UNION SCHOOL.

WILLIAM HOOPER SCHOOL.

Evelyn Harriss, Caroline Bear, Lina McEachern and May Belle Carroll.

Usley Pershake, John Ormsby.

On Monday morning last Mr. Odie... the school and gave us a very interesting talk about the boy who didn't...

Last Friday morning we had our usual quotation and recited the first chapter of Genesis. Mr. Heald and Mr. Blair were visitors to the school.

Margaret Elliott gave a violin solo and we enjoyed it very much. The pupils of these Eighth Grades have agreed on a light color of yellow as their class color.

Wednesday morning the Eighth Grade A, voted on its class officers, but as the bell rang before we finished the voting will be resumed when another chance is presented.

OFFICER TELLS OF FIGHTING ON SOMME.

The falling shell splitters whistled. The German pilots and observers must pull themselves together and employ all the coldbloodedness and presence of mind, caution, and cleverness of hand and eye that is in them.

The noonday August sun burned down on us on the open flying field. We went into the cool salon of the abandoned French chateau where the air camp is quartered.

"Thank God! They're back, nearly all of them. Only one machine is missing yet. Hope it comes soon."

"Where are those two fellows," he asked presently again.

He went to the window came back again, paced up and down the room.

It is expected that the Hemenway will soon have enough money for the machine. Besides putting the machine in our school we will have the feeling that we have done much good in putting the best available current literature into many homes.

There is a prize offered to the individual selling the most numbers of the magazines and a prize is offered to the room selling the most copies.

The interest in the Bird Club is very great in the William Hooper school and is constantly being shown in various ways.

In spite of the very bad weather a remarkably large number of children were present at school on Wednesday.

The primary grades have been enjoying the study of Indians during the past week. They have had many interesting stories to illustrate with drawings and paper cuttings.

"Hope they come soon," he added. The room filled gradually. And now they began to narrate their experiences — joyously, like students coming from the "mensur."

One of the most expert fliers was unfortunately absent-Hoehndorf. Wintgens regretted that we wouldn't meet the acquaintance of his friend.

The first of their strange experiences was more than a year old. It was a memorable fight in several ways.

Never before and never since has an air battle taken place at such a height. At that time Wintgens' score stood at 6, Hoehndorf's at 5.

They agreed that this success should be credited to Hoehndorf. So they were both even — 6 all. But while Hoehndorf, feeling happy, returned to his flying field, Wintgens continued to fly along the front alone and en route met and settled his seventh enemy.

They also told of one of Frankl's latest adventures. Not long ago an enemy squadron flew over St. Quentin tried to hit the railway station there with their bombs and instead cooled their courage on French homes in the neighborhood.

They went up after them and Frankl brought one down. He proved to be a mere boy Englishman, only 19 years old, but a dashing youngster.

He had evidently had a hunch that no good would happen to him, and something to read, a very good classic, in fact, Montaigne's Essays.

The German officers took the youngster into their Casino to let him recover a bit. He was very downcast. He said he had been promised a brand-new Nieuport machine if he made a good showing on this fight.

Only when he heard that one of our champion fliers had conquered him and brought him down with superior technique did the young Englishman look relieved stepped over to Frank and said, "I congratulate you."

An orderly entered: "Herr Hauptmann is wanted on the telephone."

After a minute the Captain returned, greatly relieved and beaming. "They're there. Thank God! Landed on the aviation field at Y—, and will come here by auto."

BAD TEETH AND RHEUMATISM.

Mouth Infections the Cause of Many Grave Diseases.

A few years ago when attention was first called to the fact that rheumatism was often caused by defective teeth, it was something new even to the medical profession.

That a decayed tooth could cause anything so serious as joint rheumatism was hard to believe, so investigations were made to see just how the teeth, tonsils, gums and other parts of the mouth when diseased affected the different parts of the body.

Bad teeth are no longer the innocent deformities they were once thought to be. They disqualify men for the army, children for school and men and women for a long, useful life.
