PLAN RELIEF WORK EXHIBIT

Work of Sewing Rooms And Other Projects To be Displayed

Plans for an exhibit of work being done in WPA sewing rooms and on several other emergency relief projects in Macon county were announced this week by Mrs. G. A. Jones, supervisor of the sewing rooms.

The exhibit is to be held from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m. Saturday, October 24, in the courthouse.

Mrs. J. A. Ordway, national youth administration supervisor for the county, will exhibit a few scrap-books and other work done by tots, four to six years old, at various places in the county; but this will represent only a small part of the NYA activities. Most of the NYA projects can be seen only by visiting various school grounds, where rock walls, pipe lines, and other school improvements have been made.

It is also difficult to show through exhibits the work being done under Dr. T. J. O'Neil, county recreational supervisor, who conducts games and recreational hours in a number of communities. But one tangible result of his endeavors will be shown at the exhibit in the form of a performance by an amateur orchestra which has been organized through his efforts.

Mrs. John Trotter, supervisor of ERE teaching, and her assistant, Miss Mildred Moore, will have an exhibit of home work done by students under ERE teachers. A lunch room project supervised by Miss Ethel Hurst will be represented in an exhibit showing what is served and how it is served in six rural schools.

Mrs. Jones will have on display samples of work done by women in the seven sewing rooms under her supervision. These sewing centers are located at Franklin, Buck Creek, Watauga, Cowee, Prentiss, Otto and Kyle. Sixty-one women are now employed in the sewing rooms, where they have been taught to cut, fit and make garments for the whole family, and also to make quilts, sheets, towels, pillow cases, bedspreads, knitted articles and many pieces of fancy needlework.

from Congress just to win an election. I do say, however, that the existence of the fund has helped his henchmen get votes for him—votes that will swing the electoral ballot of many states this November for Mr. Roosevelt.

But I would be prepared to forgive even the large accumulation of debt to date if I thought the spending would really stop and the budget would really be balanced and debt retirement begun. I have carefully analyzed the budget statements for four years and have come to the conclusion that, whether intentionally or not, most of them have been misleading. They have sought to give impressions not justified by the facts or figures.

The Constitution of the United States stipulates an accounting of public funds. I do not charge that there has been any fraud. But I do charge there has been misstatement and deceptive juggling of the figures to create a politically favorable impression. I cannot accept such a fortuitous conception of the necessities of party politics.

Nor can I regard the attitude which Mr. Roosevelt has assumed toward the Supreme Court of the United States as an augury of his expressed desire to adhere to the spirit of the Constitution. He may justify it to himself on a Jacksonian precedent, but I regard it as dangerous opportunism.

For the foregoing reasons I believe that the best interests of the American people will be served by repudiating the present Administration at the polls.

and left them sitting on a log, he continued, until he went to Luck's camp, half a mile distant, for help. A man whose name was not learned but who said he was from Texas carried the girls out of the gorge and brought them to Angel hospital. After treating them, Dr. Furman Angel went to Luck's camp and brought Penland back to town.

Missed Cunningham

Both Penland and the Seay girls said they remembered seeing nothing of Cunningham after the car crashed into the river bottom. He is believed to have fallen or climbed out of the car and to have been washed downstream by the rapid currents. Whether his death resulted from injuries received in the crash or from drowning was not established today. Water was found in his lungs, but Dr. Angel said this was to be expected regardless of whether death came from the fall or from drowning.

Members of the corner's jury which is to resume its investigation tomorrow are Gus Setzer, John Bingham, Dutch Dills, Lester Conley, Sy Womack and George Mashburn.

Surviving Cunningham, who was 27 years old and was employed as a filling station attendant by Jack Weyman, are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Cunningham; two sisters, Miss Hazel Cunningham and Mrs. Cary Patton, and two brothers, Ralph and Marshal. The latter is a member of a CCC camp near Marion, N. C.
