ATTACKED BY A LIONESS. Minnie Merrick, a Circus Girl, Seriously Injured

While riding in the lion's cage. On Fifth Street at 11 on Saturday Morning...

The show people had started out on their parade. They were coming over on Fifth street, and it was between Vince and Sycamore that the lioness rushed upon the woman.

Miss Merrick had nothing but a small riding whip with which to protect herself. She was therefore at the mercy of the vicious animal which knocked her out of her chair...

SALEM AND VICINITY. Reminiscences of the Town From 1828 to the Present Time

The following is a portion of the fourth paper which appeared in the Salem Press today on the "Reminiscences of Salem and Vicinity," from the pen of Augustus Fogie.

Here Mr. Christian Blum resided. In 1827 he founded the Weekly Gleaner, a newspaper that developed into the People's Press and is the only paper published in the place.

Mr. Samuel Shultz, a shoemaker, lived next door. Then came the Charles Bagge house, built originally by Mr. C. Vogler.

Mr. Vogler's son, E. A. Vogler, was also a prominent man in church work. He owned the brick store later shrewdly occupied by the same man.

FOR A NATIONAL PARK. The Devastation of Timber Lands Demands Forest Preserves.

North Carolina Has Splendid Forests, But they are Being Ruthlessly Destroyed—Unless Steps are Soon Taken to Preserve Them, They Will Be Only a Recollection of the Past.

The wholesale devastation of the timber lands of the country emphasizes the importance of establishing and maintaining permanent forest preserves.

PUGILISM POPULAR. Washingtonians Take More Interest in Prize Fights than Politics.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 15.—If Benjamin Franklin ever dreamed of the scene on Pennsylvania avenue last Wednesday evening, when a yelling, howling mob of 15,000 people crowded that historic thoroughfare to read the story of John L. Sullivan's waning star, as told on canvas, he would doubtless have left a request that the old Stills, Hutchins, formerly proprietor of the Post, be restrained from presenting his statue to the City of Washington.

The statue stands upon one of those triangles which relieve the Avenue of the monotony of continuous lines of walls, and directly in front of the Post building.

THE BLUE COAT'S UTOPIA. The pension office, the blue coat's Utopia, is to be dressed with double diligence and practically surrounded during the week to the men in whose interests it is conducted.

There are about 4,000 old soldiers in the government employ in the pension office. So it is easily seen that there will be a ten day's reunion and not much work.
