

Two Research Grants Awarded

Two research grants totaling $24,575 were recently awarded to the University here by the American Cancer Society for the support of cancer research already under way in the UNC Medical School and allied departments.

One grant of $9,575 will be used by Dr. J. Logan Irvin of the Medical School to further his study of the reaction of normal cells and tumor cells to two important types of compounds.

The other award is a $15,000 Institutional Research Grant that will be allocated by UNC's Institutional Research Grant Committee, of which Dr. K. M. Brinkhouse of the Medical School is chairman. Members of the committee are faculty members who have a strong interest in cancer investigation. They include representatives of the Botany Department, the Zoology Department, and the Medical School's Departments of Pathology, Obstetrics and Gynecology, Biostatistics, and Surgery.

The $9,575 grant is financed in part by a special contribution made by the Mecklenburg County Unit of the North Carolina Cancer Society for the support of the national cancer research program. This gift was in addition to the usual 25 per cent of Cancer Crusade funds which each unit contributes to the national research fund.

Keppel, Sanford Will Speak Here

Francis Keppel, U. S. Commissioner of Education, and Governor Terry Sanford will speak in Memorial Hall at 3:45 p.m. Friday, March 8.

The appearance of Commissioner Keppel is sponsored by the North Carolina Citizens Committee for Better Schools. Commissioner Keppel and Governor Sanford will discuss educational progress and problems in North Carolina.

At 2 p.m. the same day, Discussion groups will meet in Peabody Hall, led by qualified discussion leaders, to focus attention on significant educational problems to be solved.

A concert of sacred music will be presented by the men's choir from the Lutheran Church in America, is under the direction of Robert S. Clippinger who has directed the group for 16 years. Chapel Hill is one of three North Carolina cities to be visited by the choir which is currently touring Virginia and Maryland. The choir, which consists of men studying for the ministry in the Lutheran Church in America, is under the direction of Robert S. Clippinger who has directed the group for 16 years. Chapel Hill is one of three North Carolina cities to be visited by the choir which is currently touring Virginia and Maryland.

Miss Orange County Pageant Announced

The annual Miss Chapel Hill Pageant will be changed to the Miss Orange County Pageant this year and held on Friday, May 3, in Memorial Hall, Pageant Chairman Randy Moore announced yesterday.

For the first time this year, any girl who is a resident of Orange County, between the ages of 18 and 28, will be eligible to compete in the pageant. The sponsoring Chapel Hill Jaycees expect a minimum of ten girls to enter the 1963 pageant.

Winner of the title Miss Orange County 1963 title will get a $250 scholarship, a complete wardrobe and an expense-paid trip to Greensboro to compete in the Miss North Carolina Pageant in July.

This year, as in the past two, the Chapel Hill Jaycees will be in charge of securing entrants for the pageant. They are seeking the most lovely and talented girls in Chapel Hill, Hillsboro, and Orange County. Anyone having suggested entries are asked to call Mrs. James Heavner at 968-6002.

DKG Society Hears Miss Peacock Talk

The Alpha Pi Chapter of the Delta Kappa Gamma Society held a dinner meeting at the United Congregational Christian Church last Thursday evening. Devotions were led by Mrs. Claude Shotts. After dinner Miss Jessie Bell Lewis, president of the chapter, presided over the business session.

Miss Helen Peacock, program leader, presented Dr. Eunice Tyler, professor of Public Health Education at the University. Dr. Tyler talked about her seven-month trip around the world, showing slides indicating her interest in public health and the role played by women throughout the world.

A ceremony was held initiating five new members into the chapter: Mrs. Victoria Fields of Siler City; Mrs. Betty Caviness of Bennett; and Mrs. Evelyn Murdoch, Mrs. Jesse Gauger, and Miss Nell Check, all of Chapel Hill.

The group will meet again in April at the Elms in Siler City.

Ullman To Pick Balzan Winners

The 1963 winners of the never before awarded International Balzan Foundation prizes, similar in scope to the Nobel Foundation prizes, will be selected with the help of a UNC professor emeritus. B. L. Ullman, Kenan Professor Emeritus of Classics, will attend the February 26 meeting of the Committee on Prizes of the Balzan Foundation to select the prize winners. The meeting will be held in Zurich, Switzerland, the main headquarters of the foundation.

Winners of the Balzan prizes will be announced on March 1 in Zurich.

Five Balzan prizes are scheduled to be awarded to outstanding world figures. They are: one for "peace, humanity and fraternity among the people of the world;" two in "letters, philosophy and the arts;" and two in the sciences.

Balzan prizes will be awarded for the first time in the areas of the arts and sciences. The categories of these awards are: music, history, mathematics, and biology.

Following the official inauguration of the foundation on March 1, last year, the foundation awarded its first peace prize of about $25,000 to the Nobel Foundation. UNC's Prof. Ullman is one of two U.S. members of the foundation's Committee on Prizes. A total of 24 leading world scholars are members of this committee. Following the announcement of the Balzan prize winners, Prof. Ullman will journey to London, England, where he will give a series of three lectures on manuscripts at the University of London, March 6-8.

The International Balzan Foundation is named after the late Eugenio Balzan, former director of the Milanese newspaper "Corriere della Sera."

When Balzan died, he left in his will provisions for his daughter to establish a foundation dedicated to peace and the recognition of outstanding world figures.

Balzan's daughter died in 1957 before the foundation became a reality. Angela left a will stating the provisions for the foundation, and it has been set up according to these wishes.

Tom Wicker Will Speak On Thursday

"Presidential Government" is the title of the fourth Journalism Lecture for 1962-63 to be given by Tom Wicker, 1948 graduate of the School of Journalism, now White House correspondent for the New York Times, at 8 p.m. Thursday, in 104 Howell Hall.

Mr. Wicker, a native of Hamlet, N. C. became executive secretary of the Southern Pines Chamber of Commerce upon graduation. In June, 1949, he went to the Robesonian in Lumberton and later handled publicity for the North Carolina Department of Public Welfare. A veteran of World War II, he was called back to active duty and served two years in Japan as Public Information Officer.

Returning to newspaper work in 1954, he became sports editor of the Winston-Salem Journal. In 1957 he moved to the Washington Bureau of the Journal-Sentinel, but took a year's leave as a Nieman Fellow at Harvard University in 1957-1958. After returning to his job in Washington, he became associate editor of the Nashville Tennessean in July 1959. He has been with the Washington Bureau of the New York Times since 1960.

University Baptist Sermon Announced

The morning worship service at University Church will begin at 11. Dr. Henry E. Turlington, pastor, will speak on "The Presence of the Living God." The Chancel Choir, under the direction of Mrs. William C. Burris, will sing "Praise the Lord, Ye Heavens Adore Him" by Cousins, "O, Rest in the Lord" from "Elijah" by Mendelssohn will be sung by Mrs. Opal Hips, mezzo-soprano.

The Rev. Wilbur N. Todd will be guest minister at the evening worship service beginning at 7:45. Mr. Todd is training union director of University Baptist Church.

Prior to the evening service the discussion groups and training union will meet. The adult discussion group will begin a study of the social service agencies supported by North Carolina Baptists. Dr. I. G. Greer will lead this introductory discussion. "Academic Freedom" will be the subject for discussion at the student forum. The speaker will be the Rev. Julius Corpening, pastor of Temple Baptist Church, Durham.

A training union program is provided for other age groups, and a nursery for pre-school children is maintained at each service.

'Young Turks' Visit Parkwood

Parkwood residential development on the outskirts of Chapel Hill will be inspected by the "Young Turks," a select group of nationally-recognized young home builders.

Edward Birkner, executive editor of House & Home Magazine, announced that the Parkwood visit would be part of the "Turks'" inspection of Kavanagh-Smith & Company's operations in Greensboro, February 8 to March 1.

Parkwood is a Kavanagh-Smith project which won the 1962 National Association of Home Builders award for "best planned residential community."

Mr. Birkner serves as secretary of the informal "Turks," which is sponsored by House & Home, a Time, Inc., publication.

"Members," Mr. Birkner said, "are volume home builders chosen for their outstanding local reputation and national reputation. They must be proficient in two or more phases of home building and community planning."

"These men are called 'Young Turks' because of their willingness to break with tradition, and to try a fresh new approach to a problem."

"Young Turks" visit other members at their own expense, Mr. Birkner said. They hold a seminar at which all phases of the host's operations and organization are discussed: accounting, advertising, marketing, purchasing, sales, engineering, design and construction. They inspect construction sites and completed subdivisions.

"On the afternoon of the second day the visitors hold a critique."
