

We all scream for ice cream, yogurt, cookies

Students with a sweet tooth take heart: you won't miss Mom's chocolate chip cookies for long. Once you make your way to Franklin Street, you will find enough bakeries and frozen-dessert shops to keep you happy.

The frozen-dessert shops include Baskin-Robbins, Ben & Jerry's, Gelato D'Oro, Swensen's and The Yogurt Pump. The bakeries are Bruegger's Bagel Bakery and The Columbia Street Bakery and Coffeeshop. Holey Donuts is the only doughnut shop near campus. All of these businesses are on Franklin Street, except Columbia Street Bakery and Coffeeshop.

Baskin-Robbins on any given day has at least 40 flavors of ice cream. It serves by cup or cone, as you please, with no distinction in price — a single scoop either way is $1.14. A waffle cone, however, is 30 cents more. Baskin-Robbins also has pre-packed ice cream by the quart, ice-cream sandwiches, pies and cakes.

Ben & Jerry's has 33 flavors of 100-percent-natural ice cream made in Vermont. A single scoop in a cone or a cup is $1.34. Sugar cones are available and waffle cones are 50 cents extra. Three ices are served daily. A variety of toppings, averaging 40 cents each, add a touch of flavor to the ice cream. Ben & Jerry's specialties include ice-cream cakes, sandwiches, cookies, floats, shakes and freshly-squeezed lemonade and limeade. The "Vermonster," packed with 20 scoops of ice cream, serves 6-12 people at $21.95. If ice cream isn't enough, a glance around the store shows bandanas, hats, puzzles and shirts all with the Ben & Jerry's logo for sale.

Gelato D'Oro has about 20 flavors of ice cream. It also serves by cup or cone, but while a single scoop in a cup is $1.15, a single scoop in a homemade waffle cone is $1.50. Gelato D'Oro also has seven flavors of frozen yogurt and three flavors of ices, in addition to espresso and iced cappuccino.

Swensen's always has at least 40 flavors of ice cream, and they have the ingredients to make 175. Ice cream is served in a cup or cone, same price either way, $1.05 for a single scoop. They now serve four flavors of frozen yogurt. Swensen's is also a restaurant, so you can sit down and be served.

The Yogurt Pump, an all-yogurt shop, has five flavors, including chocolate, fruit and vanilla. They sell by cup or cone, about the same price either way, $1 for a small cone, $1.16 for a small cup.

Bruegger's Bagel Bakery has 10 flavors of bagels, including cinnamon-raisin, onion, oat bran, poppy and sesame seed. A single bagel is 35 cents and a dozen are $3.50. Bruegger's has six flavors of cream cheese, including a rich walnut honey, and it occasionally features a special flavor like strawberry.

The Columbia Street Bakery and Coffeeshop has brownies, cookies, muffins and all-butter pastries. They will make custom cakes for birthdays and other occasions, along with six kinds of fresh bread daily. They also serve fresh cappuccino, espresso and other coffees. Individual items are anywhere from 25 cents to $1.25, with bread at 99 cents for a baguette and up to around $1.67 for a loaf. Cakes range from $8 to $15, depending on size. The Columbia Street Bakery also has sandwiches, salads, six kinds of juice, 14 varieties of natural soda and 15 flavors of tea. In the evening, Columbia Street features entertainment such as discussion, drama, music and poetry.
