Tar Heel swimmers soak up win at State

By ERIC WAGNON
Staff Writer

RALEIGH — "I always love beating State. There's nothing more to it than that," head UNC swim coach Frank Comfort said following his men's 131-112 victory over the host Wolfpack. The victory gave UNC a 27-26 lead in the all-time series against their Raleigh rivals.

"In December '85, they beat us. It's the first time since then that they've really seriously challenged us," Comfort said. "They're a vastly improved team and they really wanted to beat us."

In the most dramatic finish of the night, freshman Cameron Cole overtook State's Brian Dowling in the last length of the final freestyle leg of the 200 IM to win with a time of 1:55.26.

UNC racked up 16 points with a 1-2-3 finish in the 500 free. Freshman Ron ZuWallack came from behind to win the event. ZuWallack never looked back after taking over the lead 10 lengths into the race, finishing in 4:37.49. Marc Ferguson and Ralph Vick followed ZuWallack's lead to finish second and third, respectively.

"Tonight was a night when we raced to win events and do a lot of other scoring," Comfort said. "We won the key races and that's what was critical." Comfort now feels that his swimmers have gained confidence for the upcoming ACC meet, to be held in Chapel Hill February 23-25.

UNC swimmers finished 1-2 in the shortest freestyle event of 50 yards and in the longest of 1,000 yards. Chris Himebauch and Marc Croggan captured the honors in the 50 free while Ferguson and Jim Crampton combined for another 13 points in the distance event.

A 1-2 finish in the 200 fly equally helped UNC's team score, with Chris Languell finishing in 1:51.12 and John Davis in 1:54.55.

Croggan in the 100 free and Davis in the 200 free rounded out a Tar Heel sweep of the freestyle events. Both garnered first place finishes with Croggan winning in 46.60 and Davis clocking in at 1:41.40.

Commenting on the overall rivalry, Comfort said, "One of the fun things is that this takes us ahead in the all-time series. That means something to an old man. It may not to (the UNC swimmers)." Comfort added, "We had been leading in that series until 1976, and then they gradually caught up with us."

State's strong diving corps helped the Wolfpack keep the meet close. State's Simon Jackson edged out Tar Heel Nunzio Esposito in the one-meter event. In three-meter competition, Wolfpack divers held senior Andy Hunter and Esposito to third- and fourth-place finishes.

UNC sophomore Matt Countie appeared headed for a victory in the 200 backstroke, but State's Steve Bradshaw caught him at the 150-yard mark and coasted in with a time of 1:53.15. Countie finished second in 1:54.82.

Several Tar Heel swimmers challenged State's Adam Fitzgerald in the 200 breaststroke. However, Fitzgerald fended off an early challenge by UNC's Gary Gauch and John Fischetti.

N.C. State

back and gave that extra effort," N.C. State coach Jim Valvano said. "We threw away all our junks and tricks. In fact, I think we played straight man (defense) for about 35 minutes."

Monroe, State's leading scorer this year, suffered through a 7-for-23 day in Chapel Hill, but the 6-3 sophomore was definitely on this time. His back-to-back treys midway through the first half staked State to a 29-17 lead.

Monroe's point total reached 15 on a baseline leaver at 5:07, but soon thereafter Monroe picked up his third foul and went to the bench for the half's final 4:05.

Rather than fold, State actually increased its 37-30 lead, using eight points from reserve guard Kelsey Weems to outscore UNC 13-4 into the locker room.

The Wolfpack shot 59.4 percent (19-32) from the field in the opening period and held an 18-7 rebounding edge.

J.R. Reid scored UNC's first seven points and had 14 by the 6:28 mark, but the big junior managed only one more attempt the rest of the night. He spent the majority of the second half watching from the bench as UNC chased on defense and bombed from the outside on offense.

State built its biggest lead of the night at 61-39 on Brown's three-point play with 16:04 remaining. Senior guard Jeff Lebo, who was held scoreless in the Clemson loss, tried to rally the Tar Heels, pouring in 20 of his team-high 22 points after the break.

UNC narrowed the deficit to 87-78 with 3:22 to play on Pete Chilcutt's second three-pointer of the night. But Monroe hit two free throws, Lebo threw the ball away and Weems broke free for a back door jam to seal the outcome.

"It's disappointing, but life goes on," UNC's Steve Bucknall philosophized. "They were fired up. They had lost two games in a row, and they really wanted to beat us. They were just a step quicker than us all night." Chris Corchiani, State's point guard, added 12 points and 10 assists in 39 minutes.

"NASTY, DECADENT FUN.
Close is chilling—in a performance of controlled venom, she's superb. Malkovich's snaky charm is both droll and potent."
—David Ansen, NEWSWEEK

"A spellbinder. A seductive, scary, savagely witty look at the unchanging way of the world. Don't expect Masterpiece Theater gentility. This baby bites! Close gives a juicy, jolting performance destined to become widely celebrated."
—Peter Travers, PEOPLE MAGAZINE'S "TEN BEST" LIST

"Intelligent, witty, entertaining decadence. Malkovich's intelligence and strength shape the audience's response. Nothing Miss Close has done before approaches the richness and comic delicacy of her elegant performance."
—Vincent Canby, THE NEW YORK TIMES

"A triumph of great artistry and distinction. Lavish and hypnotic like a Faberge spider web. The finely tuned cast work in perfect harmony."
—Rex Reed
