Up front:

6 F-f-fashion It's that time of the year again, when we propose to tell you what you should and shouldn't be wearing this fall. You too can be a fashion plate.

3 Food for the ears Mr. Potato Head took its name from its favorite food, and its music from its favorite bands. The intimate secrets of this unique cover band are finally revealed in our exclusive interview.

3 You missed it! Was it the rain? Party apathy? Or just midterm-induced fatigue? No matter, those of us who did make out on Halloween (costumes and all) made up for all you party poopers. And boy did we have fun. Details revealed in Graffiti.

4 Beautiful people Get caught up in a classic suspense drama. After "Fatal Attraction," James Dearden needed to prove he could make a truly well-done thriller — now, with "Pascali's Island," he does just that.

4 Introducing the soapy update Beginning this week we'll bring you the current goings on of those sleazy, wacky, tragic and funny soap opera characters on "General College" — brought to you from your friends at Student Television. You never have to panic again if you miss a week.

5 Save the whales The whole world comes to the aid of the enormous Bodine sisters when they get stranded in a cookie store. It just gives you new faith in the human race, don't it? On the lighter side, Joe Bob checks out the murderous camp director in "Sleepaway Camp 2."

9 It doesn't have to be a date You can go to the movies all by yourself (although that makes you look kind of pathetic and friendless). Grab someone off the street or be brave and go it alone, but either way, check out a good flick this week.

11 Get out. Out, we say! You've been cooped up with your midterm anxieties long enough. You deserve a break today, right now, THIS VERY MINUTE. Okay, take your exam first, if you must, then check out all the hot happenings in Week's Fare.

12 Lemonade and furniture polish This week Elizabeth Ellen talks about how we drink lemonade made from an artificial mix, yet use furniture polish with "real" lemon juice in it.
