

Distance Walked by Botanist On Trips Totals 75,000 Miles

(From The Tar Heel, Student Publication at the University of North Carolina)

T. G. Harbison, well-known botanist, has literally tramped his way to the high position he now holds in his unusual field. Standing erect and exhibiting a vivacity that belies his more than seventy years, he ably testifies to the fact that, whatever their status at present, walking and hiking are no lost arts in his case.

He has been called to the University to administer his expert mounting ability to the Ashe herbarium which George Watts Hill of Durham recently presented to the University. When his work is completed, the herbarium will greatly augment the already important plant collection of the botany department.

Traveled Widely

Harbison, whose search for specimens for his personal and national collections has carried him from the swamp lands of Florida to the mountain slopes of Switzerland, recounted incidents in a recent interview with a member of the Daily Tar Heel staff, that demonstrate that he is of hardier mould than most. Were he to put all his trips end to end, he estimated that he would have walked a distance equivalent to three times around the world at the equator. Of the 75,000 miles he has tramped many were made under trying conditions.

It was upon leaving comparatively sheltered academic halls that Harbison embarked on his strenuous existence. At that time, in 1886, he and a companion started on a trip which was to last from April to July and during which they followed the paths of forest and mountain through Virginia.

ILLUSION:

Josie, the lovely trapeze artist, stands upon a small platform. At the will of the magician she leaps twenty feet into the air to reach her trapeze. She uses no ropes, no ladder! A phenomenal leap for a woman... or a man!

EXPLANATION:

Josie didn't jump... she was sprung! The twenty-foot leap is not dependent on Josie's ability, but on a powerful spring mechanism hidden beneath the stage which propels the artist upward through the air. The force is so violent that the lady wears a light steel jacket which protects her from injury as she starts her astonishing leap.

IT'S FUN TO BE FOOLED ...IT'S MORE FUN TO KNOW

Magic has its place...but not in cigarette advertising.

Consider the illusion that there is a mysterious way to give cigarettes a superior "flavor."

EXPLANATION: Cigarette flavor can be controlled by adding artificial flavorings. By blending. And by the quality of tobacco used.

Cheap, raw tobacco can be "built up" or "fortified" by the lavish use of artificial flavorings.

Such magic, however, seldom holds the audience. Your taste finally tells you the truth.

The cigarette flavor that never stales, never varies, never loses its fresh appeal, comes from mild, ripe, fragrant, more expensive tobaccos...blended to bring out the full, round flavor of each type of leaf. It's the quality of the tobacco that counts!

It is a fact, well known by leaf tobacco experts, that Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand.

Because Camel actually pays millions more every year for choice tobaccos, you find in Camels an appealing mildness, a better flavor.

And Camels taste cooler because the welded Humidor Pack of three-ply, MOISTURE-PROOF cellophane keeps them fresh.
