

GIANTS AGAIN TRIUMPH OVER SOX

ALLIES HOLDING ON TO LINES CAPTURED IN LAST OFFENSIVE

Few German Counter Attacks Have Been Broken Up by the Attacked.

INTEREST DIRECTED TO VERDUN FRONT

French Near German Border and a Weakening of German Lines There Might Prove Serious—Allies Hopeful.

Extremely bad weather on the Flanders front is limiting the activities of the belligerents. Notwithstanding the difficulties created by turning of the battle ground into a mud field, however, the Allies have maintained themselves in the territory they gained in Tuesday's great drive. At only one point has there been a slight slipping of the front, and that was in a particularly low sector along the British front below Poelcappelle, where, as announced yesterday, their advance posts were drawn in a little. While the work of consolidation and preparation for the renewal of the offensive, German counter attacks are being held off by the Entente guns. Last night the French had one of these attacks to deal with in the region of Dunbank. The attack was broken up by the French fire. Some attention is being attracted by the persistence of the German efforts to re-gain ground on the French front in the Verdun region. In this connection, it is noted that recently one of the German military critics in alluding to the situation in Flanders, spoke of the peril to which the Germans might be subjected on the Verdun front, if the German lines in the Belgian zone should give way. The French are very near German territory northeast of Verdun and a forced weakening of the German lines there might well have a serious effect upon the whole military situation, well placed as the French now are for the resumption of a drive from the outlying Verdun positions. The German effort to push back the French line, or possibly to regain the lost initiative in the region, many possibly be traced in anxiety in this respect on the part of the German high command. Small success, however, is attending the French efforts in this direction. He tried again last night near Hill 344, but General Petain's forces held their ground, driving the Germans out of such advanced trenches as they managed temporarily to penetrate.

GERMAN ATTACK REPULSED

Paris, Oct. 11.—The French last night defeated German attempt to capture ground taken in the French offensive in Belgium this week. The French broke into advanced French positions, but were repulsed after a spirited engagement. Fighting is the official announcement.

Washington, Oct. 11.—Germany began to meddle here eight years ago. Planned to disarrange plans for celebrating 100 years of peace between America and Great Britain, President Wilson has learned from leaders in the centenary celebration.

John A. Stewart, of New York, chairman of the American branch of the centenary committee, who recently called at the White House with H. S. Perris, of London, a leader in the British phase of the movement, brought evidence that within five weeks after announcement of the centenary plans, early in 1909 German organizations in the United States as early as 1909 to combat the newly developed movement for celebration of 100 years of peace between America and Great Britain, President Wilson has learned from leaders in the centenary celebration.

Many Who Have Been Far Down in the List Are Gradually Forging Ahead—Friends of Contestants are Working Faithfully For Favorites—Last Ten-Vote Coupon Appears Today.

one of those who so far, have done nothing much toward your own campaign, and want the support of your friends, you had better begin soon to show more interest in your campaign. The contest does not close until four weeks from next Monday night, and you have time to get busy, work and win, but no time to idle away. Another thing that impresses one upon the close study of the list is the fact, that, as a rule, the candidates who work steadily from day to day, doing a little work each day, are the candidates who are forging ahead. They appreciate the value of steady every day work. Then there are other candidates who work spasmodically. They will go out one day and secure a great many subscriptions. Success seems so easy to them that they are content to rest upon their supposed laurels; thinking they are so far ahead of the others that a day or so will not make any difference. That's where they are wrong. If you really want to win in this contest advantage should be taken of each working day. Say less about what you expect to do later, and do more that is expected of you by your friends. The people, who always do the most talking about what they expect to do are very seldom winners.
