

LABOR DAY

THROUGHOUT the centuries of agricultural development and industrial enterprise, progress towards civilization has been possible only through the combined efforts of workingmen. Cities, roads, ships—all have been fashioned by their hands. The luxuries of life and the necessities of industry have been products of constructive labor.

Yet, it has taken all these years for us to assign Labor to its proper place in society. Only recently have we realized that Labor is one of the bases of civilized life.

We realize, too, that the future of every society depends upon the condition of Labor obtaining in that society. A happy, satisfied labor-group—enjoying a high standard of living—that is the formula for the happiness of everyone.

This, then, is America's Coming of Age. We appreciate Labor's worth to our welfare, and hasten to foster its growth.

This Tribute To Labor Is Sponsored And Paid For By

Nantahala Power & Light Co.
 The Bank of Franklin
 Sanders' Store
 Macon County Supply Co.
 Western Carolina Telephone Co.

Franklin Hardware Co.
 Perry's Drug Store
 A & P Grocery Store
 Angel's Drug Store
 The Franklin Press