An Envidable Record

STARTING in a humble way back in 1922, the Macon County Building and Loan Association has steadily grown in size and strength until it now can be justly proud of $91,909.68 in solvent assets.

Speaking before the Franklin Rotary club Wednesday, R. S. Jones, secretary and treasurer of the association, stated that during the 12 years of its existence the association had made loans totaling $200,000, all in this county, and had never lost a penny on any loan.

The association lends money on a six per cent basis, to be repaid in weekly or monthly installments. Its earnings have averaged seven per cent, resulting in a reserve fund of $1,750, after the payment of dividends.

These figures are not astounding, but to anyone accustomed to analysing financial statements they mean careful, capable management and financial stability. There are many building and loan associations in the state much larger than the Macon County group, but we doubt if any are more secure in their position.

The association already has accomplished much in the development of this community. It can accomplish even more if the people of the town and county will give it greater support. It pays six per cent to stockholders and five and one-half per cent on savings, with ample security to insure safe investment. The beauty of the building and loan plan is that it not only keeps money at home but it keeps money at work at home. Every dollar put into the Macon County Building and Loan helps indirectly to increase employment, quicken trade and improve the lot of the entire community. We know of no better way to bring about sound prosperity than through the purchase of building and loan stock. The building and loan can do more than any other agency just now to stabilize property values and inject new life into business.

Fly Screens and Spigots

TYPICAL of the way in which Macon citizens are entering into the spirit of the 5-10 Year Organized Farm Program was the meeting held in the Cartoogechay section last Saturday. There was serious thought aplenty and everybody contributed something in the way of carefully studied ideas. Then there was a wholesome program of amusement in which everyone joined.

Among the suggestions made by each of the group members were two of such vital importance that The Press takes the liberty of repeating them here. One was "screens for the kitchen porch" and the other, "running water in the home." The ideas behind these suggestions might have been called respectively, "guarding our children from disease," and, "man's duty to his wife." Knowledge of the menace to health of the common house-fly is sufficiently general to make further elaboration on this phase of the subject unnecessary. Keeping out the fly and bringing in running water are perhaps as essential to a healthy, comfortable home as having a broom and a cook-stove.

Now, if every married man in Macon county were asked, "What is the most important factor in establishing and maintaining a home," all except the deaf ones would answer, "A wife." Then, after admitting this, most of them will go home, sit down in the easy chair and let his precious, indispensable better half go down the hill for a bucket of water at the spring or rasp her hands and strain her back drawing it from the well.

There are many ways to get running water in the home without buying regular "systems" from a manufacturer. There are unusual opportunities in this county to get it by gravity through pipe or trough. Rams are well known for giving cheap and efficient service. Windmills, bought or homemade, may be resorted to in some cases. But whatever the means of getting it, whether the cost is in money or ingenious labor, the reward will be well worth the effort.

MORE ABOUT FRANKIE SILVERS

The Franklin Press, Franklin, N. C.
My Dear Sir:
Since I am a reader of The Press I feel that I am justified in helping you correct any mistakes that might occur in your paper. The last issue of The Press carried the poem by Frankie Silvers with the information that her daughter, Mrs. Parker, was buried at the Sugar Fork graveyard. The facts are Mrs. Parker was buried at the Mountain Grove cemetery and has a daughter visiting in this community at this time.

On a separate sheet of paper is a poem (writer unknown) that you may print if you wish for the benefit of those who seem to live in the past.

Wishing you a prosperous year, I am
Respectfully yours,
WALTER C. TAYLOR.

There's nothing in a man that's perfect
And nothing that's all complete
He's nothing but a big beginning
From his head to the sole of his feet.

There's something that draws him upward,
And something that drags him down,
And the consequence is that he wobbles
'Twixt mock and a golden crown.

And it's just the same with the nations
As it is with a single man
There's heaven and hell in their vitals
A scrapper 'as hard as they can.
Elijay, N. C.,

RECOMMENDS MR. HARRISON

To the Editor
of The Franklin Press:
The time is drawing near for the people of Macon county to choose three of our best men for county commissioners and one to represent us in the General Assembly.

I want to recommend Mr. J. O. Harrison to the people of Macon county, as I believe he knows more about the financial condition of our county than anyone else and I believe he will do his best to help the common and poor man.

We must have relief in some way, or our county is bankrupt. I favor running Mr. Harrison as an independent candidate for the legislature this fall.

G. T. Stiles.

MUSE'S CORNER

THREE GARDENS

Lord God loved a garden,
So He planted one eastward in Eden
Where He walked in the cool of the day.

But O, the gardens of Christ—
The woeful garden of agony;
That such a thing must be,
Blackness and love forsaken,
Great drops of sweat, dire torment
all for you and me;
And then that other garden of unearthly light

That saw our Christ arisen;
O happy sight,
And joy supernal, holy spot of bliss,
And blessed birthplace of immortal hope;

Would that I never miss
The radiant vision of that face,
Those garments white, strength and majestic grace,
And never cease to hear
That tender, comprehending voice.

Beloved Christ, body with spirit,
all I am,
Cries out to give thee lowly praise,
Proud service all my days;
With broken, contrite heart I now rejoice
In grateful, perfect surety.
—MARY CHAPIN SMITH.

UNWRITTEN INSPIRATION

If my conscience did not pain me
Between my soul and Thee,
Could my un-written mind free
What God has asked of me?

Is it recorded on His pages
The rhymes He's inspired all ages?
Does He regard it as right
What we neglect in our sight?

If knowing His call, we decline,
How will God judge the sublime,
That we knowingly neglect,
Long after the loss we regret?

Was it wrong to say, "Another day,"
And hear the sacred chimes say,
"Your mind and soul I forsake,
To-morrow the call you'll forget?"

Would He accept our atonement
If your conscience is our judgment?
For between my soul and Thee,
May my conscience not pain me.

—MARYE HELENE ELMORE.
