4 Rallying back

After suffering through a winless ACC campaign in 1988, coach Allen Morris' men's tennis team has seniors David Pollack and Jimmy Weilbaeher back from a year's hiatus. This year's edition of the Tar Heels should be more competitive.

6 Pride and power

Coach Dennis Craddock wears a permanent smile these days, and one of the biggest reasons why is his women's track team, led by Kendra Mackey, Sharon Couch and Kim Austin. The men aren't bad either.

8 Shooting for the top

The 13 seniors on UNC's lacrosse team began their careers with national championships back in 1986. This season, led by Neill Redfern and Paul Fitzpatrick, among others, the Tar Heels are a safe bet to make it to College Park, Md., and the Final Four.

10 Papa don't preach — she demands

UNC softball coach Donna Papa has a bevy of talented players at her disposal, but getting them to play at their peak day in and day out is another story.

11 They swing a mean stick

Coach Dot Gunnells' women's golf team is ranked 14th in the country, thanks to the senior leadership of stars like Katie Petersof and Donna Andrews.

12 Both men bleed blue

Using a philosophy remarkably similar to that of L.A. Dodgers manager Tommy Lasorda, UNC baseball coach Mike Roberts will try once again to get the most out of his team's talent. This year, the Tar Heels may even live up to their No. 22 national ranking.

14 Out on a mission

Last season, coach Devon Brouse's men's golf team wasn't invited to the NCAAs. Using that as a motivation, this year's Tar Heels look to get back on track, and maybe even make some noise around the nation's toughest golf conference.
