ARE YOU READY?
If you wish to be of some service to your community or your government with the degree of efficiency that the world demands and have not had the proper training, the place to go is to Blue Ridge, where the summer conferences of the Y. W. C. A. is held. The time is July 19-29 and delegates are expected to attend from all the states within the South Atlantic field. The board for two in a room for the full time will be $15; for one in a room $20. The summons to leadership which heretofore was undreamed of is so imperative that, the call seems a challenge from the suffering world for its young womanhood as well as its young manhood, to prepare to face the issues and to be ready, trained for the things that must be done. The national board of the Y. W. C. A. has put within the reach of all the opportunity to obtain training along the lines needed by those who desire to engage in war work, and to equip for those positions now open to young women for which the demand is greater than the supply.

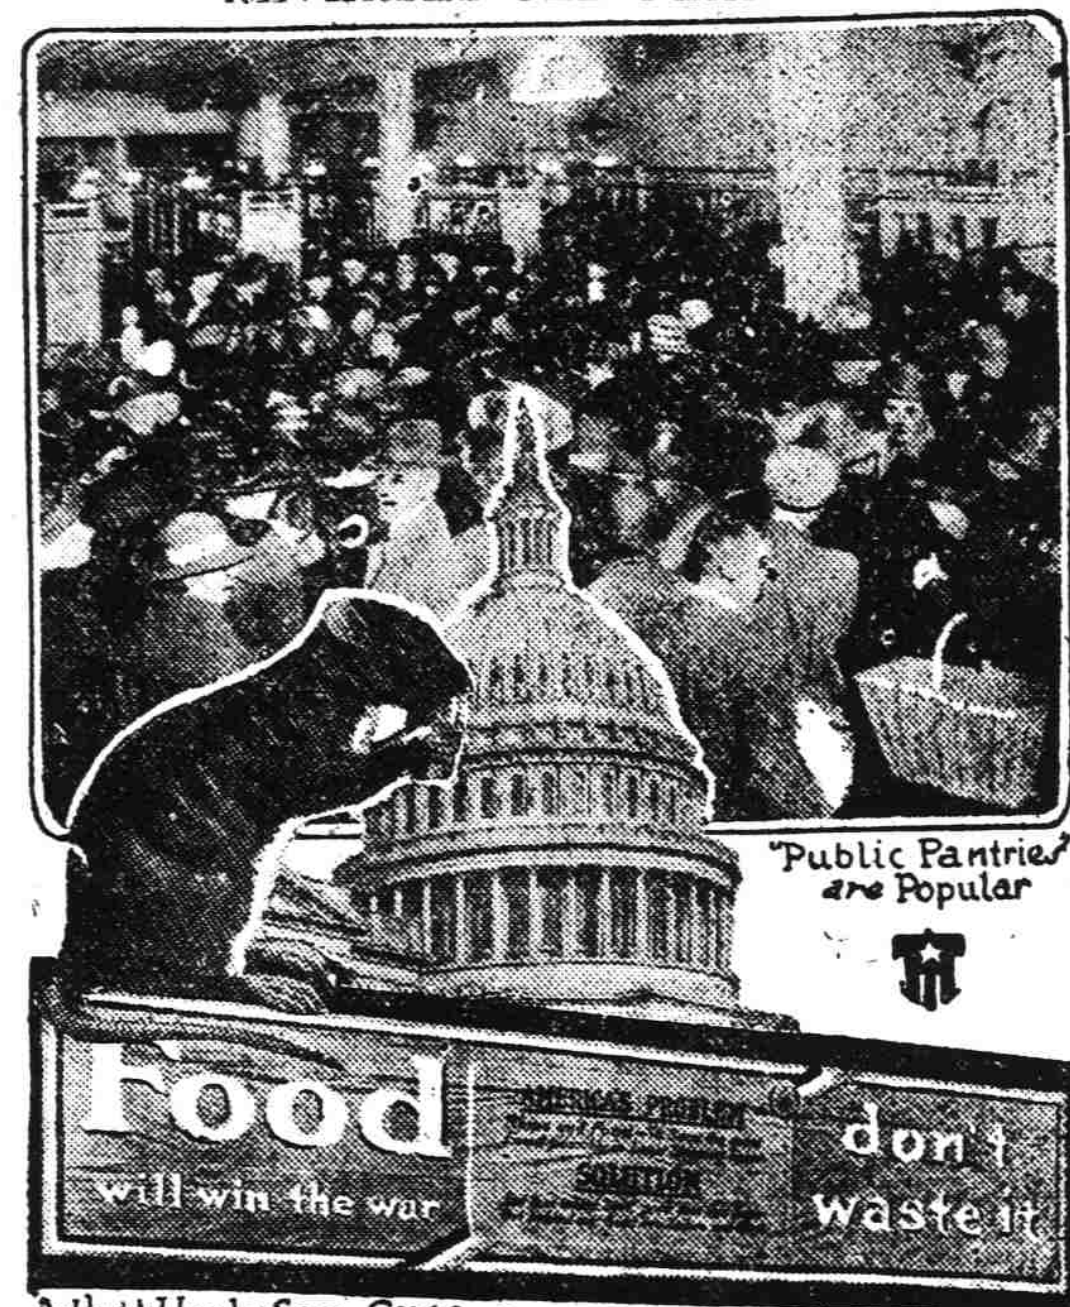

The mornings will be given over to study, the afternoons for recreation, and the evenings for high class entertainments which are to be instructive. There is no place where more value can be received for the outlay than at Blue Ridge. Beside the delightful climate and health-giving air, the course offered is well worth the amount charged. Will you go?

Teams of pitchers and catchers with names of the same initial letter are unusually common this season. Eleven of the big show teams have alliterative batteries, the Athletics heading the list with two such outfits. The list of "allits" follows: Hearn and Henry of the Braves, Marquard and Miller of the Dodgers, Ayers and Almsmith of the Senators, Schneider and Smith of the Reds, Perry and Perkins and Myers and McAvoy of the Athletics, Schellenback and Schalk of the White Sox, Douglas and Daly of the Cubs, Davis and Dillhoefer of the Phillies, Steele and Schmidt of the Pirates, Sherdell and Snyder of the Cardinals and Shocker and Severeid of the Browns.

PANTRY FOOD HOARDS FEED MICE; REVERSES OLD PLAN OF BUYING

What Uncle Sam Says.

A complete reversal of thrift methods of our grandfathers' time in matter of household buying, one designed to check food hoarding in family larders, will undergo public test in Washington soon. Right under the observation of Food Administrator Hoover, who asserted that "the food hoarder is working against the common good and even against the very safety of the country," a number of public pantries on the "piggy wiggly" plan will be opened to demonstrate that one of the wasteful ways of the housewife is the purchase of quantities of groceries.

However much of a shock it might be to our ancestors who were wont to lay in stocks of sugars, soaps, flour and other groceries in quantities, for which the mice and weevils would compete, the new Hoover dicta have called for and found a plan to lessen waste of food through overstock on private pantry shelves.

The public pantry plan, with piggy wiggly aisles is said to reduce the cost a fifth at least below the time honored "general grocery," reduce the time required in market basket buying according to the government's wishes, and particularly reduce the wasteful hoarding and accumulation of things and individual investment in groceries to an entirely new level. Thanks for this are due an unorthodox grocer of Memphis, Tennessee, Clarence Saunders, who originated the new plan and has proved it in many cities to be a notable success.

No doubt American league pitchers were greatly surprised when they heard that Babe Ruth, the Red Sox wallpaper, wasn't feeling very well this season.
