'Political correctness' cultivated at universities nationwide

Editor's note: This is the first of a four-part series examining the rise of 'politically correct' thinking.

By Marcie Bailey Staff Writer

Eliminating prejudice, promoting multiculturalism and equating races and gender are the aims of the new 'politically correct' ideology.

P.C. is finding its way onto college campuses across the country, prescribing "correct" attitudes toward race, sex, sexual orientation, culture, education, ecology and politics.

It is a way of thinking created in an environment of college students brought up in a generation promoting an ideology of equality and justice. Grounded in the universities, P.C. has not spread its views nor its controversy into the rest of society, according to an article in the Washington Post.

An article in Newsweek described P.C. as having a Marxist origin, a broad sense of redistributing power from the privileged white male to suppressed classes and races.

Administrators and student group leaders at UNC said they don't think P.C. has a significant role on campus.

Gillian Cell, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, said she hoped P.C. didn't become an important issue on campus, but she said she hadn't seen much evidence of it at UNC.

Some members of the National Association of Scholars, opposers of P.C., say P.C. is a totalitarian philosophy, courage P.C. We think for ourselves, imposing highly restrictive speech codes and ways of thinking, usually held unconstitutional by courts. Some see P.C. as restricting the right to free speech and the guarantee of equal protection under the law.

P.C. has negative connotations to the point where many people who consider themselves P.C. do not like to admit it, the Post article stated. It also has been considered fashionable to attack P.C.

Patrick Rothwell, co-chairman of Carolina Gay and Lesbian Association, said his organization did not encourage or use politically correct thinking. But he does see it on campus, he said.

"In CGLA there are a number of people, some of whom are left-wing on every issue," he said. "We don't enand it makes us stronger. We focus on

"I think there are a number of P.C. people on campus: students or faculty. If you don't follow the line, you are somehow being discriminating. I've been in Lenoir and had someone snap at me for using styrofoam instead of plates. I detest the P.C. phenomenon," Rothwell

Bill Hildebolt, former student body president, referred to the 'scud attack' on the Peace Village by the College Republicans as a form of P.C. on cam-

"Their form of protest borders on an ideological attack," he said.

Hildebolt said the College Republicans' action was a problem because the attack happened in the Pit, where students are supposed to be able to express feelings freely.

A problem also arises with public relations, he said.

"People on the outside see opinions being repressed. A lot of people supported the war, and seeing a protest attacked at UNC is frustrating to people," he said. "They see Chapel Hill as liberal and wonder why we suppress views."

In the realm of education, P.C. is being used to promote multiculturalism and to dispel the idea of the Western white male hierarchy.

An article in the Washington Post suggested that "a history course is P.C. only if it teaches that Thomas Jefferson owned slaves and referred to Native Americans as wild savages."

Molefi Asante, chairman of African- See P.C., page 4

American Studies at Temple University, proposed a curriculum called "Afrocentric," which exposes students to more specific and diverse areas of: African studies. In a Newsweek article, Asante said, "There are only two positions. Either you support multiculturalism in American education, or you support the maintenance of white supremacy."

The problem P.C. opponents see with its integration into education is professors forcing a certain way of thinking on students.

"I have not had complaints from students, that they feel there is a certain position they have to take in class," Cell

Milton's 2-fer Sale!

Choose a suit or sportcoat - select another - get both at special 2-fer prices! Don't need two? Bring a friend and share the savings!

Wool Tweed & Shetland Sport Coats 2-fer $98 reg. $225 each

Wool Tropical Suits 2-fer $398 reg. $435 each Wool

Blend Suits 2-fer $338 reg. $395 each

All Cotton Seersucker Suits 2-fer $198 reg. $275 each

Basic Elements Cotton Slacks 2-fer $38 reg. $85 each

Reunion Cotton Sweaters 2-fer $58 reg. to $135 each

Wool & Wool Blend Suits 2-fer $198 reg. to $385 each All Silk

Sport Coats 2-fer $198 reg. $245 each Cricketeer Tropical

Wool Suits 2-fer $498 reg. $495 each

Poplin Suits -Cotton Blend 2-fer $248 reg. $225 each

Milton's Clothing Cuphoard 163 E. Franklin St., Downtown Chapel Hill • Mon.-Sat. 10-6:30, Sunday 1-5, 968-4408

Campus Calendar

2 p.m. JUNIORS: Find out what you can do over the summer to prepare for your senior year job search. Attend JOB HUNT 100: JUST FOR JUNIORS in 306

Hanes. Sponsored by UCPPS.

3 p.m. SENIORS: The After College Committee of the Senior Class 1991 is sponsoring a seminar on "Taxes, Insurance, and Realty" in 208 Union.

4 p.m. Dr. William Harmon and the Students of English 990 announce the semi-annual "Killer Genius from Hell," poetry reading in the Donovan Lounge, 224 Greenlaw. Free refreshments! 5 p.m. The UNC Juggling Club will meet in Great Hall until 11 p.m.

Theses & Dissertations

on 100% Cotton 8¢ per copy

on White Bond 4¢ per copy

C.O. COPIES Open 7 Days a Week • Until 10:00 Weekdays

967-6633

6 p.m. The Black Pre-Professional Health Society will hold elections for next year and have an ice cream social in the BCC

6:30 p.m. The Politics of Race and Sex on Campus: Dinesh D'Souza, author of Illiberal Education, speaks tonight in 111 Murphey 7 p.m. Physicians for Social Responsibility, Chapter Meeting: Public welcome! Water and Safety: An International Environmental Concern will be presented by Dr. Daniel Okun, Professor Emeritus, UNC School of Environmental Engineering. 7 p.m. pizza, 7:30 p.m. presentation. Wesley Found The UNC Chess Club meets every Tuesday evening on the second floor of the Union 7:30 p.m. Student Government offers free tutoring in CHEM 11, BIOL 11, STAT 11 & 23, MATH 22, 30 & 31, ECON 10, French 1-4, and Span 1-4. Come to second floor Dey until 9:30 p.m. 8 p.m. UNC Young Democrats will meet in 211

Union for election of new officers and to discuss plans for next year. All are welcome ATTENTION SENIORS AND UNDERCLASS-

The Carolina Bedrace was once again postponed

Correction

In the April 22 article "Supreme Court refuses to hear appeal by UNC law professor, 2 attorneys," several copy-editing mistakes were made. Robes county should have been Robeson County, and Lumber Indians should have been Lumbee Indians. The Christic Institute South was misspelled as the Christie Institute South, and Institute director Lewis Pitts' name also was misspelled.

The DTH regrets the errors.

due to bad weather. It is rescheduled for 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. Wednesday, April 24 in the Pit. It's not too late to register! All T-shirt money and/or donations ben-efit the IFC Homeless Shelter. Help the Senior Class make a difference - participate, watch and have fun!!

ITEMS OF INTEREST There will be a meeting of all rising seniors interested in applying next fall for Rhodes, Marshall, and Churchill Scholarships for graduate study in Great Britain 5 p.m. Wednesday in Gerrard Hall. This meeting will be preceded at 4 p.m. by a general information session on applying to graduate schools in the arts and sciences. The Carolina Union Forum Committee will hold an interest meeting 4 p.m. Thursday, April 25 in 206 Union. We will discuss speakers for 1991-92.

Witness something powerful in the Pit: Friday at 12:30. The Ebony Readers will present a preview of their Spring Production. Today is the day for you to audition for Tar Heel Voices. Come join the fun and start a New Tradition The UNC Audit Board is accepting applications for 1991-1992 membership. Minimum accounting experience for membership is BA 71 or accounting work experience. Applications are available at the Union desk. Turn in to SAFO Office (203 Union) by 4 p.m. Tuesday, April 23.

Group Leader Applications available at Campus Y, BCC, Union desk and Davis Library. You don't need to have been a Big Buddy to apply. Turn in your application at the Campus Y by 5 p.m. today! All Big Buddies!! Come by the Campus Y and fill out either a Returning Big Buddy form or a Program Evaluation Form by April 26. This is mandatory!! Seniors and Graduate Students who have accepted jobs are requested to complete a UCPPS Employment Survey form, available in 211 Hanes. Those still seeking jobs may make an appointment to see a UCPPS counselor (call 962-6507) and may call the Job Hot Line (962-UCPPS) to hear current openings. Tar Heel Recycling Program, TARP, announces nobile drop-off site for today is benind the dumpster between Davis Library and Hamilton Hall for news-paper, glass and aluminum cans.

her efforts as Co-Chair of the Student Environ- for his peers and future students at UNC. mental Action Coalition and as Secretary of the Executive committee of the Campus Y. Lisa's accomplishments include developing a toxics campaign that has raised awareness of growing environmental dangers. Recently, she was instrumental in SEAC's campaign to unite schools across the state to influence the North Carolina State Legislature to better fund the educational system. She University Community.

John Frank Lomax, Jr. (Greenville, SC) For his commitment to responsible student activism. As Co-coordinator of Students for Educational Access, John Lomax was instrumental in leading the student response to the devastating effects of the State's reduction of University funding. He coauthored the 40 page University at Risk report, detailing the effects of the budget cuts on the library system and on all colleges, schools and departments within the University. This report is currently being employed by the North Carolina tion of the Honor System presentations to over General Assembly to educate its members as to 4,000 Freshmen and Junior transfers. He estabthe gravity of the University's financial situation. John also co-authored the first student-generated, long-range Land-Use plan for the University and worked with the Alumni association to require need based scholarships of its larger chap-

Sharon Renee Couch (Rice, Va) For her efforts with the University of North Carolina Athletic Council, her achievements as President of the UNC Monogram Club as well as her success as an outstanding track and field athlete. Sharon has received national recognition for her talent and record-setting times, including ranking first in the nation in this, her final year at UNC. As president of the Monogram Club, Sharon voiced the needs and concerns of student-athletes to the Athletic Department. Sharon's many accomplishments include participation with the production and development of an Atlantic Coast Conference "Stay in School" videotape directed towards middle school child education. She is an outstanding athlete whose influence and leadership will affect the lives of many here at the University.

Anthony Stuart Deifell (Clearwater, FL) For his initiative and leadership in developing the A.P.P.L.E.S. program at the University of North Carolina. This innovative service learning organization allows students to make contributions in community service as an integral part of their academic experience. Tony was instrumental in establishing a permanent service-learning coordinator position thus ensuring that the A.P.P.L.E.S. program will grow and prosper in the coming years. Tony has served as Advising Chair and Coordinating Chair of the program, heading an active task force of faculty and students.

Hemamalini Moorthy (Toronto, Canada) For her lasting contributions towards the advancement of race relations at the University of North Carolina. She has served the University as Chairperson of the Performing Arts Committee, Co-President of the Campus Y, Chair of Student's for the Advancement of Race Relations as well as Chairperson of and intercultural unity. Last year, Malini conceived and organized the first Student Fine Arts Festival. She was also instrumental in developing the first Race Relations Week to address the need for understanding and harmony among the University community. Her work has helped to unite SEAC, an integral part of the University and Chapel culture and the arts.

Mark Turner Burniston (Raleigh, NC) For his long lasting contribution to equality and understanding at UNC. As Co-president of the Carolina Gay and Lesbian Association, Mark initiated and secured a landmark University policy prohibiting discrimination on the basis of sexual orientation thus ensuring the freedom and preservation of rights for all members of the University community. With this tremendous contribution, Mark has demonstrated courage and fortitude through

Elizabeth Gracie Abbott (Chapel Hill, NC) For his leadership and has emerged as a role model

Sabrina Dawn Evans (Brooklyn, NY) For her efforts with the Black Student Movement, the Committee on Racism, the Black Faculty Council and The Black Cultural Center. Sabrina's efforts as President of the Black Student Movement have gained the respect of the entire University Community. Her steadfast commitment to strengthenhas shown patience, understanding and clarity of ing the foundations of the BSM through educavision that serves as an example to the entire tion and promotion of racial harmony among the University community have yielded unprecedented results. Sabrina's initiative brought about progressive revisions to the BSM's Constitution and strengthened the communication lines between the administration and the African American community.

> Jeffrey Scott Tracy (Raleigh, NC) For his excellence in enhancing the University's oldest and most revered institution, our Honor System. As the Chairman of the Undergraduate Court, Jeff has distinguished himself through his organiza-worked with the programs "Off the Cuff" and James Claude Benton (Lawndale, NC) For his ing and expanding the Tar Heel 10,000, a road "General College." In 1989, Chris helped estab- commitment to improve race relations and prolish the first comedy night for Homecoming. This year, Chris has served as the Vice President of the ombudsman and assistant editor for The Daily Tar 1991 Senior Class.

Winston Louis Bissette, III (Asheville, NC) For his commitment to excellence through independent student initiative. As co-coordinator of Students for Educational Access, Louis has co-produced Economic Diversity at Risk, the first study to calculate the growing economic exclusivity of UNC-CH's student body; and University at Risk, the only comprehensive analysis of the state budget cuts' effects on nearly all segments of the campus and now in the hands of every member of the General Assembly. His efforts with SEA have aided to significantly increase the allocation of trademark royalties to student aid, and he has worked with the Alumni Association to require local need-based scholarships of 80% of its chapters. As president of his fraternity and the Order of the Old Well, Louis is a leader possessed of the highest character and compassion.

mote multi-culturalism within the print media. As Heel and Black Ink, he has been a constant advocate for racial harmony. He continued to challenge his readers to strive for ways to positively co-exist. James is also an active participant in several other University activities include being a Co-president of the Peer Piloting Program, counsellor for Project Uplift, a member of UNITAS and the North Carolina Fellows Program.

Jessica Leigh Vollmer (Bunn, NC) For her excellence as Co-director of Homecoming and Special Events for the Carolina Athletic Association. Jessica has shown great dedication in the enhancement of UNC's Homecoming celebration. She successfully coordinated the most important events of Homecoming Week into one night, organizing the efforts of a large student staff, the University and Chapel Hill Police, performers and many other University groups. This colossal undertaking served to strengthen the bond be-tween the town of Chapel Hill and the students, faculty and staff of the University. Her dynamic race to benefit the Make A Wish Foundation, has made this worthy project successful and permanent. Also, Sean has served the University by implementing a ticket distribution policy which better responds to the needs of the student body.

Joel Michael Sipress (Carrboro, NC) For his fervent commitment to the concerns and interests of UNC-CH's graduate students. As Co-chairperson of Graduate Students United, Joel has spearheaded the drive against cutting graduate stipends and benefit packages, for the adoption of tuition remission, and the fight to save Odom Village. He has given a desperately needed voice to graduate students and kept their concerns at the forefront of Administrator's agendas. His efforts have aided in securing close to a million dollars to cover graduate fellowships from the Provost's office, led him to Raleigh to lobby legislators on behalf of the University, organized a highly successful voter registration drive, and galvanized graduate students into an effective and vocal force on campus.

Seong Soo Choi (Raleigh, NC) For his commitment to providing quality physical education and creating the UNC Martial Arts Club. Since 1981, Mr. Choi has instructed over 500 martial artists at the University of North Carolina. He has proven his concern for excellence not only through the rigorous physical training but in the spiritual and emotional development of his students. He has developed special self-defense programs to meet the particular needs of all University students, many of his programs are specifically designed for female students. In the Fall of 1990, Dr. Choi developed "Adapted Martial Arts Education" to meet the needs of visually impaired students. He has shown a great concern to address the requirements of individual students by offering a method of physical training which, in turn, has helped these individuals gain self-discipline and self-con-

Harry Gooder (Chapel Hill, NC) For his dynamic and decisive leadership as chairperson of the University's Faculty Council. Elected three years ago, Dr. Gooder has vigorously advocated the desperate needs of our faculty in relations with South Building and Raleigh. He has brought a unifying voice to the faculty and promoted faculty-student-administration cooperation. Dr. Gooder has brought trusted faculty insight to the Administration and has been consistently supportive of student initiatives and interests. Holding an office that has been described as "all influence", Dr. Gooder has earned a reputation for fairness, honesty and tenacity. Further, in thirty years with the Department of Microbiology, Dr. Gooder has been an excellent lecturer and regularly published researcher.

Audreye E. Johnson (Durham, NC) For her contributions to the quality of education at the University of North Carolina. Dr. Johnson conceived, developed and coordinated the idea of providing an annual workshop featuring outstanding African American scholars and practicing professionals. These day and a half workshops have brought nationally and internationally recognized schol-with the University Managers Association and as Director of Internal Audit. Mr. Capel was one of the founders of the University Managers Association where he served for two years as second president of the group. He was instrumental in getting supervisory training offered again at this University. His dedication and enthusiasm established the UMA as an important organization on Christopher Sean Wilkinson (Raleigh, NC) For campus among senior administrators. The overwhelming success of his projects demonstrate his unique leadership abilities. Furthermore, this extraordinary contribution was made on top of his full time job as Director of Internal Audit.

Order of the Golden Fleece

The Order of the Golden Fleece is the University's oldest and highest honorary organization. Founded in 1903, the Golden Fleece recognizes those individuals who have made significant and lasting contributions to the University.

On Friday, April 12th, twenty-two members of the University community were inducted into the Golden Fleece. They bear the mark of distinction, persons who high achievements and character have enhanced the life of all members of the University community.

Through recognition of excellence, the Golden Fleece has sought for eighty-eight years to honor and perpetuate the qualities to which the Order is dedicated. The individuals identified herein are deserving of this recognition, as they are of the appreciation of us all.

Congratulations, New Argonauts!

to increase awareness of the Honor System. Furthermore, Jeff spearheaded the development and publication of a new training manual allowing for a more thorough orientation of court and staff her outstanding leadership in making the Stu-Quaker coordinated the efforts of activists from standing. across the country to establish SEAC's permanent base in Chapel Hill. During a period of rapid expansion and structural reformation, her determination and energetic leadership served to unify Hill community. Through her vigilance and talent, SEAC has become an incorporated and truly independent organized voice for young environmentalists across the country.

Christopher Lemont Brown (Pfafftown, NC) For his positive efforts towards cultural diversity at UNC. With the establishment of the Student Television program "Midday!", Chris has created a new forum for racial and cultural understanding. Now in its third year, "Midday!" has served to ing for the coordinator's position has been asaddress and expose the concerns of organizations throughout the campus. Additionally, Chris has lished a new committee structure within the court Debbie Gaurnet Baker (Raeford, NC) For her involvement serves to protect one of UNC's finest outstanding contributions as a peer counsellor and a role model for minority students at the University of North Carolina. Debbie has distinguished herself through her participation as a volunteer for UNC's Office for Student Counsel-Quaker Elizabeth Kappel (Toronto, Canada) For her outstanding leadership in making the Stu-Race Relations Week. In all of these positions, dent Environmental Action Coalition a truly na- Issues, Debbie has educated and challenged the Malini has worked to promote understanding tional network of young environmentalists. community on issues of racial and cultural under-

> Michael Newport Steiner (Albuquerque, NM) For his dedication to community service as an educational process. As one of the founders of the A.P.P.L.E.S. Program, Mike Steiner has combined education and service into a single medium. The A.P.P.L.E.S. program is designed to integrate service activities into the academic curriculum to add dimension to both. To make A.P.P.L.E.S. a permanent program, Mike helped to organize the program's structure, solicited faculty support for it and co-wrote the proposal to raise student fees in order that a permanent Service Learning Coordinator might be hired. With the Student Body's recent approval of the referendum, fund-

Ulrich Alexander Fox (Nassau, Bahamas) For his excellence as a member of the UNC Men's Basketball team and as a positive role model for young people. One of two players in Atlantic Coast Conference history to attain career totals of 1,500 points, 500 rebounds, 250 assists, and 150 steals ars to the campus to share their research and while shooting 50% from the field and 75% from suggest strategies for work within the African earned him honors on the All-ACC first team this the Black Experience Workshop has made a lastseason. For his outstanding performance in lead- ing and extraordinary contribution to the Univering the Tar Heels to the 1991 ACC tournament sity community. Championship, he was named the tournament's most valuable player. He is also a member of the Edwin A. Capel, Jr. (Durham, NC) For his efforts East Regional first team for his contributions in advancing the Tar Heels to the Final Four at the NCAA 1991 tournament. Off the court, Rick is dedicated to encouraging educational success and discouraging drug use among young people as evidenced by his active participation with numerous community organizations.

his excellence as Vice-President and ticket director of the Carolina Athletic Association. During his term as Vice-President, Sean has unified the Athletic Association under a more service-oriented focus. His dedication to founding, develop-