Bland wishes and resolutions

Folks, it's durn near Christmas. As the resident sports columnist for the DTH, I am here to give you my Christmas wish list and New Year's resolutions.

For the past 20 odd years (and believe me, they have been odd), I have made two lists at the end of each year. The first is my greed list, which begins with the words "I want." The second is a list of things I will either try or try not to do beginning with the first of January. Without further ado, here it is:

Wish Numero Uno — I want UNC to beat Duke in basketball. You don't know how bad I want UNC to beat Duke. If Santa doesn't give me his word that he will let the Tar Heels beat Duke at least once this year, I will throw a hissy fit.

Wish Numero Two-o — (I never was good at Spanish.) I want Duke's campus to suddenly fall into the Abyss of Hell.

Wish Number Three-o — I want the Hornets to make the playoffs and bring respect for the city of Charlotte.

Wish Numbre Quatre — I want the Redskins to make the playoffs and repeat as Super Bowl Champs. I know that's stretching it, but, hey, I gotta be me.

Wish Umber-nay Ive-fay-o — I want the Yankees to win the AL East.

Wish No. 6 — I want them to bring back G.I. Joe with the Kung Fu grip. Wish #7 — I want UNC's football team to win at least two games next year.

Wish Number Eight — I want the Chapel Hill High skateboarders who damn near run me over when I'm walking to class to fall into the Abyss of Hell along with Duke.

Wish Numeral Nueve — I want someone to come along who can do the Heisman Trophy proud. Someone like me.

But there is another part to the holiday season, you know. It comes after Christmas, is full of more good times, happens only once a year and gives everyone involved one last chance to relive the glory of the past year. You know what I'm talking about: Bowl games.

I'm not real sure about the Notre Dame-West Virginia matchup in the Fiesta Bowl. Mr. Logic says the Irish, but Mrs. Underdog argues West Virginia by three.

So what are my plans for the holiday season? Well, I'm going home after flunking my exams, take up residence on the couch, and watch

"Bugs Bunny" and "Perry Mason" all day long. Then, I'm going to Memphis to see South Carolina and Indiana whip up on each other in the Liberty Bowl, and then I think I'll cut down to New Orleans and get drunk for New Year's.

Which brings me to my list of New Year's resolutions, which I resolve to follow religiously.

1. I resolve never to say anything bad about Mike Kryzwz . . . Kryzwz . . . Kryzwz . . . Jim Valvano again. Unless he deserves it.

2. I will try to be less obnoxious at UNC basketball games. This is all depending on how much I've had to drink, of course.

3. Never again will I eat the nachos at the Smith Center. Take my advice; you'd be smart to put this on your list. Last time I got those cardboard-flavored, imitation Doritos I was nearly Cheez-Whizzed to death.

4. And finally, the most important resolution of all, the last one. Hmmm . . . let's see. Resolution number five, what'll it be? Lose weight? Done already. Get a tan? Get real.

Nope, can't come up with one. However, if I do happen to think one up while I'm lying comatose on the floor of Pat O'Brien's in New Orleans, I'll let you know in January.

Until then, feliz noel and Auld Man River. Or something like that.
