

The Fine Arts Festival, beginning in February, will take a look back at the culture of the 1960s

Groovy! Relive the '60s at festival

By RANDY BASINGER

For all the Hunter S. Thompson/Gonzo journalism fans strung out on Stones and Beatles music, there is a festival in the planning stages to satisfy your desire for a revival of '60s culture.

The Fine Arts Festival is an interdisciplinary event that provides its audience with the rare opportunity to examine a variety of media simultaneously and is coordinated entirely by students with faculty advisers.

Student organizers are asking for any campus organization interested in the art forms of the '60s to contact them for a cooperative effort. Planning for the event, to be held Feb. 23 through March 5, has already begun. The format will be much like the '87 festival.

Many still remember Festival '87, when many different art forms were expressed for 10 days under the theme of "Southern Accents." Activities included musical performances by the bands Love Tractor and Guadalcanal Diary, discussions with artists like photographer John Rosenthal and an evening of dance with The Carolina Dancers. The public was strongly encouraged to delve into an area of the arts, exploring its cultural value, and the '89 festival will hold a similar format.

"The purpose of the Festival is to stimulate student interest by bringing artists to the area and allowing the observer to indulge in the arts," said Larissa Jones, co-chair of the Fine Arts Festival.

Jones is encouraging people with programming ideas to get in touch with her at Room 216A, Suite B,

Student Union or call the office at 962-5505. Applications for those groups wishing to participate will be available in the office until Sept. 26, but those interested after that date can get in touch with Jones.

Co-chair Carson Holding says she hopes the entire campus will take advantage of the event and explore the art and culture of an era termed "America's coming of age."

So mark your calendars with a bold-faced SIXTIES CULTURE. Dust off those old Hendrix and Dylan albums and begin learning the lyrics again while you reread your dog-eared copy of Fear and Loathing in Las Vegas. Tie-dye some new T-shirts and start a monopoly on peace symbols and Vietnam protest paraphernalia. Get ready. Good luck, and peace, man.

Sports

Ramblin' through the sports world

Note time . . . Been watching the Olympics lately. Even enjoyed the equestrian events. NBC's job of serving the nation and the world is being done very well.

Thumbs up to Janet Evans, the little 5-foot-5 waterbug who won the women's 400-meter individual relay this week. A second Fonzarelli special to the network whose promo of Evans was a lot better than any "Up Close And Personal" I've ever seen.

Thumbs down to Matt Biondi, who had the men's 100-meter butterfly all but won, and then elected to cruise home over the final three meters. That miscalculation earned him a silver medal . . .

The Chicago Bulls have signed Michael Jordan to a $25 million dollar contract.

I guess it's like a friend used to tell me, "that's a lot of peanut butter and jelly sandwiches . . ."

Don't know if anyone noticed, but a couple of weekends ago, Gerry Faust, a coach many had predicted would lead Notre Dame to the mythical national title, took his Akron Zips into a 60-minute battle with Dick Crum, who many thought would coach North Carolina to the national title, and Crum's Kent State Golden Flashes.

Brent Musburger wasn't there,

Langston Wertz Opinion

CBS didn't give the score. From all reports, Chris Berman didn't even run the score on ESPN — during the part when they run scores, scores and more scores. Guess nobody cared . . .

After Clemson's loss to Florida State on Saturday, Tiger coach Danny Ford called one of the officials an "idiot."

He didn't call the official by name or directly blame him for the loss. But he did say, "I could sit here and say we got cheated."

Ford's comments came after Florida State ran a fourth-down fake punt to the Tiger 1-yard line. The Seminoles ran a running play for no gain, then took too long to run their next play — attempting to call their fourth timeout. The officials did not mark off the 15-yard penalty for calling the timeout that wasn't, and the Seminoles kicked the game-winning field goal on third down to win the game . . .

If UNC sputters this week against the Louisville Cardinals, the Tar Heels could be in for an 0-4 start. That would be the team's worst since 1967, when Bill Dooley's Tar Heels lost their first five games en route to a 2-9 mark.

But it is refreshing to see the Tar Heels actively go after points and victories, though. UNC throws the ball down the field, goes for fourth-and-ones on the opponent's goal line, and even onside-kicks now.

Hey Mack, glad you're here, pal . . .

Derrick Fenner, if given the opportunity, will rewrite many of the NAIA record books. At present, his academic records have yet to be processed by his new school, Gardner-Webb, and Fenner hasn't played football this season.

In any event, the former Tar Heel should heretofore be called "Mister Fenner" by anyone associated with the Atlantic Coast Conference. He got a raw deal . . .

Sometimes we should listen when our mothers tell us not to boast and brag.

This summer during the Carolinas Invitational in Charlotte, U.S. boxer Kelcie Banks told reporters that he would win the gold medal with ease, while showing off his modeling portfolio.

This week in Seoul, Banks was knocked out cold — for 2½ minutes — in the first round of his opening match.

Campus Calendar

The DTH Campus Calendar is a daily listing of University-related activities sponsored by academic departments, student services and student organizations officially recognized by the Division of Student Affairs. To appear in Campus Calendar, announcements must be submitted on the Campus Calendar form by NOON one business day before the announcement is to run. Saturday and Sunday events are printed in Friday's calendar and must be submitted on the Wednesday before the announcement is to run. Forms and a drop box are located outside the DTH office, 104 Union. Items of interest lists ongoing events from the same campus organizations and follows the same deadline schedule as Campus Calendar. Please use the same form.
