

Care and Management Of Baby Chicks

Now is the proper time to make plans for what is intended to be done in poultry this year. There are certain things that should be done before the chicks arrive.

Establish a supply of green feed of either rye, wheat, oats, rape, or a mixture of these.

Build or repair brooder house. Every one who plans to raise any quantity of baby chicks should have a brooder house. A good size for the brooder house is 12 ft. by 14 ft. This size house will accommodate up to 300 baby chicks. The floor should be of concrete or of double wood. Besides raising baby chicks, this house is especially good for curing sweet potatoes which will prevent so many of them from rotting. Plans for the brooder house and for the brooder can be secured from the county agent's office.

If you already have a brooder house it should be repaired and thoroughly cleaned. Sweep down the ceiling and walls, scrape and sweep the floor, then scrub the walls and floor with hot water, which has a 13 ounce can of lye to 20 gallons of water. Clean all equipment with the same solution. After the house is dry cover the floor with dry shavings or straw. Start the brooder at least two days before the chicks arrive so that you will know how to regulate the heat and so that the brooder house will be warm.

When the chicks arrive see that fresh water with the chill off is in the drinking founts. There should be two half gallon drinking founts for each 100 chicks. The chicks are supposed to be well and healthy, so keep medicine and disinfectants out of the water. Keep a bucket full of water on top of the brooder at all times. This will add moisture to the air. Keep a good grade of starting mash in hoppers four inches high, six inches wide, and five feet long, for each 100 chicks. Begin feeding starting grain and green feed when chicks are seven to 10 days old. Feed starting mash until chicks are seven weeks old, then gradually change to growing mash. Do not over heat or chill. Practice rigid sanitation. Wash drinking founts daily. Keep dry litter in brooder house at all times, change this litter every other day. See that the house is properly ventilated but free from drafts.

A regular income can be secured from poultry if properly handled. Now is the time to get in touch with some reliable hatchery and place your order for chicks so that you can be assured of delivery when you want them. Heavy breed chicks should be delivered in March and light breed chicks should be delivered in April to make the best layers. For more detailed information, see your county or home agent.

Club Members Win Two Scholarships

Two 4-H Club boys have won one-year scholarships to State college, one because he knew how to raise pigs and the other because of his outstanding dairy calf.

Albert Coates, of Smithfield, Johnston county, started his demonstration with three pigs for which he paid $25. During a feeding period of 62 days, the animals ate $23.50 worth of feed and gained 415 pounds.

When young Coates sold the pigs, he received $64.35, which netted him $15.85, said L. R. Harrill, 4-H Club leader at State college. In addition to the actual profit, Albert won $21 in prizes at the North Carolina state fair and at his local county fair.

Eari Trull, 15-year-old Buncombe county club member, won his scholarship for his outstanding record with a Guernsey calf. Named Sequel's Betty of Elida, this calf won first place in her class and the senior and grand championships in the 4-H Guernsey show at the state fair last fall.

In October, 1936, Earl's calf was valued at $250. During the succeeding 12 months she ate $110.25 worth of feed and pasturage, according to her owner's records.

She produced $578.90 worth of milk, dropped a calf valued at $50, and was herself worth $800 in October, 1937. Her prize winnings at the state fair amounted to $55.

Deducting the feed costs together with the value of the calf at the start of the year, the Buncombe youth figures his net profit from the calf at $1,323.65.

HELP KIDNEYS

To Get Rid of Acid and Poisonous Waste

Your kidneys help to keep you well by constantly filtering waste matter from the blood. If your kidneys get functionally disordered and fail to remove excess impurities, there may be poisoning of the whole system and body-wide distress.

Burning, scanty or too frequent urination may be a warning of some kidney or bladder disturbance.

You may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel weak, nervous; all played out.

In such cases it is better to rely on a medicine that has won country-wide acclaim than on something less favorably known. Use Doan's Pills. A multitude of grateful people recommend Doan's. Ask your neighbor!
