Military revolt ends in Argentina

From Associated Press reports

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina — A four-day revolt by hundreds of heavily armed soldiers ended Sunday after the army chief of staff agreed to resign, giving in to a key rebel demand, Argentine news agencies said.

The army said in a communique that insurgents who were holed up at a military base just outside the capital agreed to give up their weapons and explosives.

Rebel commander Col. Mohamed Ali Seineldin met with army chief Lt. Gen. Jose Dante Caridi and worked out an agreement by which Seineldin — not his men — accepted full responsibility for the insurrection, and Caridi would step down as the army's top official, news reports said.

The agreement was reported by the private Noticias Argentinas and Diarios y Noticias news agencies, both of which cited political and military sources.

The rebels had demanded an overhaul in the military hierarchy, a bigger military budget and an end to prosecutions for human rights abuses committed during the 1976-83 military dictatorships.

It was not immediately known if any of the rebels' other demands were met.

The uprising was the worst threat to President Raul Alfonsin since his civilian government replaced a disgraced military dictatorship in 1983.

The government had refused to negotiate with the estimated 500 rebels, who had seized an infantry school at a military base outside the capital on Friday, then moved to another military installation on Saturday.

Alfonsin had wide support to quell the third rebellion in the past 18 months and pledged to "suffocate" it. But government troops repeatedly refused to attack or restrict the rebels' movements.

The Interior Ministry had said the government would "in no way negotiate the positions invoked by the fractious groups."

Authorities used tear gas to disperse protesters who threw rocks and bottles at the rebel-held arsenal in Villa Martelli, a working-class neighborhood nine miles from downtown Buenos Aires.

With some government officials calling the revolt a coup attempt, officials on Saturday called on the public to rally for democracy.

Tens of thousands of people gathered in plazas nationwide to support a democracy that has suffered six military coups since the 1930s.

The insurrection began Thursday when 53 members of an elite coast guard unit robbed an arsenal and deserted their base.

Thousands believed dead in wake of Bangladesh cyclone

From Associated Press reports

DHAKA, Bangladesh — The death toll from a cyclone that pounded southern Bangladesh and India could surpass 2,000, officials and news reports said Sunday.

The number of people still missing ranged from 3,000 to 5,000, according to newspapers and officials in the two countries.

According to the Red Crescent, the Moslem equivalent of the Red Cross, at least 1,115 people died in the storm in Bangladesh.

A navy officer who toured some of the hardest hit areas along the coast put the death toll at 1,300. Dhaka newspapers, however, said the tally had reached 1,500 and was likely to climb higher.

In India's West Bengal state adjoining Bangladesh, the official death toll reached 500 on Sunday.

Israelis seize Lebanese boat

JERUSALEM — The Israeli navy intercepted a Lebanese fishing vessel allegedly involved in transporting guerrillas and detained three crewmen, an army spokesman said Sunday.

In another development, shelling from the Israeli self-declared security zone killed one teenager in southern Lebanon and wounded seven others, Lebanese police said.

The Israeli army spokesman, who spoke on condition of anonymity in keeping with army regulations, said the Lebanese vessel was seized Saturday morning after a routine patrol spotted it near the southern Lebanese coast.

home in Natal province, killing 11 people and injuring two, police said Sunday. Authorities also found the body of a man who was slain in a nearby home.

Police had no motive for the killings, the latest episode of black-on-black violence in the province. Nearly 2,000 people have died in fighting between black political factions in the province's townships over the past two years.

Police said an unknown number of blacks knocked on the door of the home early Saturday morning and began firing when it was opened.

Three men, six women, a boy and a girl were killed, and two women were wounded in the attack at Trust Seed, a town near New Hanover in Natal, police said.

Officials silent on shuttle

SPACE CENTER, Houston — The military mission of space shuttle Atlantis continued under a shroud of official silence Sunday, although there were indications the orbiter would not return to Earth before Tuesday.

Atlantis is under the command of the Air Force, which has said it would give 24-hour notice of landing but otherwise maintain silence unless an emergency arises.

The Air Force gave no information on whether the five-man military crew accomplished its main goal: deployment of a powerful radar satellite designed to gather extremely sharp images of East Bloc military facilities in all weather.

Enrollment

ards. Those students need to work particularly hard to stay at UNC, but many of them are not aware that they came in at a disadvantage, he said.

Herbert Davis, associate director of undergraduate admissions, also said retention is UNC's biggest problem and if black students can be encouraged to stay at UNC, then enrollment will also improve. It is especially disturbing when students leave for non-academic reasons, he said, and programs should be aimed at those people.

"We would think that with the very good students we get here, we should have a good retention level," Davis said.

The most successful recruitment programs are those that bring students to the campuses, Davis said, such as Project Uplift, a weekend visit for minorities who are rising high school seniors. Bringing students to campus helps erase many of the misconceptions or fears they may have about being a minority student at UNC, he said.

"We have some programs in place that are certainly very strong in getting students to the campus," Davis said.

Harold Wallace, vice chancellor of University affairs, said one goal of new recruitment programs is to "try to intensify and increase involvement on the part of students, as well as black alumni."

This is the first year for the Chancellor's Minority Scholars Program, which recognizes 25 incoming freshmen as Chancellor's Minority Scholars, awarding them an annual $1,000 scholarship. The program is still being developed, Wallace said, but it has been extremely well-received.

Another new program is High School Honors Day, a follow-up to Project Uplift. All students who attended Project Uplift in the summer and are in the top 15 percent of their high school class are invited to attend the Honors Day in the fall.

Wallace said the University needs to concentrate on areas that have not been as successful in minority enrollment, such as the graduate and professional levels.

"The University needs to do everything it can to make it a more welcome place — a more inclusive, caring community," he said. "At some levels, we're doing a reasonably good job, but we need to increase commitment."

Wallace said he is encouraged by the efforts of student and community groups towards increasing black enrollment.

Eleanor Morris, director of the Office for Scholarships and Student Aid, said General Administration provides a fund for a Minority Presence Scholarship, which is designed to encourage black attendance. The scholarship is for incoming freshmen and is not renewable for the following years, she said, but students who return can receive financial aid from other funds, if needed.

We've reformed the correction system.

Prisoners of old-fashioned correction systems, freedom is here.

Smith Corona's Correcting Cassette means an end to twists, tangles and fumbles.

It's an easy-to-load, drop-in correction tape you can insert in mere seconds.

There are no spools to unwind. No complicated threading. No more muttering under your breath. It's that simple.

What's just as simple is our Right Ribbon System™. It simply prevents you from using the wrong combination of ribbon and correcting cassette.

You'll find our Correcting Cassette and Right Ribbon System on the Smith Corona SL 600 typewriter.

You'll also find lots of other great features on the SL 600—like the Spell-Right™ 50,000 word electronic dictionary, full line correction, WordEraser™ and more.

You might expect a typewriter this sophisticated to cost a bundle, but the SL 600 is surprisingly affordable. All of which makes it one of the best values you can find today.

Case closed.
