"Something is happening in Ameri ca. It is happening surely and splend-He has been labeled by patriots on idly; and when it is finished, it will stay with us forever. We are becoming savers instead of spenders. The dollars which once were carelessly spent are now being put to wiser use and every day brings our people to a clearer understanding of the fact that unless we save more and more of our earnings and use our savings wisely, we will have a heavy price to pay in the future. "Everyone knows that for years America has been called the money mad nation among the great powers Just as the Germans used to call England a nation of shop-keepers, so they called us a nation of dollar

'And they are right. It is a fact that a great part of America's brain and energy has been given to the making of money. Not until recent years has America turned its wealth into paths which have been followed by European countries for generations past, such as government aid of national wealth has been created, peace to the world. but only a small part of it has gone country at large. "The new thing which is happening in America is this: the country, as a whole, is awaking to the fact that no man can use his property for himself alone. The possession o money creates an obligation, on the parte of its possessor, to aid his fellow man and his country through its proper use.

"This obligation takes two forms, which seem contradictory, yet are a the same in effect: "One: To keep money in circula-

"Two: To save money wisely. Keeping money in circulation is the opposite of hoarding and hiding your profits. Saving wisely means putting your profits to work in the most productive way.

"What better way is there to use your money than to lend it to your. country at interest? Today America offers its people a splendid opportunity to help the nation, help the soldiers, to help themselves, and help to lessen the suffering of breeding Europe. Each man, woman and child in America should turn every dollar and quarter into War Savings Stamps. It is a good investment, and and clear away eczema and similar at the same time the biggest-heart humors, so quickly and easily?
