PLANS GOING FORWARD FOR BUILDING CLUBHOUSE

"DULCY" PLAYS TO CAPACITY CROWD

Highlands became another of the increasing number of summer theatre enterprises when the Highlands Little Theatre rendered its first production, "Dulcy", in the School Theatre on August 29. Playing before a capacity house of over 300 people, the debut performance of the little theatre was well received by an enthusiastic audience. Much credit for the successful production is due to the untiring efforts of the directors, Tom Fritz-Patrick and Beverly Way.

"Dulcy" tells the story of a frivolous young wife who is always trying to help her husband, but only succeeds in involving him in both business and social complications. The cast in the order of their appearance on the stage was: William Parker, Dulcy's brother, Tony Moore; Ruby, Sarah Thompson; Gordon Smith, Dulcy's husband, Frank Lowman; Tom Sterrett, Jack H. Wilcox; Duley, Toni Ahlstaetter; Schuyler Van Duck, Edgar Neely; C. Roger Forbes, Tom Fitz-Patrick; Mrs. Forbes, Polly Kaoul; Angela Forbes, Margaret Ranklin; Vincent Leach, Herb Milkey; Blair Patterson, Henry Zoellner.

The acting of the entire cast was creditable for any professional group, and lacked the anticipated and common amateurish touches of local productions. The presentation was excellent, and the work of each person splendid.

The properties committee was composed of Misses Eleanor Terhune, and Anne Nash, ably assisted by Arthur Little of the celebrated Barter Theatre of Abington, Va. The business affairs were handled by Bill Way, manager, and Miss Winnie Eskridge, assistant manager.

The play was given for the primary purpose of stimulating interest in the Little Theatre in Highlands; and in view of the phenomenal success of the inaugural production, it is hoped that the community will cooperate, and that the Highlands Little Theatre will become a permanent organization.
