BANKER THOUGHT DEAD RETURNS TO HIS HOME

Waynesboro, Miss., Sept. 5.—Returning to his home here after a mysterious disappearance of more than eighteen months and after he had been regarded as dead and the body of another man identified and buried as his own and after his estate had been official administered and settled, C. C. Green, sixty-one years old, former banker and land-owner, declines to say where he has been since his disappearance.

The only statement he would make for publication was:

"Being heavily in debt when the war came on and notes falling due on the first of the year, and being unable to meet my obligations when due and having a horror of going into bankruptcy, I decided to go away for thirty or sixty days until matters would, perhaps, adjust themselves to the times. My health failed to such an extent that I was unable to return at the appointed time.

"I did not hear a word from my family or from any acquaintances for more than twelve months, neither did I let them hear from me. My family heard from me only a few days before my return, yet I took them by surprise as they had not been advised just when I would return."

Green is suffering from rheumatism and is somewhat worn out. He said while he was among entire strangers he could not have asked for or received better treatment. He will immediately assume charge of his business affairs.

Green left Mobile, Ala., Jan. 11, 1915. So far as can be ascertained none of his family or friends knew where he was going or had seen or heard from him since that date, until he reappeared in Mobile.

A long search was conducted to locate Green, but without success. Some months after Green disappeared the body of a man found at Dadeville, Ala., was identified, it was said, by Green's son, Russell, as that of his father and was buried at Huntsville, where Green lived before coming to Waynesboro.

Green's estate, at the time of his disappearance, consisted chiefly of lands in Mississippi, Oklahoma, Alabama and Texas and was valued at about $200,000. J. A. Leggett, a former business partner of Green, was the administrator of the estate, which was finally settled up in Alabama courts and the administrator and attorneys were paid their fees, which amounted to a considerable sum, it was said.

"Maid In Japan."

TSURU AOKI, LASKY STAR, IN PARAMOUNT PICTURES.

It is seldom that artists of one nationality extend their friendships to the shores of alien countries. The great operatic and dramatic stars of Europe, it is true, are well known in America, but the Lasky studios boast of a little Japanese Miss who has won the hearts of thousands who have seen her in Paramount Pictures. She is Miss Tsuru Aoki, who is as popular as her unique husband, Sessue Hayakawa. They are appearing together in a photoplay entitled "The Honorable Friend," which touches upon a phase of Japanese life in America and which will be shown at Paramount Theatres.

SCHOOLS SHOULD OPEN UNDER MEDICAL SUPERVISION

State Board of Health Recommends Physical Examination of School Children at Opening.

That all schools should open in the fall under some form of medical supervision or physical examination for the purpose of finding and correcting physical defects and preventing serious illnesses as well as epidemic among the pupils, would be, in the judgment of the State Board of Health, a splendid step toward conserving the health of the school children as well as a means of aiding them in their mental development. This can be done, advises the board, by the school physician just before school starts or during the first few days after school opens without any appreciable interference with school work. The plan is in operation in a number of rural and city schools already and works to wonderful advantage to the schools' progress as well as to the general improved health conditions of the school children.

What would probably be the ideal plan as to this matter, especially where neither the county nor town has provided for medical school inspection, would be, according to the board, for every parent to see that his child is suffering from no defects as to his vision, hearing or breathing, or as to his teeth, tonsils, and throat when he enters school. In other words, if parents would take it upon themselves to have their children physically examined before entering school, then medical supervision for the school would not be necessary.

ORGANIZE TO FIGHT RETAIL MERCHANTS' HIGH PRICES.

To The Evening Dispatch: Why the people should support a co-operative grocery business.

Because in the first place we will conduct our own business to reduce the high living expenses, it is not the high price of commodities that has run up the cost of living for the laboring man but the cause is that there is not any systematized retail grocery business in the city. There is no way that they can tell under their present system what they are doing and if they could only discover where to reduce operating expenses there is 95 per cent of them that would not worry with it.

The system in vogue now was almost 30 years ago, but we are living in an age of efficiency and by consolidating our efforts in co-operation we can have the two that go together economy and efficiency. We are in the same condition that the people were in England, several years ago and they organized a co-operative supply company and to day they are one great system of stores.

We can have the same thing in Eastern North Carolina if we will consolidate our efforts in co-operation to the means of reducing the excessive cost of living.

There is not a laboring man in Wilmington that would not like to be able to have a bank account, but he will never have one as long as we have to pay for mismanaged business, and for superfluous labor as some of them have today.

What can we do? Organize our own business. The retail merchants have their own association, they organized, against us; not for our protection but their own. "It is up to us Mr. Laboring Man to organize and ix our cost of living. We want only that which belongs to us. Can we get it? Yes: By being loyal to our self and family.

There is no efforts made by the retail groceryman to get or make any reduction in the cost of living if they had hen eggs would not they be 40c today. If they would send one of the horse's and wagons that they maintain, by the cost of them and buy up the stock of eggs and country produce of our farmers and not depend so much on eggs or any other commodity we would not be paying today 75 per cent of our gross earning for the staples of life.

Mr. Banker, Mr. Professional and Executive heads of co-operation, give us your support. It will give Mr. Banker more depositors, Mr. Executive more efficient employees, we don't want to hurt no one's business but we must be served and the only way we can do it is to co-operate and get results and we can do it by supporting our own business.

Why not subscribe to stock in this co-operative goods store organized for the laboring man, by the laboring man. Our employers will approve what we say, it is a good thing. Get his advice on it and then come to 415 North Sixth street and see the chairman and get the condition under which we are going to operate, we will same you 33 1-3 per cent. M. B. CAVENAUGH.
