MRS. ANNA HARRINGTON

"Mother," as she was so affectionately called by the first, second and third generation that lives under her roof, saw the dawn of her eighty-fifth birthday on Christmas Day—and the beginning of the New Year in Heaven.

"Mother" was made of the stuff that sweetened as the hard years of young widowhood, and unnumbered years of patient care of sick relatives, went by.

But never too engrossed with her own troubles to share with others in their joys or sorrows.

As life handed her its burdens, she took them with a cheerful bravery that would not be conquered.

Though Time and its burdens bent the little body over and crippled the hands and feet, she willingly and gladly served those around her until a few days before the end.

Her smiling face, sweetened and softened by years of thought for others, always was at the door to greet friend or stranger. And we know that she will now watch as faithfully at "Heaven's Window" for her loved ones to come to her there.

"The good never die." One thought of Anna Ingram Harrington will help anyone who had the privilege of knowing her to take courage, and meet life with a smile.

ANNOUNCING

Effective Monday, January 18, 1937

THE MACON THEATRE

WILL BE

Under New Management

This Theatre has been purchased by G. L. Tomlin, of Clayton, Ga., and the Rabun Amusement Company, Inc., and will be under the management of Mr. Charles Ingram.

The owners desire to announce that they will strive at all times to provide the highest type of motion picture programs, consisting entirely of first run pictures of the country's foremost producers. The programs, of which there will be three each day, will be designed as nearly as possible to last for two hours and to provide well rounded entertainment.

We regret that at this time we are not in position to announce next week's programs; but in the future the programs will be announced each week in The Franklin Press and Highlands Maconian.
