

LONDON SHOPS CLOSE EARLY

Is Latest Drastic Measure Taken by The Great Britain Parliament.

London, Nov. 11.—The latest drastic act for government control of business in the interest of war efficiency is the law passed by parliament for early closing of shops. All shopkeepers, great and small, must shut their places of business at 8 o'clock, except on Saturday nights when they may keep open until nine. The first proposal was for even earlier closing, but the bill was amended to grant an extra hour for five days of the week, by changing seven to eight.

The chief object aimed at is economy of heating and lighting, which of course means economy of coal. One of the great assets of Great Britain during the war is its revenue from the exportation of coal, and moreover, its allies need all they can get. Like every other war measure, however, this act excites opposition and creates complications, although the people as a whole will accept it cheerfully as they have other inconveniences.

The small shopkeepers who live at their place of business are the ones who find most objection. One ground of criticism is that the public houses are still to be opened until half past nine. "Why should men and women be allowed to gather in drinking places and buy beer, if they cannot loaf in a cigar store and buy cigars, and gossip with the clerk?" is one of the questions asked. Places where meals are served may remain open, but only for the purpose of giving meals. They cannot sell cigars, nor can they sell candy or food to be taken off the premises, since the shopkeepers dealing in the same commodities are forbidden to sell. Nor can the night hawk who has carts in the streets for dispensing coffee and lunches to late workers, according to some constructions of the law, sell cakes to be taken away.

Some of the complications concern places of amusement. "The theatres and music halls must not sell cigars and confectionery after 8 o'clock if we cannot," say the small shopkeepers. "That would be class legislation, and unfair competition." Smokers who are up late, hereafter, must have to tobacco in their pockets, or go without.

WOMAN CERTAIN TO GO TO CONGRESS.

Helena, Mont., Nov. 11.—Late returns assure the election of Miss Jeanette Rankin, Republican, to Congress.

Can Recover Meal.
Washington, Oct. 11.—That valuable meal for feeding cattle and poultry can be recovered from wastes at fish canneries has been determined by investigations of the Department of Agriculture's scientists.

SAFEGUARDING YOUR ESTATE An individual executor or trustee may be sick for months; or abroad for health or pleasure; or absent from home at a time when action is absolutely necessary for the best interest and protection of the estate. He often refuses, or is unable to give the parties interested definite information as to the condition of the estate, and a suit for accounting becomes necessary; or his books are kept so carelessly that no one can tell how matters stand. In case a friend or a member of the family is acting as executor, it is with rare exception that it is not embarrassing to insist upon a statement.

Reason FOUR why you should appoint as executor
