Hard Rock Cafe strikes back

From Associated Press reports
 TYRO — A second North Carolina business has been threatened with a lawsuit by the Hard Rock Cafe, but the owner of the first business sued said the owners of the bistro giant are just whistling Dixie.
 Lawyers for the company whose name graces the front of T-shirts the world over has sent a letter to Dan Stamey, accusing him of infringing on their client's name by planning to name his barbecue restaurant in Tyro the Hog Rock Cafe.
 "No one is going into New York and be disappointed if the Hard Rock Cafe isn't selling barbecue, and no one is going to go into Hog Rock Cafe and be disappointed if Jimi Hendrix's joystick isn't hanging from the ceiling," said Grant Kornberg, owner of Chapel Hill's Hardback Cafe & Bookstore.
 Stamey says he's heartened by the fact that the Hardback Cafe & Bookstore eventually got to keep its name.

But it did agree to change the logo on its sign and stop selling promotional T-shirts.
 But the Hard Rock Cafe owners still seem to want to avoid any confusion between it and the Tyro barbecue palace Stamey plans to name the Hog Rock Cafe.
 "Your suggestion that there is no confusing similarity between Hog Rock Cafe and Hard Rock Cafe is simply without merit," says a letter from Hard Rock lawyer Ralph Kalish Jr. in St. Louis.
 Kalish's father and law partner, Ralph Kalish Sr., said Wednesday they were trying to protect their client's name from dilution by all sorts of similar-sounding cafes springing up since their client's success.
 "You might want to plead for the little barbecue stand," Kalish Sr. told The Charlotte Observer in an interview published Thursday.
 "But it's not just the only pebble on the beach."

 So Stamey, you might say, now finds himself between a place and a Hard Rock.
 He started using Hog Rock Cafe on the menu for Stamey's Bar-B-Que Restaurant in Tyro last spring. Later, in August, he registered a corporation with Hog Rock Cafe in the title, planning to use the name for his new restaurant.
 Then the registered letter arrived.
 Founded in 1973, Stamey's sports a sign that allows: "Come taste the best BBQ in Tyro."
 Inside can be found a juke box and a dark green counter with walls of matching green and blond oak — and some offending sweatshirts. While they don't resemble the yellow on black or white Hard Rock Cafe sweatshirts at all, a few are lettered with Hog Rock Cafe.
 Others, which say Top Pig, feature a saluting swine standing before an airplane with "Piggy Sue" scrawled on the side.

Joel tune best thing since 'Sesame Street'

From Associated Press reports
 NEW YORK — Billy Joel's No. 1 single "We Didn't Start the Fire" has crossed over to the classroom, where teachers soon will be using the pop star's rapid-fire riff on global history as a teaching tool.
 A special cassette version of the song, including a 10-minute talk by Joel, will be provided to 40,000 junior and senior high school students nationwide, according to the singer's label, CBS Records.
 "I think the letters I have gotten from teachers and students alike have been really encouraging," Joel says at the start of the tape. He goes on to discuss his love of history and talks about his one-time career choice: history teacher.
 "A lot of people tend to think history is just this drab series of boring names and dates that you just have to connect to pass the test," Joel continues. "Really, history is a living thing. We are where we are today, and we are who we are today, because of our history."

 The tapes will be sent out with the Jan. 26 issue of Junior Scholastic magazine, for junior high school students, and Update magazine, for high schoolers, said Scholastic public relations manager Stephanie Feuer. Teachers will receive a poster-sized copy of the lyrics and a lesson plan.
 "We're trying to create a bridge between the classroom and what's going on in the outside world," Feuer said. "We're bringing their world into the classroom."
 Joel packs enough images into the song to fill a few volumes of the World Book: He begins with Harry Truman, touches on the Korean War, "trouble in the Suez," "Belgians in the Congo" and the JFK assassination, then wraps it up with a string of current events climax-ing with "rock and roller cola wars."

 Each year from 1949 through 1963 gets a verse; USA Today described the song as "musical Cliff Notes."
 In an interview with Rolling Stone, Joel said teachers have told him the song is "the greatest teaching tool to come down the pike since 'Sesame Street,' which means a lot to me."
 A fifth-grade class at the Santa Elementary School in Menasha, Wis., used the song lyrics last year to select topics for history reports.
 Joel's interests weren't strictly educational — there is a record to be sold, as Feuer noted, and "We Didn't Start the Fire" is the pianist's highest-charting single since "Uptown Girl" hit No. 3 in November 1983.
 "These kids are part of the record-buying public," she said. "The record company wanted to do something a little different."

when Rodney Monroe converted a layup and a free throw; Monroe led the Wolfpack with 27 points but committed four costly turnovers.
 UNC pounded it back inside to Williams, who came through with four quick points.
 Williams said the Tar Heels found the fine line between aggressiveness and overaggressiveness late in the game. "If you have the lead, sometimes you just try to hold on," he said. "But King did a good job of handling the ball and getting it to the right people. And we knew when to take it to the basket and when to pull it back out."
 UNC sealed the victory by hitting 9 of 12 free throws in the final two minutes.

 Only then could the Wolfpack players catch their breath, but by then it was much too late: Smith had a winning record at Reynolds once again.
