If you will tell us when the millennium is to arrive then we can say definitely when universal disarmament will take place.

Kerensky deserves success in his effort to make something out of the Russians, but whether or not he will succeed is another question.

A dozen Charlotte bankers put on overalls and got to work on the streets, posting Liberty loan posters.

There will be a howl over revising those coal prices upward, but if Mr. Garfield found the operators could not mine the coal at the price he first fixed what else could he do?

Michaelis knew that if the Kaiser's order for every seventh man of those mutinying sailors to be shot was carried out Germany would soon be hunting for another Chancellor.

People have been told to eat smoked mackerel and shark steak for economy's sake. The next economic delicacy may be gar broth, a term used to designate the most loathsome dish that could be imagined.

The Crown Prince seems to be very much afraid the French on the Verdun front are going to push his forces back across the German border.

It is said a man will fight quicker for his religion and his dog than anything else. And some men will argue louder and longer over a measly little game of baseball than the most momentous question in the nation's life.

Congratulations to The Bladen Journal, of Clarkton, on entrance up on its ninth year of entertainment of and usefulness to the people of its town and county.

It is said that in the training of our troops in the cantonments they are receiving no instructions on course to be pursued in case of retreat.

All illiteracy eradicated in three years is the slogan of the Buncombe County Board of Education.

The death of a few days ago of Tom Benson, of Bladen county, was pitiful indeed. Bitten last summer by a cat, he took the Pasteur treatment.

If the Rt. Rev. Paul Jones, bishop of Utah, has been dabbling in politics in a way unbecoming a man in his position, especially of the pro-German quality, we hope he can be forced to resign his bishopric or be deposed by some means.

The Charlotte Observer has done an exceedingly thoughtful thing. In fact it amounts to a real charity.

THE CORN SHOW.

Wilmington has not the reputation of making much fuss over nothing, so the big fuss it is making over the coming Corn Show down there indicates it is going to be an exhibition of the first magnitude.

The average season for sowing wheat in this section is from Oct. 20th to Nov. 20th. If the weather continues favorable, the acreage will be the largest ever sown in Chatham.

You may rest assured that the public generally are taking the measure of every man during these trying days, and the public remembers.

It is reported that there were sold at Wagram, Friday, October 5, 351 bales of cotton, aggregating about fifty-two thousand dollars.

Charlotte Observer—Wonder if the German government ever seriously seeks for the reason why they turn over one after another on the side of the Allies and none of them on the side of Prussianism.

New Bern Sun-Journal.—Cotton is now being sold in this section of the State for 25c. per pound and there is every indication that it will go to 30c before many moons have waxed and waned and, in the meantime, the farmers are sitting back with a contented smile on their faces waiting for their dream of fortune to materialize.

Greensboro News.—Professional German optimists will find extreme difficulty in gloaming comfort from any of the recent developments in the great game of war.

At Rosebud, Texas, I stopped with the family of the late Wiley Atkinson, brother of Mr. Alfred Atkinson, of White Oak, N. C.

On my annual vacation I went to Caldwell, Texas. There I stopped with Mr. James T. Reeves, who left Cypress Creek, N. C., November, 1854, with his parents for Texas, and has resided there ever since.

SCHOOL FORCES TO AID CONSERVATION

County Superintendents to Serve Under Page and McAllister.

Raleigh, N. C., Oct. 12.—One hundred county school superintendents have been given to the organizations of A. W. McAllister of Greensboro, who is Federal Fuel Administrator of North Carolina and to Henry A. Page, who is directing the food administration for the government.

State Superintendent James Y. Joyner in an address to the superintendents urges the fullest co-operation of the schools with the campaign for the conservation of food and fuel in North Carolina.

Mr. Page's first big organization was formed of the schools when he went to them for his great October registration by which he hopes to place the food of the State and to know just what there is on hand.

The Wilkesboro men had an interview with local road magnates and went back in fine humor. Mr. Laws who runs papers with Hearst circulations, was as interested as any of them in the road.

The State prison board meeting here in regular session found its corn crop a little shy but plenty still to make the crop a money producer.

The early season that was so wet as to threaten the destruction of the great wheat crop after it had been made, destroyed about 500 acres of the corn and somewhat disappointed the prison board on the general result.

The figures have not been given out as the corn is yet to be gathered and the prisoners are in the midst of the cotton picking.

Thirty nine of the 73 Reserve militia companies, irreverently known as "home guards," have been ordered organized and the proposal to recruit these companies to a possible 5,000 men is meeting satisfactory response from every quarter.

The companies vary in size of course, but the aggregate will approximate 5,000 men. Raleigh's company is now on duty aiding the State in the protection of a Wake county prisoner.

The war department has detailed C. D. Linder to North Carolina to take inventory of federal property with a view to sending it to such places as the government may designate.
