the Smith Center. The rally is expected to attract a large crowd, and the concert may create its usual share of traffic congestion.

To cut down on congestion, barricades will be placed around the site of the rally to prevent the crowd from spilling into the street, Beckley said.

The pep rally will be the beginning of a new tradition and rejuvenated athletic spirit at UNC, Beckley said. "Since this is the 100th year of Carolina football, we want to start new traditions," he said.

To ensure that new traditions are started, Beckley said the cheerleaders have been working with the mikeman on new cheers. Brown has brought a new attitude to UNC, Beckley said. Brown has been more "personable" to students and to Carolina Fever than former head football coach Dick Crum, he said.

Brown's appearance at the rally is evidence that he is closer and more accessible to the student body in general. Last year, there were several pep rallies for the team and Crum did not attend them, Beckley said.

Tonight's rally will be one of three scheduled for the football season. There will be a rally Oct. 14 for the N.C. State game which will be sponsored with the Delta Upsilon fraternity. The other will be held Oct. 21 for the homecoming game against Georgia Tech.

Beckley said the year looks promising for Carolina Fever. Membership in the organization has doubled, and a meeting of the organization Wednesday night drew more than 630 members, he said.

Carolina Fever will "definitely have more enthusiasm" this year, Beckley said. The committee will attend more non-revenue sporting events and is trying to work a lot more with the Marching Tarheels and the cheerleading squads to make "one big group," he said.

Another plan is to include the Clef Hangers and Loreleis singing groups in the homecoming rally as well. Involvement is the main idea behind a successful homecoming celebration, he said.

All in all it looks to be a great year for spirit and Carolina athletics, Beckley said.

"We're just trying to spread the fever around," he said.

DTH Picks of the Week

Here it is, time for all you would-be football analysts to test your skills against us, the experts (as we have so unbiassedly tabbed ourselves) — yes, it's once again time for the DTH Picks of the Week!

Ahead lies 12 weeks of competition, when we will truly find out which of us can consistently foresee the big wins, the upsets and the plain ol' nailbiters that lie ahead in the 1988 college football season.

Gone is defending champion Patton McDowell, but one-time champion Mike (Sleep? What the hell is that?) Berardino hopes to regain his old form, with Chris (Xacto Man) Spencer still muttering about last year. In their virgin season are Andy (Frattybaggerwannabe) Podolsky and Dave (The Real Thing) Glenn. And now ladies and gentlemen, we give you, Week No. 1.

OWASA lifts restrictions on water use

By LYNN GOSWICK
Staff Writer

The mandatory restrictions placed on water use in the Orange Water and Sewer Authority's (OWASA) service area, which includes UNC, have been lifted, OWASA executive director Everett Billingsley announced this week.

The lifting of the mandatory restrictions is due to the 1.25 inches of rainfall the area received last week, which added a three week's supply of water to OWASA's reservoirs, Billingsley said.

The mandatory restrictions have been in effect for less than three weeks. Although September, October and November are historically the driest months of the year, the recent showers should "help us to get by until there is a plentiful rainfall," Billingsley said.

Even though voluntary restrictions on water use are still encouraged, Billingsley praised University students, staff, faculty and administration for cooperating and providing a little "campus humor" in such a serious situation.

Ideas such as Shower With Your Plant and Shower With Your Friend "help us get through and do our part," he said. Billingsley said he hopes the voluntary restrictions on water use will be lifted soon, but he stressed that practical, stringent conservation should still be observed.

According to the National Weather Service, OWASA's service area, which normally averages 3.78 inches of rainfall in September, is expected to receive above normal precipitation this month.

But if above average temperatures accompany this rainfall, as the weather service also predicts, some of the rainfall may evaporate from the reservoirs' surfaces. This evaporation would cause a loss of as much as 1.5 million gallons of water a day, Billingsley said.

The evaporation, along with increased water usage during hot spells, could add up, he said. For that reason, Billingsley said he is hoping for "showers every day except football Saturdays."

Aussie rock band The Church to give Memorial Hall concert

By KELLY RHODES
Avis Editor

In the crop of Australian bands that have been emerging over the past few years, some have made it big, like INXS and Midnight Oil. Others have quietly come out from Down Under, like The Church.

Chapel Hill will get the opportunity to hear The Church live in Memorial Hall, Sept. 28 at 8 p.m.

Tickets for students with their UNC IDs will be distributed Monday, Sept. 12, only at the Carolina Union Box Office at 10 a.m. There's a special price of $12.50 for the first 750 tickets, so get there early.

For everyone else, tickets will be $14.50. They will be distributed the same morning at the Union Box Office and at Ticketron outlets. Call your favorite distribution point for their specific rules and times.

The Church began in 1980 as a three-man band consisting of Nick Ward, Peter Koppes and Steve Kilbey. Soon after Marty Willson-Piper signed on, they landed a contract with EMI-Australia. Ward left in 1981 and was replaced by Richard Ploog.

Creem magazine has called The Church a band that doesn't "sound like anybody else, really." With laurels from their first album, Of Skins and Hearts, The Church launched a United Kingdom and European tour 'way back in 1982. That first LP, boosted by the Top Ten single "Unguarded Moment," went platinum in their homeland and gold in Canada.

A string of albums and EPs followed, including Blurred Crusade, Seance, Sing-Songs and Remote Luxury. That last was recorded as a mixture of EPs from Australia on the Warner label, and The Church phenomenon began in the States.

After a rest, the group recorded Heyday in 1986, and began working on Starfish the following fall. "Under the Milky Way" was released this past January, and the album came in the next month.

The Church has been hailed by critics as being an instant classic, "a timeless grasp of melody, dynamics and song structures," says Ram magazine. Creem adds, "These guys are great — they've always been great — and they just keep getting better." Amen.

Campus Calendar

The DTH Campus Calendar is a daily listing of University-related activities sponsored by academic departments, student services and student organizations officially recognized by the Division of Student Affairs. To appear in Campus Calendar, announcements must be submitted on the Campus Calendar form by NOON one business day before the announcement is to run. Saturday and Sunday events are printed in Friday's calendar and must be submitted on the Wednesday before the announcement is to run. Forms and a drop box are located outside the DTH office, 104 Union. Items of interest lists ongoing events from the same campus organizations and follows the same deadline schedule as Campus Calendar. Please use the same form.
