Football goes after first win vs. Louisville

By MIKE BERARDINO
Sports Editor

Finally. After starting the season with two virtually unwinable games, the North Carolina football team gets a "break" when Louisville comes to Kenan Stadium Saturday at 4 p.m.

Losses to South Carolina and Oklahoma have left the Tar Heels 0-2. But the odds makers have installed UNC as a 14-point favorite to give new coach Mack Brown his first win Saturday.

Mack Brown

Without offending the Cardinals, the oasis-in-the-desert analogy comes readily to mind.

Louisville, in the fourth year of coach Howard Schnellenberger's rebuilding program, beat Memphis State 29-18 last Saturday to take a 1-2 record into Chapel Hill this weekend. The Cards' losses came on the road to Maryland (27-16) and at home against surprisingly solid Wyoming (44-9).

In his first three years with the Cardinals, Schnellenberger, who coached the University of Miami to the national championship in 1983, has seen his teams go 2-9, 3-8 and 3-7-1.

This year's edition seems to be vastly improved, as quarterback Jay Gruden gradually takes aim on every Louisville career passing record. So far this season the 6-foot-1 senior has completed 61 of 97 passes for 697 yards and three touchdowns. On the down side, Gruden has also been intercepted six times.

Gruden's favorite target is Chad Fortune, a 6-5, 221-pound junior tight end. Gruden and Fortune have hooked up 11 times already this season, three times for touchdowns.

The Cardinals' top dual threat is 5-10 senior halfback Deon Booker, who has a 5.8-yard rushing average, has scored three touchdowns and caught 11 passes for 114 yards.

"We can't let Booker and Gruden control the ballgame, which they'd like to do," Brown said.

According to Brown, the task of preparing for Louisville's pro-style passing game has been difficult for the Tar Heels.

"At least you know what Oklahoma is going to do," Brown said. "They're easy to prepare for, hard to stop. Louisville had enough success running the football Saturday we don't know what to expect. We've got to plan on Louisville playing the game of their lives Saturday."

Brown said last week's win over Memphis State was the best he's seen the Cardinals look since Schnellenberger took over.

"People, I'm sure, have questioned him, have said he can't get it done at Louisville," Brown said of Schnellenberger. "It is so very hard (to rebuild). But there's no magic number of how long it takes. It takes good football players to win ballgames."

On paper, UNC would appear to have more than enough talent to win more than its share of football games. The first two losses were acceptable because they came against clearly superior opponents. Another 'L' on Saturday might not be treated with such understanding.

"People have asked me, 'If you lose this weekend, how awful would it be?'" Brown said. "If we lose to Louisville, it doesn't mean we're going to drop football. If we beat Louisville, it does not make us a national contender."

Cecil Gray, UNC's junior defensive tackle, said fans shouldn't worry about their team's confidence level.

"There's no lack of self-confidence," he said. "We know we're a good team; it's just a matter of playing up to our potential. We know we've got a tough schedule, but we can't use that as an excuse. It's just a matter of getting into the flow."

Might the Tar Heels look past the Cardinals to an Oct. 1 matchup with Auburn?

No way, said Gray. "We're 0-2; we have respect for everybody," he said.

So far, the Tar Heels' two-headed quarterback, Deemsathan Mayhall, has yet to earn any opponent's respect. Redshirt freshman Deems May should get his third straight start after going 23-for-55 for 226 yards in his first two outings.

Junior Jonathan Hall's struggles have been even more profound. He's completed just three of 16 pass attempts for a whopping 39 yards. Hall has looked good running the UNC option, though, picking up 61 yards himself on keeper plays.

Another player to watch is UNC senior wideout Randy Marriott. The Wendell native has caught 10 passes thus far in 1988 and needs just three more catches to move into the career top 10 at UNC.

Volleyballer Berg wants to have fun

By BETHANY LITTON
Staff Writer

In the world of college sports, where the pressure to win gets so intense that the pure enjoyment of playing the game seems to be forgotten, it's refreshing to find an athlete whose motivation is, quite simply, the fun of it.

She's Liz Berg, UNC volleyball's energetic star who, with a big smile, makes it very clear why she devotes so much time to her sport.

"It's just so much fun," she says, "if it wasn't fun, it wouldn't be worth it."

Berg's talent matches her enthusiasm. A sophomore from Arlington Heights, Ill., she's an outstanding outside hitter who leads the team in aces and digs. Her strengths, say her coaches, include aggressiveness, defensive skills and serving.

"Right now she's our most solid all-around player," says UNC assistant coach Diane Brown. "She's our smartest hitter, and she always finds a way to get around the block."

Berg started playing volleyball in junior high, choosing it over other sports because she liked its team aspect and because it was something new. In high school she became more devoted to the game, playing on an area U.S. Volleyball Association team in addition to her high school team.

Berg said her years on the USVBA team, which traveled extensively, were good preparation for college play. She was drawn to UNC because the team is so close, providing "a family-type atmosphere," and because she wanted to come to a strong academic school in a different part of the country.

When she's not on the court, Berg devotes much of her time to her friends, and she recently pledged Kappa Alpha Theta Sorority.

Among her biggest fans are her family, who travel to watch her play about once a month. She has a constant source of support from home, with family, friends, and former coaches calling often to encourage her.

Berg perceives her primary role on the team as an emotional one.

"I get really intense and have a lot of fun on the court, and it helps everyone get into the game," she says.

UNC head coach Peggy Bradley-Doppes seconded Berg's self-evaluation.

"Liz is a good competitor; she plays with emotion, which is what we really need," Bradley-Doppes says. "She's a really fiery player, which gives us an edge, physically and psychologically. I feel a lot better when Liz is out there."

Brown reiterated the coaches' confidence in Berg.

"If there's a time when we're ever in trouble," Brown says, "we'll go to Liz."

Missy Mroczek, a freshman outside hitter from Bethesda, Md., said of Berg, "Liz is a great person and it shows on the court. You can see by the emotion that she plays with that she just loves the game so much."

DTH Picks of the Week

Hey there, hi there, ho there, we're as happy as can be: f-o-o-b-a-l-l p-i-x. (You really have to sing it with the Mickey Mouse Club theme to get the full effect.)

Why are we happy, you query? Because it's Friday, and finally we get to pick the Tar Heels in a game they might actually win.

Yes, boys and girls, it's that time again — battle time. And what a battle it is. Andy (Don't Give Me A Nickname — I'm Serious) Podolsky led last week's pack with a 9-1 record to move into a first-place tie with Mike (The Duke) Bernardino.

Dave (I knew FSU was going to fake that punt) Glenn is but a game back while Chris (Di) Spencer wallows in the pix cellar (wet and stummy place that it is), four games off the pace.
