DORA LAMB ANTIQUE SHOP AN INTERESTING PLACE

A visit to the Dora Lamb Antique Shop which is opening at 1024 Dr. Mox's cottage on Fourth Street is well worth anyone's time. The quaint old English chintz, the "perky" ruffled curtains, and an old rag carpet make a most attractive background for the many lovely old pieces of glass, china, prints and furniture. For a number of years Mrs. Lamb had an Antique and Interior Decorating Shop at Lookout Mountain, Tenn., so she comes with experience and a real appreciation for all things that make for the "gracious art of living."

Among the many lovely things to be found in this shop are a pair of rare old flint glass open compotes, with their bell ring; a Minton China teapot, a pink Spode cup tureen, with plates to match, a Bristol glass Epergne; then there are the curly maple dining chairs, and the Hepplewhite butler's desk. The fireplace is also fitted with old andirons, and no shop would be complete without a few Audubons, which have become so popular in the ultra-smart interiors.

One will have to make a visit to Poca No Mox to really see for themselves all the time, taste, and wisdom that has been spent in acquiring this collection of antiques.

PLANS PERFECTED FOR MUSEUM BUILDING WORK

Mayor W. W. Edwards and H. C. Millkey, the museum architect, called on Mr. Owens, assistant WPA engineer, in Franklin last Monday and perfected plans regarding the work on the museum building which is projected to begin within the next few days.

Advice Is Offered To Truck Growers

H. R. Newinger, horticulturist of the State college extension service, offers two pieces of timely advice to growers of truck crops. The first is to renew old beds immediately after the strawberry harvest is over; the second, fertilize tomato plants if you expect to have late tomatoes by setting out plants in June.

In the renewal of old strawberry beds, Newinger says the width of each row should be reduced about six inches by plowing up part of the row. This may be done by plowing on one side of the row or by plowing on each side leaving a strip of plants six inches wide.

The strip should be thinned of plants, removing as many old plants as possible, leaving the remaining younger plants around 12 inches apart. Plow up the middles between the strips and continue cultivation throughout the summer, the horticulturist continued.

When new runner plants begin to develop, a 5-7-5 fertilizer mixture should be applied at the rate of five to seven pounds per 100 feet of row, or one to two pounds of a mixture containing equal parts of nitrate of soda and concentrated meal.

Turning to the subject of fertilizing tomato plants, Newinger recommended that plants set out in June be placed four to five feet apart. However, before setting the plants a hole should be dug where each plant is to be set and a gallon of well rotted stable manure dropped into the hole. Then the hole should be filled with dirt and the plants set. Three weeks later two tablespoons of 16 per cent superphosphate should be worked into the soil at a distance of three inches from each plant.
