High-spirited audience appreciates all-vocal show

Congratulations are in order for the UNC Clef Hangers' second annual a cappella invitational, a hit well appreciated by the sell-out crowd in Carroll Hall Saturday night.

Saturday night's program featured Speak of the Devil from Duke University, The Extractions from UNC Dental and Medical Schools, Virginia Gentlemen from the University of Virginia, Vocal Point from the University of Rochester and the Clef Hangers.

It was clear that the audience was in high spirits and expecting great talent from these performances as they enthusiastically applauded the Clef Hangers' rendition of a Beatles' favorite, "I Wanna Hold Your Hand." From then on, it was an evening of smooth sailing through a sea of great sounds.

Speak of the Devil, a group which formed a year ago, got the audience's attention with a humorous song outlining their history as a group and their background. They sang selections from the past such as the "Happy Days" theme song and "Brown-Eyed Girl." They also touched on the soulful side of melody with "He Ain't Heavy, He's My Brother." Overall, they were a talented and humorous ensemble to watch.

The Extractions, a group consisting of only five members, performed an exciting version of "It's So Hard to Say Goodbye" and some old favorites such as "Run Around Sue" and "Stand By

The audience also enjoyed the group's skit depicting Eric Montross getting mutilated by Duke players in the

Make Granville Towers your choice at

UNC. We offer a wide variety of choices:

· Three resident halls East, West and

Variety of meal plans – 7, 10, 14, and

unlimited per week

· Double room vs. single room

 Academic floors vs. traditional And much more. Stop by today for more

929-929-7143

All women floors vs. coed

details. The place to be at UNC!

The Virginia Gentlemen, an a cappella group from Charlottesville, Va., perform Saturday evening in Carroll Hall

The Extractions' play-acted "videotape" of the memorable clash, Montross was actually beaten with sticks by the Duke players rather than simply being scratched on the head.

Since these vocalists have been together for a mere two months, they had only white T-shirts and blank tapes to offer the audience after the show. If recent UNC-Duke game. According to they stay together, these talents will surely have more material. Though it seems impossible to imagine an a cappella group performing "Unbelievable" by EMF or "Right Here, Right Now" by Jesus Jones, Virginia phrases.

It's your choice!

Gentlemen did it quite successfully. A highly talented group with a di-verse repertoire, the Virginia Gentlemen captivated the audience from the beginning of their segment. When they

Granville Towers

1-800-332-3113

performed a Pink Floyd selection, the audience was mesmerized by the beautiful tones and poignant pauses between Serenading a member of the audience brought onto the stage, Virginia Gentlemen was the only group to interact directly with the audience. Nancy Ingram, a member of the Loreleis, pointed out that Virginia Gentlemen are "always awesome." The audience agreed as they gave the men a standing ovation and were thrilled with the encore they received.

Vocal Point, the only female group in Saturday night's program, gave an interesting performance as it refreshed the audience by showing things from a woman's point of view

From the confrontational tone in "I Heard It Through the Grapevine" to the haunting melody of a Eurythmics selection, they gave the listeners a rare treat. Highlighting their performance was an entertaining skit which explained the "PMS Woman": a creature convinced that men are always wrong, and able to find every minute fault in anyone cross-

Elizabeth Oliver

Concert

The Clef Hangers, performing last, were animated throughout their presentation. They conveyed an effective sense of togetherness by huddling in a group during their serious selections. One song in particular, "Somebody," seemed to capture the audience as the tender lyrics told of a man's quest for true love.

The Clefs also entertained the audience with a skit outlining some typical UNC campus perils such as the Pit preacher and registering through Caroline. As expected, this ensemble garnered much applause and returned for an upbeat encore

Perhaps Neal Nichols, a freshman pharmacy major from Taylorsville, reflected the audience's attitude towards the invitational best when he said, "They looked like they were having so much fun, it made me wish I was up there with

As the evening drew to a close with the audience joining the Clef Hangers in the singing of UNC's alma mater, it was difficult to distinguish who enjoyed the evening more: the performers on the stage or the people watching

Campus Calendar

MONDAY 2:15 p.m. Internships for academic credit: For chomores and juniors in the College of Arts & ences, a workshop will be held in 306 Hanes, adding for applying for academic credit is March 31.

3 p.m. Job Hunt 103: Interviewing skills workshop for senion and graduate students will be held in 306 Hanes. Sportsored by UCPPS.
7 p.m. A presentation by Ralston Purina will be held at the Carolina Inn. Sponsored by UCPPS.
7:30 p.m. Group 84 Amnesty International will meet in the Newman Center.
CGLA will meet in 209 Union.
8:30 p.m. Fellowship of Christian Athletes presents former pro-football player Gary Newell in Carmicbael Ballroom.
TUESDAY

TUESDAY TUESDAY
4 p.m. International Careers Panel will be held in 224 Union. Sponsored by UCPPS and Office of International Programs.
9 p.m. Cupid's Day Mixer at Player's until midnight. Sponsored by SRC and WHC governments.

TAR HEEL SPORTS SHORTS

Senior Citizens TODAY *N*omen's Basketball Florida State

7:00 pm Carmichael

Advising

Lowman said he also would welcome any suggestions students had to improve the systems. "There are students walking around here with a wealth

The advisory committee is only concerned with General College, which comprises freshmen and sophomores. Once sophomores have declared their majors, their records are transferred to the College of Arts and Sciences, where students are assigned both a departmental and an Arts and Sciences adviser.

The journalism, business and pharmacy schools are not part of the College of Arts and Sciences. The committees will not examine the advising systems of these schools.

Benzaquin said the advisory committee might look at the transition between the two colleges.

The committee also will discuss communication between advisers and stu-

"Apparently, a lot of students are receiving mail late or never getting it at all," she said, adding that this was a problem especially for out-of-state stu-

Other areas that committee members hope to examine include the expansion of the Carolina Course Review and an improved preregistration schedule for incoming freshmen.

Milton Smith, an advisory committee member, added that student feedback would help improve communication between advisers and students. "We're going to see how we can get more of the advisees to come in to see their advisers."

He added that many students were unable to discuss majors and academic problems with their advisers because of time-consuming paperwork. "Some students have never even seen a sheet with the requirements for their majors," he said. Benzaquin said advisers' schedules were hampered by students who failed to make appointments or who missed their scheduled meetings. "Each of the advisers has 225 students," she said. There is some responsibility that the student has to take. But she added that a common problem among students was that they believed "they can do it on their own with all the rules we have here.'

"By not using the advising system, people might be caught off guard."

She said she hoped the committees would find a compromise between independence and guidance. "Helpful as the advising system is, we don't want to be hand holders."

TANNERY

10 Visits $35.00 20 Visits $60.00

pen 7 days a week • Til 10 pm Weekdays 929-5409

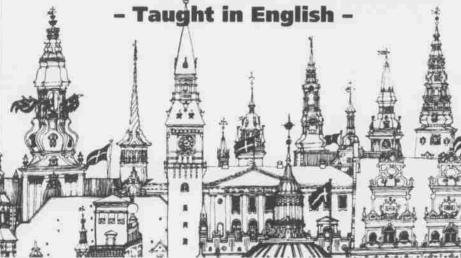

TRANSITION

Stay with us and your rate will stay with you!

Granville Towers, University Square, Chapel Hill

A Summer Program on Europe West and East June 10 - July 29, 1992

Enhance Your, Future This Summer

Denmark's International Study Program

Copenhagen is really a European classroom. The main emphasis at DIS is on what is happening right now. I was taught by excellent Danish professors who also practice in their fields. The study tours are incredible. My "Danish family" accepted me as a full family member. What I have gotten out of Denmark is invaluable. This was my best term in college - I loved it!" Matthew Colgrove, University of Oregon, DIS student 1991.

DIS also offers fall and spring semesters in Humanities & Social Sciences, International Business, and Architecture & Design. See your Study Abroad Office for the special Summer Brochure and the DIS Study Guide, or call 1-800-247-3477 for these materials.

How To Choose. How To BE CHOSEN.

A FREE SEMINAR

Is getting accepted into graduate school, law school or business school your goal? Learn what factors to consider when choosing a graduate or professional school. Discover what qualifications admission committees look for and how to make your application stand out.

Sponsored in conjunction with Alpha Kappa Psi by

TOTAL TEST PREPARATION

Monday, February 10th • 7:00 pm • Room 106 Gardner U.N.C.