In left will be junior Todd Nichols, who sat out last season, while Roberts will likely platoon Villani and switchhitting Brad Woodall in right. Woodall, a sophomore, hit .306 with 23 ribbies as a freshman.

UNC's catcher for the third straight season is Jesse Levis. The 5-9 Philadelphia native started 60 of 61 games last year and showed no sign of wear and tear, hitting .317 with 10 home runs and 37 RBI. In Saturday's loss to The Citadel, Levis cranked his first homer of this season, a two-run shot.

He is a rock behind the plate.

Dodgers, its the UNC pitching staff everyone loves to talk about. Led by a trio of juniors - lefty Michael Hoog and right-handers John Thoden and Jim Dougherty — the Tar Heel hurlers have the talent and the depth to carry a team to the ACC championship.

"Our pitching is our number one strength," Roberts said. "We look to that to keep us strong every day."

Thoden, who was MVP of the Cape Cod League last summer, has already won his first two starts this season, yielding just eight hits and one run in 13 innings. Last Saturday he tossed a four-hitter at The Citadel.

Hoog, who outdueled Clemson's ace in the ACC Tournament last May, is battling arm problems. He should have won the Rick Mahler But as is the case with Lasorda's Award for durability after a sophomore season in which he pitched a team-leading 109 innings, surrendering 120 hits in the process.

The burly Coloradan went 10-6, setting a team record for wins in the process.

After that performance, Hoog skipped summer ball and underwent arthroscopic surgery on his shoulder in the offseason, but he apparently still hasn't recovered. Saturday in Charleston, Hoog got bombed for six runs in two innings-plus.

Dougherty went 6-5 last year as the No. 3 man in the rotation. Behind him are Scott Lodgek (5-4, 5.10 ERA) and sophomore Kreg Gresham (2-4,

In the bullpen, Roberts has lefty Rich Fernandez (1.80 ERA, seven saves) and converted submariner Chris Cornacchio, who looked great in last week's season opener, coming in with the bases loaded and setting down seven straight Coastal Carolina
